STUDYING TRAFFIC PROBLEMS, NOW

S-E Council Elects Officers

The Southeast Community Council — representing all organiations in that section of Columbus — got off the ground Jan. 12 with the election of its first set of officers.

The council's first group of leaders includes:

President Paul J. Lynch, 2976 Schwartz-rd; Vice-President Ralph Squires, 1466 Aven-dr; Secretary Mrs. Emil H. Bratka, 1627 Striebel-rd; Corresponding Secretary Mrs. Dorothy Matheney, 2866 Scottwood-rd and Treasurer Mrs. Ellen Post, 1475 Zettler-rd.

The goal of the council is, they say, "to make the Southeast section of Columbus a better place to live."

They plan to accomplish this by bringing together all civic associations, churches, schools, PTAs, fraternal and service clubs and getting them to work together for civic improvements.

At the club's opening meeting Jan. 12, Court of Appeals Judge John J. Duffey swore in the new officers.

Harry Feldman, planning director of the United Community Council, spoke briefly about the coming conference at OSU on "Area and Neighborhood Councils."

His main topic was "Traffic Problems — Present and Future In the East End — a matter which the council is concerning itself at the present time.

Members of the city's traffic engineering department led the discussion.

The group's next meeting will be Mar. 9, 8 p.m., at Christ Methodist Church on Zettler-rd.

He's Theodore Markey, 40, of 4585 St. Margaret-ln who, along with a fellow postal employe from the Hilltop, was given the award by a representative of the postmaster general.

The machine that the duo developed straightens letters coming off a conveyor belt.

VIKING MERMEN EYE COSL TITLE, RECORDS

ACADEMY'S BID for the Central Ohio Swim League title this season plus some new records in the loop will be centered around this quartet of Viking mermen. From left are soph Robin Friday (butterfly, sprint, free-style), senior co-captain Al Bernhults (breast-stroke), senior co-captain George Silverman (free-style, sprints) and soph Herb Lape (does everything according to coach Frank McGraw). Lape, co-winner of the outstanding Central Ohio swimmer award as a frosh last season, has already broken the 400 and 200-yard free-style marks this season and, with Friday, erased all existing Viking records (except breast stroke) last year.

West Next For E-M; Scots Eye Win Skein

Eastmoor and Hartley hurdled crucial "humps" in their rugged circuit schedules last weekend and edged one notch nearer their respective throne rooms to top the area cage roundup.

Eastmoor, now all alone atop the City League standings with a perfect 6-0 slate after nicking tough-nut East 64-63, has another rough contest coming up tomorrow night when second-place West (3-3) invades the Warrior confines with 6'2 Jerry Francis (21.7 in CL play) and 6'6 Steve Barnard (16.1).

THE WARRIOR win came after high-scoring Steve Howell (22 plus) dropped in one of his 21 markers with just 12 seconds left that gave E-M a cozy 64-61 edge and offset John Lewis' last-second fielder.

The East downfall, its first in 13 home games, resulted when the Bengals (4-2 and 7-2 overall) cashed only five of 13 charities after out-goaling (29-23) and out-boarding E-M 54-35.

Doug Cromer's 18 and 14 more by sparkplug Jerry Groves offset a fiery 30-point night by the hard-driving Lewis.

E-M also fractured arch-rival Whitehall by an 83-64 count on Saturday after erupting for a big 30-marker finale. The Warriors, now 9-1 overall, hit 53% from the floor as Howell again led the way with 25 tallies.

JERRY GROVES fired in 20, same as Whitehall's outside ace Mark Blackstone, to go along with 14 by Cromer and ten-point efforts by the Rams' Harv Eader, Gary Beckley and Mike Tarleton.

Phil Allen's Rams, now 5-6 and 3-4 in the CBL, reeled off a 72-63 win over Delaware on Friday after leading by one at halftime. Jim Dildine's 17 led while Beckley's 12. John McQuaid's 11 and Jeff Barker's 10 helped out.

The Rams entertain loop runner-up Worthington (4-3) tomorrow night and visit Worthington on Saturday. The Rams seem ready for the "big kill" tomorrow night after last week's showing against Hayes and E-M.

JACKIE MOORE'S prediction that his club would jell at mid-season looks like it was well-planned as Walnut Ridge roared past upstart North, 70-46, behind the sparkling pivot play of Pat Beveridge who poured in 12 points and controlled the boards.

The Scots second straight win was attributed to a great defensive effort and the 22-point scoring (17 in the first half) of guard Mike Tanner and the floor play of Rick Houchen (16) and playmaker Gary Carter (11).

W-R also hit a cool 30 of 42 free tosses for the big difference in the end as the Scots now stand 2-9 overall.

Tomorrow night, the Scots trek to Aquinas (3-7) for a go at top scorers Jack Elgin (17.3) and 6'2 southpaw Jim Duckworth.

HARTLEY scraped off a 67-62 squeeze against top-contending Watterson last weekend to gain temporary clear sailing in the CCL and never-say-die Hawks rallied from a 16-point deficit to tie it up at 44-all on Frank (29-point) Tafoya's jumper late in the third period.

Tafoya hit another jumper at 62-all to put Geory Bradley's battling crew (now 5-0 in the CCL) ahead for good while Tom Schlager's 23 included the "clincher" with 15 ticks left.

Doug Parker's ten ended the Hawk scoring as Hartley now prepares for menacing DeSales (3-2) on Friday and visiting Fremont St. Joseph on Saturday.

BEXLEY suffered a tight 65-58 negative nod at Mt. Vernon although hot shot Robin Wells whipped in 22 game-high tallies, 11 more than Mac Albin managed. Gene Millard will send his charges (4-7) into the Hill-climber's frightful den at Urbana (10-0) tomorrow night and hope for a stunning upset. Van Evans (19.5) and Skip Waldren (16.4) pace the "U" attack.

Panther Invitational Features Twin-Elimination, 121 Events

The eyes of the local wrestling world will be focused on Pleasant View this week as the Panthers host their fifth annual Invitational.

P-V mat mentor Bob Mowry will have something new in store for grappling fans at the meet. The Invitational will be a double-elimination event with four mats simultaneously handling some 121 matches.

PRELIMS ARE set for 10 a.m. with finals getting underway at 3 p.m. The Invitational will be held at Prairie-Norton Elementary, 215 S. Norton-rd, off W. Broad-st, New Rome.

Mowery feels the elementary site will better allow the capacity needed to host a double-elimination tourney. Ticket prices are 50 cents for students, 75 cents for adult.

Vying for Invitational laurels with the host team will be Circleville, Granville, West, Groveport, DeSales, Franklin Heights and Worthington.

Trophies will be awarded to the champion and runnerup teams while first place individuals will receive trophies; runnerups, tie tacks; third placers, medals.

Arlington won the event last year, Franklin Heights was the champ in '62 and '61 while Worthington copped the inaugural title in 1960.

RESULTS

In a recent 26-20 verdict over Marysville, Bob Jones (hwt), Ralph Roberts (175) and Bill Paxton (127) picked up pins for Ready.

Teammates Bill Scales (165), James Michael (138) and Jim Rough (120) took decisions for the Knights.

IN THE WEEK'S biggest meet, defending District champ, East, finished on top in four of six finals pairings it had men in and added two more consolation wins to win its own Invitational Saturday.

The Tigers piled up 86 markers to outdistance runnerup Westerville, which edged Groveport for second place, 58-57.

Other finishes included Hartley, 53; Eastmoor, 44; Whitehall, 32; Walnut Ridge, 27, and Central, 16.

Individual winners were: 103, Ralph Cox (E); 112, Roy Leonard (EM); 120, Charles Hood (E); 127, Steve Roberts (WR); 133, Randy Catalina (Wh); 138, Wes Seymour (Wh); 145, Paul Burkey (H); 154, Gary Rispress (E); 165, Brian White (GP); 175, Roland Martin (E), and hwt, John Bavly (H).

HARTLEY strung 10 straight wins to drop Bexley, 38-3.

Rees Lattimer (103) gained the Lions' lone verdict but the Hawks got rolling on Joe Weldon's 112 pin and won all the rest of the verdicts, including pins by Pat Burkey (154) and John Bavly (hwt).

STEVE PEITSMAYER (103, Al McGath (145), John Cooley (hwt) and Tom Peterson (138) got wins for the losers (Peterson via pin) but it wasn't enough to offset six wins by the Rangers.

Mike Blansett (133) and Paul Keller (165) got pins for H-T. For Keller, the win was number seven in eight tries.

In a meet that saw seven of 11 matches decided by pins, Franklin Heights remained unbeaten (4-0) with a 31-16 win over Eastmoor.

VIC VANCE (105), Dick Kesselring (129), Fred Scolerie (156), Sam Blankenship (166) and Mike Long (175) got five pointers for the Falcons while Pete Johnson (140) and Steve Gutridge (hwt) secured pins for the Warriors.

Bob Jones (hwt) finished with a pin for Ready but Grandview downed the Knights anyway, 36-11. Bill Paxton (127) and Bill Scales (154) got the rest of Ready's markers on a pair of decisions.

WHETSTONE ran its win skein to eight straight with a 28-16 nod over West. Mike Baker (138) and Harry Radeuge (hwt) got pins for the Cowboys while Benny King (154) and Ed Smith took decisions.

The Cowboy reserves lost out in a cliffhanger, 23-22, despite pin efforts by Jack Miles (103), Norm Parrish (138) and Darnell Thomas (145).

Pins by Charles Hood (120) and Roland Martin (175) paced East to an easy 28-9 dual meet verdict over Linden.

The Tigers swept the final four matches to cement the victory.

Circleville nailed down the final four events to squeak past Whitehall, 26-21.

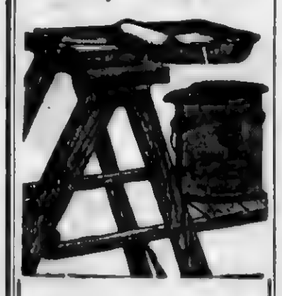
Mike Decker (103), Randy Catalina (138), Wes Seymour (145), Randy Nicholes (133) and Ray Adams (120) took wins for the Rams, the latter three via pins.

Adams, a sophomore, is taking over for classmate Steve Beery.

According to coach Ernie Spychalski, Beery, laid low by mononucleosis, will be lost to the squad for most of the rest of the season.

The loss of Beery, a defending district champion, is a severe blow to the Rams' mat hopes.

Pins by Roy Leonard (112), Mike Sullivan (145) and Steve Gutridge (hwt) paced Eastmoor to a 23-15 mat win over neighborhood rival Whitehall.



Pete Prendergast, Ron Reid and Dan Goldberg got decisions for the winners while Mike Decker (7-3), Ernie Peters and Chuck Drake took wins for the Rams, the latter via a pin.

The 138-pound match which pitted two of the area's top grapplers — Whitehall's Wes Seymour and Eastmoor's Pete Johnson — ended in a draw.

Bexley, paced by decision wins by Rees Lattimer, Jim Kelley, Jim Schottenstein and Rick Doty, upended University, 27-14.

The Wonderful World of ANIMALS
By Frank Miller, D.V.M.

DEAR DR. MILLER: A friend is going to give me a mouse and I'm fixing up a house from an old bird cage. It's all rusty and I'm going to paint it. I thought blue, because I like that color. Do you think a blue mouse house would be bad? Would it make him too sad? —K.M.

DEAR K.M.: Your mouse would be most sad if you painted his new house with a toxic paint — and he ate some. Remember mice are chewers and the paint must be safe to nibble on, just in case. Suit yourself on the decorating scheme; mice are color-blind, anyway.

• • •

DEAR DR. MILLER: Yesterday we visited our son and his family. We found out the puppy next door had just died of hepatitis. No one seemed very concerned about it but my husband is worried about our granddaughter. Could she get this hepatitis? What about her dog? The dog is five years old and she is very attached. —W.S.

DEAR W.S.: (Copy of earlier reply) Fortunately, human hepatitis and canine hepatitis are not caused by the same virus. Infectious canine hepatitis may infect animals other than the dog, but is not infectious to humans. Dogs of any age, if not already immune, may be infected. Your local veterinarian will have to determine if your granddaughter's dog needs protection. (To be of any value, such protection should not be delayed.)

• • •

DEAR DR. MILLER: Little Joe has only been in the house for five months. At first, he tried to get my two birds every chance he got. When I caught him, he always got spanked. Now all he does is to sit three or four feet away and stare at them. When he watches them, he sits quietly and calmly. I would like to know if I can trust him now not to attack the birds? Can a cat be friends with a bird? —C.A.

DEAR C.A.: Joe can probably be trusted now — as long as he knows you are watching him. However, the fact that he continues to be an attentive bird watcher could mean he is still planning more active participation. Cats MAY become friends with a bird. However, the following letter illustrates the disadvantage—bird-wise—in such a relationship:

• • •

DEAR DR. MILLER: I'd like to send along this letter in the hope it may help save some other feathered pets who are loved as much as we loved Nibbles, our parakeet. Nibbles was a year old when we got Blackie as a kitten. We very carefully introduced these two and we always watched Blackie carefully at first. Finally they became the best of friends.

We even have pictures of them over the years sharing food. Nibbles would fly down and perch on Blackie's head and we have pictures of that, too. All our friends were amazed at our happy family and Nibbles trusted Blackie completely. Then one night it happened!

I was just going in the other room to get Nibbles' cage ready to put him to bed. I came back out into the kitchen and there was Blackie sitting in the corner with feathers all over his face and no Nibbles. I couldn't believe it but finally did and then screamed and beat up Blackie but that didn't help our poor little bird any. It was too late.

Please let people read this and let people never, never trust a cat and bird together.

Does your favorite animal have problems, physical or emotional? Dr. Miller will answer all letters sent to him, care of this paper, provided a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed.

Police Ball Is Scheduled

The 33rd annual Police Ball will be held at Rollerland, Mound and 18th-sts, on Tuesday, Feb. 23, 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Music will be provided by the Al Waslon Orchestra. This orchestra is composed of local musicians. Waslon was formerly with Jimmy Dorsey and is well known by dance fans.

Chief of Police George W. Scholer is general chairman for the ball and Capt. Marty Winters is chairman of ticket sales.

Tickets went on sale Jan. 18 and the price is $1.

To avoid repeat contacts by different officers the force is continuing the policy of having only a few officers sell tickets.

Tickets may also be obtained by calling police headquarters, 221-1166.

Proceeds from the ball are used to provide for the widows and children of deceased police officers.

FARM FORECAST
with CLAY EAGER

Most farm organizations express interest in "relaxation of government farm controls," while the wheels turn out the new farm message, slated for an early release in Washington.

Representatives from the Ohio Cattlemen's Association aired optimism on a recent Farm Forecast telecast, but I noted a reservation to be specific prior to the release from Washington.

The National Farmers Union is trying to build pressure on the White House against cutbacks in government farm programs, calling on members of the organization and local farmer union leaders to get in touch with house members and senators.

A steady reader of our Farm Forecast Column asks "How strong is agriculture in world politics?"

Khrushchev's fall from power was hastened by the continued failure of Soviet farmers to produce enough food. Their economy was the ultimate in big-government planning but the Soviet planners could not solve the food situation.

Because of scarcities, the average Russian family must spend over half of its available income on food alone, with little money left for anything else.

Khrushchev made the mistake of visiting the right places — American farms.

He admired our agriculture and tried to imitate our methods. The one thing he failed to understand was that free enterprise and teamwork, not big government planning and compulsion, make our system work. There is an interdependence between farm and urban interests in maintaining our food supply. Both interests also understand the importance of free enterprise, with a minimum of interference from big-government planners.

See Clay Eager's Farm Forecast, weekdays from 6:30 to 7 a.m., on TV-4.

Electric dryers are first choice of 8 out of 10 women.

One reason: electric dryers cost less to buy!

Electric sets pace as 1,011 women tell why and how they pick and choose dryers.

Over 1,000 homemakers in The Electric Company service area recently took part in an independent study of why and what they preferred about certain appliances.

Naturally, automatic clothes dryers were included and compared.

This big cross-section of "experts" left no question about the overwhelming preference in this area for flameless electric dryers.

They gave lots of reasons why, but one important feature heads the list: the fact that electric dryers cost less to buy!

Flameless electric dryers preferred 9 to 1 for low initial cost!

Nine times out of 10, women mentioned this money-saving advantage of flameless electric dryers. (There was little doubt—even among owners of all types of dryers—that electric dryers, feature for feature, cost less to buy.)

Prove it to yourself. Visit your favorite appliance dealer and compare dryers. You'll find electric dryers do cost less to buy.

Significantly so.

While you're looking, there are some things you won't see — and these unseen features are more of what makes electric dryers most preferred by homemakers in the Columbus and Southern Ohio area.

Area homemakers offer you buying hints for dryers.

In fact, if you've never owned an automatic clothes dryer, here's a buying hint for you: 8 out of 10 local women who begin enjoying all the time-and-work-saving convenience of automatic clothes drying start with a flameless electric dryer.

You see, far more than the low price of an electric dryer appeals to women.

Women prefer more features of flameless electric dryers.

Once you get it home, you continue to save with electric.

Here's why:

There's only one connection to make. Electricity runs the dryer and dries the clothes. Pure radiant electric heat gently dries everything from your daintiest lingerie to Dad's work clothes; and because flameless electric heat is so clean, it protects clothes as it dries them fluffier, brighter and fresher.

You save time and steps because you can put your electric dryer wherever it's most convenient for you — upstairs, downstairs, in the kitchen, even the garage. Put it any place you can run a wire!

Over the years, you'll get more use from your electric dryer, too. With fewer moving parts to wear out, they last longer.

It's easy to see why, in homes that have automatic dryers, you find 7 out of 10 dryers are flameless electric!

Every day, more people give more reasons for going electric!

Someday, you will want a new automatic dryer for your home.

The chances are good you're thinking about one right now.

Before you buy, shop around. Compare closely. Check the prices. Then remember that the important advantages of flameless electric dryers don't show up until you get one home.

Those are the benefits that count.

And they're the ones preferred by more homemakers like yourself.

You'll prefer a flameless electric dryer, too.

Even more when you get it home.

Listen — He's Reciting A Gettysburg Address

By Adeline Daley

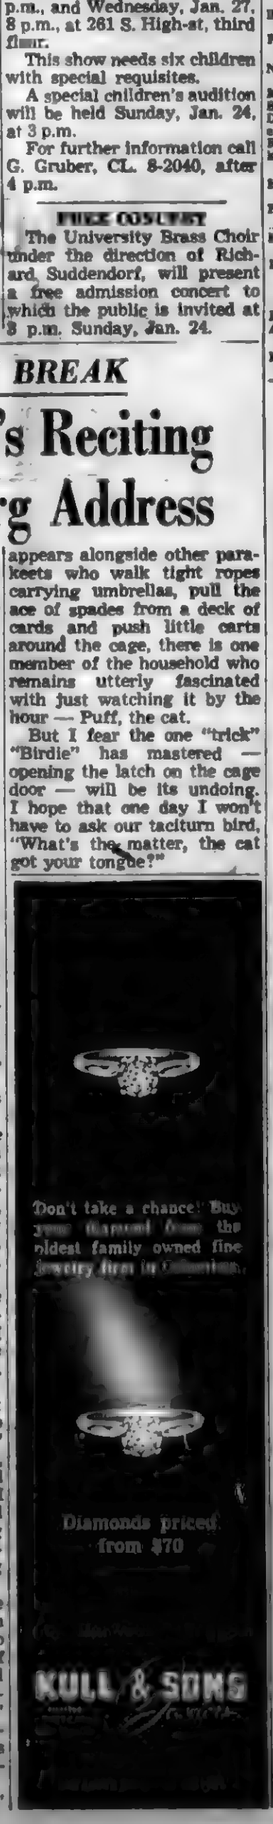
Just one week ago we were happy with our parakeet "Birdie." (Notice what clever names we choose for our pet..) We were satisfied that we had an average bird with normal intelligence and a fair voice. Not a feathered Robert Goulet, by any means, but a performer of, perhaps, the caliber of a Bobby Breen.

Now we are looking at "Birdie" in a more critical light after reading the book Patrice sent for from a pet food company entitled, "How to Train Your Parakeet to Talk, Play Card Tricks and Perform on the High Wire."

The first step, of course is to see that your bird receives a proper diet of the numerous products the company has on the market for parakeets: seeds, treats, conditioning foods, cuttle bone, gravel, biscuits and little bells sprayed with extra minerals, vitamins and proteins.

Believe me, "Birdie" eats better than we do.

Yet, despite all of these benefits and constant efforts to teach it to utter at least one word, "Birdie" has remained tongue-tied. Frankly, I think it's too busy eating all of the food we provide, to have time to learn to talk.



But to quote from the parakeet manual: "The average bird can be taught a vocabulary of 50 to 100 words." I doubt that some of our kids have as large a vocabulary. At least, they don't use it.

The book also discloses that parakeets can be taught to speak in a "down East" twang or a Southern drawl, recite nursery rhymes and whistle actual tunes. All I can say is that a bird with all that talent should be earning $5000 a week on the Ed Sullivan show, instead of being cooped up in a cage.

I wonder, however, if we're being a little too harsh on our bird. I have listened to the chirpings and peepings of our friends' parakeets and they sound just as unintelligible as the sounds "Birdie" makes. Yet our friends excitedly exclaim, "Listen! He's reciting the Gettysburg Address."

As untalented as "Birdie" appears alongside other parakeets who walk tight ropes carrying umbrellas, pull the ace of spades from a deck of cards and push little carts around the cage, there is one member of the household who remains utterly fascinated with just watching it by the hour — Puff, the cat.

But I fear the one "trick" "Birdie" has mastered — opening the latch on the cage door — will be its undoing. I hope that one day I won't have to ask our taciturn bird, "What's the matter, the cat got your tongue?"

Another Battle To Win . . .

Polio and birth defects. Both can be killers. Both are cripplers.

At one time, no one talked or wrote about polio. Too horrible, too depressing. But then the National Foundation called on the American people to join in a partnership with science to eliminate this dread disease. How successful was that effort? Figures just released for 1964 reveal there were 119 cases of polio in the United States last year. Sixteen states and the District of Columbia had none at all! Compare that with 38,727 cases per year average for the years prior to the Salk vaccine!

Now the National Foundation has turned its attention to the national tragedy which cripples the minds and bodies of some 250,000 babies each year — birth defects.

Isn't it about time we gave anguished parents more comfort than just changing the subject when their birth defect children are mentioned? There is no valid reason to abandon all children born with birth defects to lives of invalidism.

The March of Dimes has established a network of 53 medical care centers where experts in birth defects are developing and perfecting advanced methods of treatment. The first of these centers came into existence here when the Birth Defects Special Treatment Center was established at Children's Hospital.

Dimes and dollars contributed to the March of Dimes this month can help speed the day when birth defects join polio on the roster of medical problems marked "solved."

Bishop Served Us Well

Bishop Clarence G. Issenmann, who will soon begin his new assignment as Coadjutor Bishop of Cleveland, will be remembered locally as a man of vision who built for today while he planned for tomorrow.

As leader of the 23-county Columbus Diocese and its 180,000 Catholics, Bishop Issenmann showed tireless devotion to the spiritual needs of his flock, the general welfare of the community and the establishment of an inter-faith spiritual communion.

There will be new challenges for Bishop Issenmann in Cleveland and new challenges for his successor in the Columbus Diocese. We wish God's blessing to both in the tasks before them.

An Editor's Outlook . . . by Jenkin Lloyd Jones

It's Time To Clamp Lid On Idiotic Aid

A few months ago units of the Atlantic fleet arrived at Rio de Janeiro. Some genius in our embassy dreamed up a great public relations gimmick. A volunteer crew of American sailors would go up into one of the "favelas," or slum communities that cling to the beautiful Rio mountains. The sailors would paint a few shacks. And a navy boilermaker would be sent to repair the leaky boiler in a Rio hospital.

Juarez

No charge, of course. Just good-will. Neighborliness.

Well, what the Communists did to this amateur performance was pathetic. "What," they asked the citizens of Rio, "can the Americans be up to? And how stupid do they think we are if they believe that we cannot see that there is a trick in this somewhere?"

And, sure enough, in a short time not only most of Rio, but also most of Brazil was asking, "What is the American trick?"

Now, where the embassy went wrong was in its failure to realize that nowhere does such altruism as painting a building or fixing a boiler free exist in the philosophy of the average Brazilian. To do these things a man must be either crazy or devious. And since the American sailors didn't look crazy their deviousness was easy to believe.

There are plenty of examples of idiotic foreign aid. Like the $23 million plastics plant we gave Yugoslavia at the dedication of which both Mr. Tito and Mr. Khrushchev made glowing speeches about this example of the triumph of socialism!

Or the $3 million air-conditioned yacht for Emperor Haile Selassie.

Or the TV sets for jungle villages with no electric power.

Or the shipment of "royal bee" sex rejuvenator for the Republic of China.

But it is a mistake to pick over bits of lint. Even if foreign aid were the greatest discovery since the tinder box, the passing out of about 100 billion American dollars would naturally include boo-boos. It is the philosophy, itself, we should re-examine.

Our aid program got started reasonably and wisely under the Marshall Plan. It was designed to rebuild the war-wrecked industrial economies of Europe and Japan, without which there would have been chaos, starvation and a probable Communist take-over.

But then the whole world, including nations which had not only sacrificed nothing in the war, but which had profited handsomely from it, began rattling the cup and our global charity got under way.

Mark Twain once made the cynical remark, "If you take in a homeless dog, feed him and make him prosperous, he will not bite you. This is the principal difference between a dog and a man."

There is some truth in this, as we have discovered. Nations hate to look upon themselves as mendicants. They like to imagine that they are giving something in return for what they are getting. And, in the case of American aid, rationalizations were not slow in coming, particularly since Communist propaganda helped all it could. Samples:

Americans are embarrassed by their food surplus. It costs them nothing to give it away.

Americans are contemptuous of other nations, and think they can buy their friendship.

Americans are trying to control other governments for their own selfish purposes, and aid is the Trojan horse.

So Phase Two followed. Foreign politicians, in an effort to prove to their people that they were not subservient to the Americans, began to make it a point to be critical of American policies.

This brought on Phase Three. The louder foreign statesmen yelled about the United States, the more foreign aid we rushed to them. You could get more American dollars by insulting Uncle Sam than by pumping his hand in gratitude.

And so we have come to Phase Four — blackmail. A recent issue of U.S. News and World Report asserts that the chief reason why American aid continues to Egypt after Mr. Nasser made no move to stop the burning of our libraries, refused to apologize for shooting down an American plane, and told our ambassador to jump in the Nile, is because we fear, if aid is cut off, Nasser will attack Israel.

Somebody ought to send the State Department a history of ancient Rome. When the Romans began paying peace tributes the end of the empire was near. For the savage chieftains milked the Roman treasury for all they could get and then invaded anyway.

Foreign aid has some uses. Our wheat can stave off starvation in India for a limited time. Technical assistance can help some backward countries increase their gross national products. But the lavish out-shoveling of American wealth to friends and enemies alike in the face of continued American balance of payments deficits, will not only not strengthen us in foreign affairs, but it will also wreck the dollar.

It's that simple and it's time for another look.

'THE GRIST'

Ground Out by Dusty Miller

"HONEST JOHN," in my early childhood, stood on a street corner and told a crowd of people what a great country they lived in, how intelligent they looked, and began his pitch with: "I'll tell you what I'm goin' to do."

"For the ridiculous price of 75 cents, I am goin' to sell you this regular $1 bottle of medicine, concocted from an old Indian recipe of roots and yarbs, guaranteed to remove warts and cure horse spavin, and a little dash of it in ma's flapjacks will send the whole family into orbit."

Dusty

And the yokels blitzed the passer to get in on the bargain.

In my late manhood "Honest John" told a vast crowd of people that he grew up in Texas, struck oil and went to town. Then came the pitch: "I propose (which is Texas talk for "I'll tell you what I'm goin' to do") to give you, absolutely free, as it is paid for with federal funds, this regular $1 bottle of socialized roots and yarbs, guaranteed to cure ignorance and poverty and assure the health and wealth of the masses (once referred to by rulers as "subjects") — and all y'all have to do is furnish the federal funds."

And "y'all" will tromp itself to death to get in on the bargain.

Guest Pulpit . .

Janus, an ancient Italian deity, was seen to preside over the year, and his own special month was January. He is presented in statues with two heads facing opposite ways, suggestive perhaps of vigilance — looking both before and behind.

Billington

At the turn of the year we would do well to look backward and forward. We must heed the exhortation to "look unto the rock whence ye are hewn" (Isa. 51:1) and also "forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before" (Phil. 3:13) we must press toward the mark.

Looking backward is encouraged by divinely appointed memorials. From the bed of the River Jordan 12 stones were set up as a symbol of the miraculous entry into the land of promise. Again we see the Lord's Supper as a memorial. The cross must be kept before us and the bread and wine effectively assist in this great purpose.

In our private experiences there also are landmarks of unusual manifestations of grace. The God of all comfort, the Saviour from sin, and the quickening Spirit then drew near. Knowing our God from the past, we are prepared to glorify Him in the future.

However, there is a solemn thought which impinges upon our minds. The past goes with us. We cannot escape its influence. Marley's ghost dragged the chain forged in life of "cash boxes, keys, padlocks, ledgers, deeds, and heavy purses wrought in steel." The habits formed yesterday are with us today; the past indulgences of the flesh leave present weakness in our physical and moral constitution.

Looking forward is essential for disciples of the One "who for the joy which was set before Him endured the cross. . ." (Heb. 12:3). The one who aims at nothing invariably hits it, but contrariwise the earnest purposefulness of a consecrated Christian ever should be apparent.

We need both a near goal and a distant goal but both, of course, must be in line. A near goal of attainable reach is able to attract our whole interest and immediate attention. A distant goal prevents the disillusion and frustration which come from pursuing an inadequate goal.

Yes, "dipping into the future as far as the eye can see" will be all the more significant as a result of our dipping into the past. But as the past has escaped, let us now seize the present and seek to actualize some of our earnest hopes. In the words of Longfellow: "look not mournfully to the past — it comes not back again; wisely improve the present — it is thine; go forth to meet the shadowy future without fear, and with a manly heart."

Frosting on the Cake

BY "UNCLE DOC" ROSS — U.S.A.

Every man "takes his own measure" in life. If he is born with one of the stoutest of souls, nothing ever throws him.

Ambition to be somebody and amount to something is a two-edged sword, however. It can be a great force for good, or become a monstrous psychological disease. That brings him to a great moment of decision. He may learn how to respect others and to be absolutely honest and become a balanced mind and personality. Or, he can become a "sharp shooter" and just as dangerous to society's good, as his native talents equip him for a life time of crookedness. He may become a great success as most of the world measures men, or he can build his own eventual destruction. The mills of the gods grind exceeding fine.

Most of us know talented and gifted and high powered individuals who are also most obnoxious. They are arrogant, insanely conceited, and get ahead by shoving and shouting and "throwing their weight around." Every city has instances of how just such a person reaped the whirlwind of public revulsion. Nine men out of ten who start right and stay balanced, make out in life and leave fond memories in the minds and hearts of those who knew them best.

Others who also become fabulously successful in this world's goods, are most abject failures in life solely because they gambled the fate of their souls on things instead of eternal verities.

Rejects Jones' Approach In Literary Crusade

To the Editor:

I would like to express a dissenting opinion on Jenkin Lloyd Jones' first column of the new year. The true America may not be reflected by the literary "cesspool," but Mr. Jones' basically negative approach is reflected quite well by Russ Sherman's letter of praise which suggests the solution of the problem by picketing the so-called "art" theaters.

The "cesspool" column does a fine job of reflecting the indignation shared by so many of us. Yet it offers no clear-cut example of an answer to the problem, nor does it even supply any real indication of the direction Mr. Jones believes the theater and movies can take. The author harks back to the past, but a revival of "Journey's End" could only last so long, and even "the greatest movie ever made" becomes a little tiring after we have seen it five or six times on television.

A Chinese proverb says, "It is better to light one candle than to curse the darkness." However, as Mr. Jones and his admirers adequately demonstrate, it is not only easier but more fun to curse the darkness. When we are able to curse the darkness and at the same time use words like "transvestites," "unbuttoned" and "pansies" we can eat our cake and have it, too: we can be aghast at the same filth we are reveling in.

Many of America's wilder publications use this very same approach — they deal in scrupulous detail with gory crimes and unspeakable perversions. They pretend to denounce the very thing that they use to build their circulation — man's interest in sex and violence. Would it be out of place to wonder what place this kind of stuff can have in a family newspaper?

If Mr. Jones is really concerned about the future of the movies and the theater, let him talk about the only thing that should count in the judgment of art — is it or is it not true? I would be the last to dispute the moral purpose of art, but art does not speak to man in the same way as a sermon. If a work of art tells the truth about sin, for instance — leaving in the degrading effects that evil can have on us — it is bound to have a positive moral effect on its audience. But neither a good movie nor a good sermon can deny the presence of evil in our world.

Pornography and pollyanna are both bad, because both leave out part of the truth; both give a distorted view of the world; both, in a word, lie. Mr. Jones seems to think that movies and the theater should be judged only by his principles of cleanliness. He apparently doesn't realize that a movie, for instance almost anything starring Rock Hudson and Doris Day, can be clean from his standpoint and yet appalling to anyone who takes films seriously.

Mr. Jones wants "a good cornball play." Considering the state of the American theater, all I want is a good play. There is no such thing as a good "cornball" play.

Ninth Grader Boosts Jones

(Letter addressed to Spectator columnist Jenkin Lloyd Jones.)

I am a ninth grader at Starling Junior High School and very interested in reading. I have worked in the school library for two years.

I just finished reading your editorial on how "True America Is Not Reflected By Literary 'Cesspool.'" I feel much the same as you do on this subject and truly feel that if more people felt this way America would be a much better place. I've read many books (including "Goodbye, Mr. Chips," which I loved) of all types, and sex is played up pretty big in most all of the latest books. I'm using your editorial in my newspaper scrapbook as an example of a "good editorial" which is an English assignment. Thank you for your time.

Cheryl Smith

'No Art In Cornball Play'

To the Editor:

Jenkin Lloyd Jones is right in many respects. However, he errs grossly in introducing art in relation to a "cornball play."

Such a play is not art.

Such a comparison is not valid.

Ted Beardshear

Reader 'Frosted' Over Uncle Doc's Words

To the Editor:

Like too many newspaper article signatures, "Uncle Doc" Ross, U.S.A., is a very indefinite name and address. It smacks of secrecy and lack of conviction when writers fail to fully identify themselves and newspapers do not require it to benefit readers.

"This old timer" asks Uncle Doc how any president can "be in too terrible a hurry" to banish the hoary injustices to our citizens with humanitarian and compassionate legislation such as adequate medical care for the elderly and educational opportunities for everyone.

Nothing worthwhile is free. President Johnson is interested in the general welfare of our country as promulgated in the Preamble of our Constitution. Uncle Doc knows this requires expenditure of our fabulous wealth for the benefit of all our citizens. He falsely calls this State Socialism as do all who deny the original concept of government of, for and by the people.

The AMA is the architect of government action for the aged. Never were the relations of doctor and patient more impersonal or less sacrosanct and private than today. With rare exceptions patients, regardless of their financial or physical ability, must seek medical attention outside the home for even minor afflictions at increasing cost. A limit to medical costs is necessary to the successful operation of any medical plan for the elderly.

Are doctors now educated to be served instead of serve?

Says Non-Riders Order Wasteful Bus Survey

To the Editor:

I noted in your paper that "Columbus City Council okays transit study."

It is an absolute waste of taxpayers' money.

A survey was taken several years ago and still our service is terrible. If I'm not mistaken the survey was taken during Mayor Sensenbrenner's first administration. Some council members also went to St. Louis to study their system. Approximately $10,000 was spent on that survey. If the city can throw money away, why do we need a city income tax?

It was suggested that we have a working man's pass and also a pass for school children. The recommendations weren't followed and now more money is to be wasted.

People who don't ride buses can't be familiar with the problem. It isn't funny to wait anywhere from 15 to 45 minutes for a bus, then have two come.

It seems as though our mayors and council members were afraid to demand and receive a better deal for the citizens of Columbus. The "10 Cent Shopper" proved profitable, so why isn't it continued? It could be used on Monday and Thursday evenings. It is easy for non-riders to say our transit service is good, but when one has to wait in the cold it is a different story.

A. R. Thomas

Challenges Viewpoint

To the Editor:

In view of Mr. Sprang's letter stating that he is against the Fair Bus Bill, as it is against his constitutional rights, I wonder if he also feels that school prayer is also against his constitutional rights.

Inasmuch as he signed his letter Protestants and Other Americans United for the Separation of Church and State, was he a proponent to have the school prayer eliminated from public schools because he felt that schools should not accept federal aid if God was mentioned in any way, shape or form?

It seems to me that this organization should tell what it stands FOR, and then tell what it stands AGAINST.

A perturbed taxpayer,

Under Buckeye Skies

By KEN MACK McCREARY

In Season . . .

Ken McCreary

And we were beginning to wonder if winter was going to bypass Spectator land this year! When ol' man Winter finally made his belated appearance late last week he certainly made up for all the lost time — and we who enjoy ice-fishing are among the few who are happy about the record-setting cold wave.

By last weekend a safe area of ice covered most of the ponds and some of the lakes, and even though a month late — ice-fishing season has arrived! Some of us rugged (or should that read stupid) ice-anglers have already taken that long-awaited first trip of the season; reports indicate that success is better than average — apparently the bone-chilling weather hasn't bothered the fish as much as the fishermen.

THIS WOULD have been an ideal time for our column on ice-fishing, which ran last month when winter was scheduled to arrive — ample proof of our forecasting prowess.

A couple points which we didn't mention in that premature rundown on angling through the ice: when you chop or auger that hole through the ice, be sure it doesn't go more than a foot across. State law calls for a maximum of 12 inches in diameter. Also, be exceedingly careful venturing onto ice covered with snow—a soft spot or thin ice could land you in some icy-cold trouble.

If you dress for it, this winter season is an ideal time to get outside and admire the picturesque beauty of Ohio's countryside. If you're a camera bug you can readily find some memorable landscapes to capture. This is also a fine time to take your youngsters afield for a fascinating adventure in tracking wildlife through the snow.

WHILE WINTER provides some excellent opportunities to enjoy the out-of-doors, it also furnishes the time for relaxing in front of an open fire and catching up on your reading.

This is the time when the first fishing tackle catalogs arrive —making spring seem more than just two months away. Also arriving in the mail this past week, a couple more forward-looking articles we feel are worth passing on to you.

The Sport Fishing Institute's monthly bulletin notes that the U. S. Interior Department has set up a committ to study "rare and endangered fish and wildlife of the U. S." We agree with the SFI folks that such a study can provide some valuable material aimed at preserving such species; however, we must also go along with the contention that at least one of the finny species on the committee's first list doesn't belong there.

IT'S THE Ohio Muskellunge — the musky which is a native prowler of such Ohio River tributaries as the Muskingum and Sunfish Creek and the same hardy battler successfully stocked in many Ohio lakes.

As the bulletin notes, and many Buckeye anglers will agree, the Ohio musky has furnished considerable sport fishing and hardly seems "endangered".

Another recent item in the mail is a tearsheet of an unusual advertisement running in several current outdoors magazines. The Uncle Josh Company, which makes pork rind baits, turns non-commerical with a full-page spread titled "Pollution Wears a Halo", pointing up the perils of the increasing pollution of our lakes and streams, and even telling anglers how to observe and report pollution.

We believe this is just one good example of a rising tide of public sentiment against pollution of our valuable [illegible].

* * *

Speaking of pollution, it looks like that case of alleged pollution of the Blacklick Creek by the Reynoldsburg sewage treatment plant isn't going to be quietly forgotten.

The situation (first brought to light in this newspaper) involves alleged dumping of raw pollutants into the stream while the sewage plant was undergoing some hectic growing pains.

The Ohio Division of Wildlife tells me that it will go to court, if necessary, to collect a bill for $113.06 for fish and aquatic life killed by the pollution. Reynoldsburg city officials are remaining equally firm in their claim that they don't have the responsibility, the money or the inclination to pay the tab.

Since this is the first time the wildlife people have taken action against a municipality, it shapes up as a precedent-setting case to keep your eye on.

Wit 'N' Wisdom

By JACK WITTENMEIER

Investment . . .

A good friend of mine was recently presented with his first son, compliments of the little woman.

His major problem this week is trying to decide whether to buy the kid a football or baseball glove.

Wittenmeier

Don't laugh! An Oklahoman named Mantle got his little son Mickey tossing a baseball at a tender age and the investment paid off today in the six-digit figures.

But don't you make the same boo-boo our friend is making. Teach your kid how to hit a golf ball!

The Firestone people (in promoting a new NBC-TV series beginning Jan. 30) tell us they've signed checks totaling $100,000 for Mr. Jack Nicklaus — payment for a few rounds around the Akron course.

Add this to Jack's regular PGA earnings (over $150 thou' in '64), toss in a few endorsements, exhibitions, etc., and you've got a one-man corporation for a son.

Maybe your kid won't be a Jack Nicklaus. The lowly third-placer in the Firestone series has to settle for $10,000.

But you say you want a football player in the family. Poor ole' Jimmy Brown, who has to run into the Sam Huffs, the Gino Marchettis and the Joe Schmidts each Sunday, picked up only $50,000 for the whole season in '64.

And Jimmy claims he can't last more than 11 years in the NFL. Too bad Jimmy can't play golf.

How about baseball? Willie Mays is always flirting around that $100,000 mark each year. But the turnover in center field, even for the "bigs," is greater than off the tee. Too bad Willie can't play golf.

When I was a kid my father bought me a bag of marbles. By the time I was 12, the cold realization that my abilities would fail to net me a fortune bitterly turned me to sports-writing.

Don't let it happen to your boy!

PLAY BALL DEPT — Ready baseball coach Bud Trapp is one mentor who isn't letting the large amount of white stuff put the damper on his spring diamond plans.

Trapp, who falls heir to a talented Knight nine this year, already has carded a 22-game schedule, opening Apr. 5 with South.

Women's AAU Championships Here July 1-3

The Columbus Jaycees are seeking sponsors for another "sporting first" for the capital city—the 1965 National AAU Women's and Girls' Track and Field Championships, set for Whetstone's all-weather track, July 1-3.

The meet, which will attract over 400 women and girls from all over the USA, will qualify winners for a competitive trip to Russia this year.

Featured in the "fleet 400" will be recent Olympic gold medal winners Edith McGuire and Wyomis Tyus and Columbus' high jump artist Estelle Baskerville.

Girls' trials will be staged July 1, girls' championships, July 2, and women's championships Saturday, July 3.

The Ohio Track Club's Jim Lorimer brought back the bid from a recent AAU convention in Houston to the local Jaycees.

The Jaycees will need sponsors for the final 25 events. According to the Jaycees' Jerry Snyder, the local event will mark the first time the championships have been staged on an all-weather track.

PRO BONO PUBLICA

Thousands of Franklin County people enjoy the facilities of the Columbus Public Library and are pleased by the courtesy of its people. New branches are opened and new services are inaugurated from time to time. But it all involves a deal of effort begun almost a century ago.

The Public Library and Reading Room of Columbus, O., was authorized under a city ordinance passed in 1872. It was opened in March, 1873, in the old City Hall on E. State-st, the one that burned in 1921. The [illegible] was changed in 1903 to its present form.

The home of the library at 96 S. Grant-av was completed in 1906 and was opened in April, 1907. Unofficially it was called the Carnegie Library to distinguish it from the Columbus Public Library which was also opened to the public at 46 E. Town-st until its roof fell down in 1911. Andrew Carnegie made a grant to the Columbus Public Library with the stipulation only that the legend "My Treasures Are Within" should appear on its front. But a great 400-year-old elm that stood at Wales-al, north of the building, was called the Carnegie Elm by Col. W. A. Taylor of The Columbus Citizen editorial staff. His poem about it appeared in 1904.

The Columbus Public Library was a division of the city government until 1934 when it qualified under Ohio's Taft library law giving all public libraries within a county support by an intangible tax on stocks and bonds. But under the Columbus charter and the ordinance of 1872 the mayor of Columbus still appoints the six-member board of trustees, three of whom must belong to each party.

It says here. . . .
The right to know implies the duty to learn.

National Legion Commander To Attend State Convention

Officers and members of the 24 American Legion posts in Franklin County will be present Saturday afternoon, Jan. 23, to greet Legion national commander Donald E. Johnson when he arrives at Port Columbus for his only scheduled visit to Ohio during his term of office. His slated arrival time is 4:12 p.m.

Legion and Legion Auxiliary members also will go to the Youth Center on the Ohio Exposition grounds for the state-wide winter Legion conference, opening at 10:30 a.m. Sunday, with national commander Johnson as one of three featured speakers.

Also on the program are U.S. Rep. Robert E. Secrest of Senecaville, member of the House Veterans Affairs Committee, and State Sen. Tennyson Guyer of Findlay, nationally known humorist and inspirational speaker.

The color guard of Southway Post 144, Columbus, will advance and retire the colors, and the Rev. Kenneth S. Learey, 2056 Inchcliff-rd, state Legion chaplain, will offer prayers.

Donald E. Johnson

Commander Johnson, who is a World War II veteran and a businessman at West Branch, Iowa, will be met at the airport by Ohio commander Vernon E. Allen, of Cleveland; national committeeman Alec J. Blair of Jackson, and state adjutant Joseph S. Deutschle of Columbus.

A State Highway Patrol detail will join in escorting him to his hotel.

FELLOW KIWANIANS
50 YEARS OF COMMUNITY SERVICE

Community 1915 — 1965 Service

This year marks the 50th anniversary of Kiwanis, one of the world's great service organizations, a phenomenon of the 20th century, and one of North America's most important contributions to free world culture.

At the time of the Golden Anniversary of Kiwanis International we can pause to reflect that a great idea - - - voluntary service to one's fellow man - - - has passed the half century mark.

Life Magazine has said: "Service clubs are an indispensable part, not of American politics, but of American self-government. By doing what needs to be done, they make it possible for America to maintain a system of strictly formal government. If the United States ever leaves a genuinely American imprint on international relations, the U. S. State Department will form but a fraction of the image. The U. S. registers itself accurately abroad through the actions of the free citizen and the voluntary organization."

From the beginning Kiwanis has been deeply concerned with youth. Today Kiwanis serves in many fields but youth is still its primary emphasis.

As members of Kiwanis and citizens of this fine community we join Kiwanians everywhere in celebrating this half century of service, proud of the record of the past, mindful of the challenge that lies ahead.

Lake Choctaw Developers Report Fifty Percent Sales On Total Lots

American Realty Service Corporation, developers of Lake Choctaw in Madison County, report over 50 percent of its total 1079 lots sold with only a dry lake basin to show its customers.

The sale of lots at Lake Choctaw opened May 1, 1964, and vice-president and manager Tom Boone reports entire blocks of water front and second-tier lots were often sold as fast as surveyors could mark off and record plats at the Madison County Courthouse.

An additional 200 lots will be opened for customer selection this spring when city folks and suburbanites alike begin thinking about a way to get away from it all.

Boone is confident the two-mile long, 275-acre lake will be filled by that time, making it easier for prospective buyers to realize the beauty and fun of owning a site at the private lake resort, located a half hour from Columbus and Springfield.

The developing firm put its $250,000 private water works into operation the first of the year and electric and telephone service are also available. Three new homeowners moved in as year 'round residents as soon as the water was turned on, and 14 other dwellings are under roof, most of which are completed and ready for occupancy as summer retreats.

Thirteen miles of roadways have been cleared and drainage ditches installed. The major roads will be blacktopped in the spring.

An estimated 90 acres are covered with water now and the spring thaws are expected to provide enough water to fill the lake for water skiing, fishing and swimming. An initial stock of fish has already been placed in the lake for resident angiers and Boone reports more will be placed in the lake as the water rises.

Skiers, bathers and fishermen will not find themselves getting in each other's way as special zones will be established and marked off for each of the favorite water sports.

The lake will have an average depth of 14 feet and an average width of 1,200 feet.

The main beach has already been prepared and a well-equipped playground has been fenced in for the safety of the youngsters. The playground fence has been constructed so that 18 inches of water will come into the lower end of the area for the benefit of toddler bathers.

Portions of 11 different farms make up the 1,000-acre development. An estimated one million cubic yards of earth were moved in preparing Lake Choctaw. The construction of the dam alone on Deer Creek required the moving of 170,000 cubic yards of earth.

Deer Creek will be the major source of water supply for the lake with George's Fork also draining into the private basin.

The Deer Creek drainage ratio above the headwaters of the lake is reported to be 60 to 1 acres, insuring adequate water flow to keep the water level high enough for summer fun.

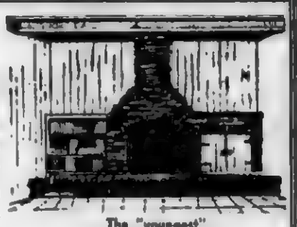
Boone estimates the project will bring in $30,000 in real estate taxes to Madison County in its early years and further estimates the development will probably be worth around $5 million at the end of the first five years of landscaping and construction.

PAUL F. WHITE, Bob White, Inc. (Oldsmobile), outgoing president, is presented with a distinguished service award on behalf of the Columbus Automobile Dealers Association by Edgar Planck, West Side Motors, Inc. (Dodge), past president of C.A.D.A.

New Officers Are Elected By Local Auto Dealers

Judge Dana Reynolds officiated at the swearing-in ceremony of new '65 officers elected by the Columbus Automobile Dealers Association.

The new officers are Dan Rohyans (Ford), president; George Byers, Jr. (Chrysler-Plymouth), vice-president; Don J. Cole, Columbus Motor Car Co. (Cadillac), treasurer; Robert Fergus, Midwestern Service and Sales (Volkswagen), secretary.



New directors elected were Norman Chesrown (Oldsmobile); Neil Rush (Mercury; John Trenor (Dodge); Ron Liggett (Reo trucks).

Holdover directors include Jack Haydocy (Pontiac); Harold Wood (Chrysler-Plymouth); Les Fishinger (Beasley Ford). John B. Barton is executive secretary of the association, which has offices at 209 S. High-st.

Bill Introduced To Aid Students, Urban Renewal

A bill designed to help the economy of Ohio has been introduced in the Ohio House of Representatives by Representatives Ralph Fisher, (R-Wooster), and Charles Mooney (D-Cuyahoga).

The bill would permit state chartered savings and loan associations to make loans to finance college education and to help local governments finance urban-renewal projects.

Fisher and Mooney said many local governments now have plans for urban renewal but lack funds. Their bill would permit savings and loans to help in this financing.

Federal chartered savings and loans now have authority to participate in urban renewal projects but these associations are waiting for the state to grant the same authority to state chartered companies so that in partnership they can assist in the proper development of such areas.

Federal associations also have been granted authority to make loans to students seeking higher education.

In addition, the Fisher-Mooney bill would permit state chartered savings and loans to invest in service corporations that provide automatic data processing facilities.

The bill carries an emergency clause to permit state associations to loan money to students planning to go to college in the next several months.

The bill is sponsored by the Ohio Savings and Loan League, the trade association representing some 570 federal and state associations.

Community Of Distinctive Homes Found In Minerva Park North

By CHARLES McDERMOTT
Spectator Business Editor

Columbus is a city proud of its fine communities, but there is one community through which even non-residents often drive and point with pride to the quietly elegant homes. It is beautiful Minerva Park North.

Here is a fine residential community with a unique Town and Country atmosphere. Here the noise and clatter of the city is lost in tranquil, winding lanes. Each home exudes the personality and atmosphere of a country estate yet this is a community of homes, created in a modern, new dimension.

It is a community which the future can only enhance, not change.

Adjoining it on the east is the new Minerva Park Swim and Tennis Club, and an elementary and future Junior High School. To the south is the 18-hole Minerva Park Golf Course and Club House. West is colorful Minerva Lake, excellent for fishing and ice skating. To the north is quick and easy access to State Route 161 and the Inter-change to U.S I-71.

Minerva Park North has been advertised as "The Address of Selective People," but it is more than this. It is a delightful community reflecting unmistakable good taste in the variety of home exteriors, in their setting, and of the builder and developer who added Minerva Park North to the local scene.

The builder and developer, Richard K. Slabaugh, is a graduate of Lake Forest Academy, the Sheffield School of Science at Yale University, and Ohio State University. His career in building commenced prior to World War II when he built many homes in Clintonville.

After the war he added the beauty and graceful design of custom homes in many areas. He built 100 homes in River Ridge in Arlington. In Arlington, too, he built 70 Blue Flame Homes. He built the Gas Company house in the Columbus Building for the Home Show in 1956. He developed 40 lots in Worthington Woods, 40 more in Grove City's High Meadows Addition.

He finished Wilson Hills, six homes in Worthington Hills, developed the Lindenberg Estates into Cambridge Village, built the Model Home in Sherwood Forest, and developed 420 lots in Walnut Village.

The career of Slabaugh is an incredible story of an indefatigable builder who loves to build, and with uncanny discernment leaves his signature of beauty and good taste on all he touches.

Slabaugh is president of R. K. Slabaugh, Realtor, with offices at 1084 E. Hudson-st.

Employed as land consultant by the Union Carbide Corporation, he helped acquire their land holdings in Columbus.

Presently, he is in the process of developing 300 acres for commercial apartments and office buildings on I-71 south of the Lazarus and Sears complex.

He is a member of the University Club, Press Club, Elks, and is director of the Worthington Hill Country Club. He is married to Yolanda, Pastor, of Plainville, and the couple has three daughters, One attends Ohio State University, the other two are at Andrews School for Girls in Willoughby, O.

Something Special!

To borrow from a famous company slogan: "Progress is our most important product."

See how true this is for Ohio. Be sure to look for The Spectator's outstanding 40-page Progress Edition next week. It is filled with valuable information about the social and business life that is contributing so much to Central Ohio's current boom.

Many extra copies have already been reserved, especially by larger business firms, to help "boost Central Ohio." Priced at 10 cents each, they may be ordered by calling BR. 4-1155, Circulation Dept.

Census Survey To Be Conducted

How many job opportunities for household help are there in the United States?

How many housekeepers, cooks, maids, day workers, baby sitters, gardeners or odd job men are needed?

A sample of households in this area will help to supply the answer when the U.S. Bureau of the Census conducts its monthly Current Population Survey during the week of Jan. 17.

Census interviewers who will visit families in this area include Joanne Miller and Kathleen White, both Columbus residents.

THIS IS HOW WLW-C Television's million dollar expansion program looks to an architect. You can see it for yourself, however, since the project is near completion at its Olentangy River-rd location.

WLW-C Nearing Completion Of Its Million Dollar Expansion Program

WLW-C's million dollar expansion project is approaching completion and will provide central Ohioans with improved programming and local production.

The project involves installation of local live programs equipment, improved lighting, two studios 40 by 60 feet, scenery for larger sets and visual aids to supplement the news programs and special features.

Half of the entire expenditure has been invested by the engineering department in electronic equipment such as color cameras, lighting facilities, video tape facilities and new instant-stop projectors.

The color cameras and projectors will mean a sharp increase over TV-4's present 55-hours a week in color.

The addition of another studio doubles the space used for telecasting live programs. The "Coffee Club" show has been using the new studio since its premiere the first week of this year.

Since both studios will be used for telecasting live programs, new scenery suitable for color have been included in the project. TV-4 will also expand the sets for the other live shows such as Dance-O-Rama, the Catholic Mass, the Six and Eleven O'clock Reports, and Farm Forecast.

The most up-to-date visual aids have been included and are now employed in all TV-4 local live programs.

The expansion project began Sept. 18, 1963, when Walter Bartlett, then general manager, announced that TV-4 would enlarge its physical plant from 14,000 to 35,000 sq. ft. Then the "wheels" began to turn.

In a ceremony at the TV 4 studios, Apr. 14, 1964, more than 40 dignitaries witnessed the symbolic "first" load of concrete being poured by John T. Murphy, president of the Crosley Broadcasting Corporation.

The half-way mark was reached July 31, 1964, as the outside wall was completed on the first floor. The concrete for the second story was poured the same week.

FOOD MARKETS THIS WEEK

Weekend Specials Can Help Trim Food Bill

THIS WEEK LOOK FOR:

Fruit—grapefruit, apples (Rome, Winesap), oranges.
Vegetables—carrots, broccoli, celery, new cabbage, lettuce.
Meat and Poultry—beef "specials," broiler-fryers, ground beef, wieners, pork shoulders, large eggs.

A few surveys and studies now verify what thrifty shoppers have thought was true for a long while—that buying the "specials" in the grocery store can make considerable savings in the food bill.

According to a study recently completed by the Economic Research Service of the U.S.D.A., it was found that if only the food stores in one immediate area, where shopped, including special items on sale and using care with other purchases, approximately six percent could be saved on a weekly food bill of $30.

Mrs. Franks

An additional saving was found possible if Mrs. Consumer concentrated on the lowest priced brands for all items. Then, the difference in her food bill by the end of the year could have saved her about $170. She could have had her savings and still have the same types of foods, though the brands and quality may have varied.

On checking prices twice a week in 30 stores, for one month the researchers found that meat, which accounts for one-third of the family's weekly food bill, was the item most frequently on sale. Chuck roast ranked first followed by frying chickens, ground beef and luncheon meats. Vegetables, dairy products, fats and oils, fruit and vegetable juices, fresh and canned fruits, coffee and soft drinks also were listed.

All of which can add up to a well-balanced diet if the homemaker uses ingenuity and her knowledge of nutrition in planning meals around the featured items. A home freezer helps in this undertaking. Often items may be bought when they are at special prices and frozen for future use.

WHY DO STORES HAVE SPECIALS

Is the quality the same? Yes, it may be. Store managers use specials as a merchandising tool to attract customers in order to provide the traffic necessary to sell, not only the specialized items, but also other groceries.

AND NOW a word of caution: Careful attention to advertisements is key to sucoresful shopping. Information may be obtained through newspaper, store displays, radio and television concerning the grade, size and price of various grocery items. With the information transformed into a shopping list, much time and money can be saved by eliminating unnecessary trips to the market.

The possible savings quoted here were found when the food stores in one immediate area were shopped. Obviously, it is important to avoid visiting many or widely separated stores as this takes time and transportation money. There is no economy if you spend 20 cents worth of gas in order to make a 10-cent saving on one item.

On U. S. Freeloading

A very pleasant fellow from the U.S. Treasury Department called on me this past week about a very unpleasant subject. At least the subject is unpleasant to me.

He was seeking FREE advertising for the department in the promotion of Savings Bonds.

Now I have nothing against savings bonds and really nothing against Uncle Sam except that it seems we have reached a sad state of affairs when our rich old uncle, who passes out our dough like mad all over the world comes around and asks for the free services when he wants an advertising program.

This same policy is true of recruiting and some others.

It would seem far more appropriate to get funds for this program by passing the hat in some of the satellite countries where we send aid so they can cuddle up a little closer to their communist friends.

And why ask our U.S. newspapers to raise money to carry on research to determine if fleas have freckles, or provide TV sets for jungle villages with no electric power, purchase a $3 million air-conditioned yacht for Emperor Haile Selassie, or send a shipment of "royal bee" sex rejuvenator for the Republic of China!

Ouch!

Flowers Of The Week

A nice Rosebud Floral piece to Stu Jones on his selection as the Junior Chamber of Commerce "Man of the Year." It couldn't have happened to a nicer guy. And a special tip of the chapeau to him on participating in so many extra-curricular activities. Young men who are willing to give of themselves to community service are a real asset. Good luck, Stu.

Wanted: Good Men

Two items of news this past week point up the need of a serious look at the structure of our city government.

Councilman Bob Southwick has stated he will not seek re-election and former Judge Robert Draper has stated he will not run.

Here are two good men who have shown their willingness to serve the public in elective offices. It is no surprise that these men should turn down the council post.

Columbus needs good men on council. But it is a difficult decision for a good man to make. The best business executives in the city are working under very difficult handicaps when they become members of the board of directors of this multi-million dollar corporation known as the city.

This community can point with pride to the operation of the multi-million dollar public school system. Here the board of directors sits as a policy-making body and has the program carried out through executive direction similar to that of large corporate business firms.

Columbus city government is asking too much of council members. It is too much of a risk and too much of a time taker.

Cap Master Plan Is Readied

On Wednesday, Feb. 3, Capital University administrators will unveil a newly formulated Campus Master Plan, delineating future building expansion, projected geographical boundaries, and anticipated enrollment statistics.

Since 1959, Capital has spent some $3,167,000 on buildings in the E. Mound-st area alone, in the location of which could quite properly be labeled the "New Campus," as opposed to the structures located between E. Main-st and E. Mound-st.

The tri-million dollar figure averages out to over $½-million a year spent to provide housing for learning and living.

Nor does the figure include the $1.7 million for Capital's recently proposed Campus Center, nor the $450,000 to be expended for another dormitory. Neither does the figure include an additional $1.5 million devoted to renovation projects, most of them designed to up the status of interiors of "Old Campus" buildings.

A breakdown of the construction during the six-year period:

Bexley Hall, which provides music facilities for practice, instruction and performance: $350,000; dedicated in spring, 1959.

Schoedinger Hall, housing for 75 women students: $296,000; dedicated in autumn, 1959.

Huber Hall of Fine Arts, which provides facilities for painting, ceramics and handicraft, and also includes a display salon: $222,000; dedicated in autumn, 1950.

Spielman Hall of Speech, with facilities for forensics, dramatics, radio and television work: $230,000; dedicated in autumn, 1959.

Setterlin Hall, housing for 77 women students: $309,000; dedicated in autumn, 1960.

Lohman Hall, social and administrative unit of the residence hall for women: $230,000; dedicated in autumn, 1960.

Schaaf Hall, housing for 102 upperclassmen: $450,000; dedicated in autumn, 1962.

Yochum Hall, which provides facilities for administrative offices: $675,000; dedicated in autumn, 1964.

Un-named dormiory, housing for 108 women: $450,000; dedicated in autumn, 1964.

(One other item not included is the construction of the president's home at a cost of $75,000; dedicated in early spring, 1962.)

In six years, Capital's enrollment figures have jumped 15 per cent, from 1322 attendance in 1959 to 1555 in 1964.

SNOW! BEAUTIFUL SNOW . . .

Just as area residents started to enjoy the beauty of winter, the snow left — almost as quickly as it came. Cheryl Dague, 169 Beechcreek-dr, was all set to throw a snowball or two (top photo) but she had to work fast. A balmy warm spell hit Columbus and melted most of it. And, according to officials at the U.S. Weather Bureau there's no more due for awhile. They do predict rain, however, this week.

SATURDAY SKULL SESSION ENDS IN PICKING COLLINGWOOD SEWER PROJECT

Relief Sewer Project Tops Whitehall's 'Must Do' List

Whitehall lawmakers put their legislative heads together Saturday morning to select the No. 1 capital improvement project for that city and came up with the Collingwood relief sewer.

The joint Service and Finance committee meeting, attended by Whitehall councilmen and Mayor William Holzhause, picked the sewer project with an eye to the future and possible industrial development.

Spearheaded by Service Committee Chairman Loren Mason, the project is expected to cost it the neighborhood of $150,000 and will alleviate the need to install septic tanks along E. Broad-st.

There are about six projects on the "must do" list for Whitehall. However, lack of funds is preventing the completion of most of them.

Work on the Collingwood sewer is expected to begin this spring and Mason is currently preparing legislation for council's approval next Tuesday.

Along with the Collingwood project, sewer work will be done on Shady Lane and Westphal-avs.

Commenting on the decision, councilman Raymond Shipley theorized that the sewer was needed "in order to entice industry." He added that the city would have a "heck of a time bringing new industry into future E. Broad-st development if septic tanks were needed.

Other major projects for the future include the lengthening of Elm-rd from Hamilton-rd to Country Club-rd and extending Langley-av; 80 feet of sidewalks on E. Mound-st (behind Main Lanes Bowling) is another future target.

'No Park' Rules Irk Merchants

Bexley's provision for allowing trucks to park 30 minutes in the city's no parking zones while making deliveries, was pondered by council Tuesday night.

Councilmen considered Mayor William Schneider's report that some truck drivers took advantage of the privilege by parking for the full half-hour when their business could be concluded in a shorter time.

Business firms in the Drexel-Main area also protested that the loss of three parking spaces on Drexel, recently eliminated by council to establish a turn lane, accounted for a substantial loss of business.

This space, they pointed out through their representative, was now being used by trucks using the 30-minute loading privilege.

Council took under advisement their request that the parking ban remain during peak traffic hours, but the area be made available for limited, 15-minute parking by customers during business hours.

Gene Vernon, representative of Columbia Gas Co., discussed renewal of the city's gas contract, due to expire Mar. 16.

The proposed new contract's base rate, .0083 cent per 1000 cubic feet higher than Columbus' rate, was strongly protested by council.

Vernon explained that the higher rate was due to increased cost of gas over cost of the fuel when Columbus' contract was negotiated last year. Columbus' contract was signed in November.

Councilmen made clear their feelings that Bexley residents should not be expected to pay more for the same service that residents of Columbus' outlying areas were charged.

Vernon will return at council's next meeting.

City Gets Deed For New Park

Columbus City Council Monday night accepted the deed for a 34.7-acre tract of land on the southwest corner of Refugee-rd and Hamilton-rd, as the site for a new park.

The land was a gift to the city from F & R Lazarus Federated Stores.

Council also passed a resolution providing for the construction of cement sidewalks and driveway approaches on the east side of James-rd, from E. Main-st to Livingston-av.

Two rezoning requests were also approved, for a parcel of land on the west side of Hamilton-rd north of Livingston for extension of the shopping center, and three lots the southeast corner of Livingston-av at Gratton-rd to permit construction of a real estate office.

In other action, council authorized the Recreation Department to burn cut trees and brush on the site of the planned golf course of Hamilton-rd, near Port Columbus.

WHITEHALL SOPHOMORE Sharon Nicholson looks over national scholastic publication "Science World" which ran a report of her "microclimate" study. With her is her science teacher, Robert Madaffer, who says that the 14-year-old girl is one of the few persons ever to study temperature variations close to the earth's surface.

14-YEAR-OLD SHARON NICHOLSON

Climate Study Reaps National Recognition For Whitehaller

By JOHN AUBLE, JR.

Everybody talks about the weather but a 14-year-old Whitehall sophomore is doing something about it and gaining national recognition for herself at the same time.

She's winsome Sharon Nicholson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Nicholson, 483 Beaver-av, who has spent most of the last 11-months studying weather in a "down-to-earth" manner that's impressing the experts.

Actually, "down-to-earth" is an unscientific description of "microclimates," the study of which recently earned Sharon a two-page lay-out in the national scholastic magazine "Science World."

Basically, her microclimate study showed that temperatures varied greatly at different intervals close to the ground. Weathermen usually take readings above six-feet when actually Sharon says, she noted a 13-degree change between the temperature at the earth's surface and a mere one-inch above it.

She says a constant exchange of heat energy between the ground and the air above it causes the variations and her Whitehall science teacher, Robert Madaffer, says the practical applications of her finding are numerous.

"For instance," he pointed out, "it will aid us in crop production, to say nothing of its affect on our own personal health."

Besides the national magazine recognition, Sharon's 11-month study has reaped a speaking engagement at the Ohio Science Youth and Senior Science and Humanities Symposium Feb. 12-14 at the Ohio State Fairgrounds.

She's also won several "superiors" at district and state science fairs with her microclimate display.

But it's not ending there. Sharon's mapped out a "20-point program" she hopes to pursue in finding out more about the climate in which man and animals live. Much of this work will involve the study of variations in north and south facing slopes.

Although a straight "A" science student, Sharon doesn't confine her activities to this field. She's an accomplished saxophonist and has been offered a Columbus Art School scholarship.

Girl Scout Cookie Sale Begins Friday, Feb. 5

It's Girl Scout Cookie Time!

The Seal of Ohio Girl Scout Council's 1965 Cookie Sale will begin Friday, Feb. 5 and continue through Feb. 13, Mrs. Harold Fetter, 6302 Brauning-rd, Reynoldsburg, announced today.

Theme for the sale will be "Cookies with a Promise."

"And proceeds from the cookie sale will 'keep their promise,'" Mrs. Fetter said. "Annually cookie sale receipts help meet expenses for Council-wide camping programs, thus broadening the program available to approximately 20,000 girls in 10 mid-Ohio Counties."

The Council owns and/or operates 18 camp sites. Nearly 10,000 girls participated in Council day and established camp programs in 1964.

"Scout troops-Junior, Cadettes and Seniors — directly share in the profits from cookie sale, too," Mrs. Fetter explained. These funds help girls themselves develop troop programs which provide fun, learning and adventure. For safety reasons Brownie Girl Scouts do not sell cookies.

The Seal of Ohio Council includes Girl Scouts in Delaware, Fairfield, Fayette, Franklin, Highland, Hocking, Madison, Pickaway, Ross and Union Counties.

Mrs. Edwin Pitcock, 6311 Brauning-dr, Reynoldsburg, is product sales chairman for District V. She will be assisted by the following neighborhood chairmen: Mrs. Tony Moras, 87 N. Merkle, Bexley; Mrs. Edward Swann, 3186 E. 12th-av; Mrs. Clarence Frank, 1566 Simpson-dr, Shady Lane; Mrs. Arthur Hall, 3765 Gilroy-av, Turkey Run; Mrs. Bernard Templeton, 1572 S. Roosevelt-rd, Twin Lakes; Mrs. W. A. Wiewall, 3293 Penfield-rd, and Mrs. Clyde Cross, 5725 S. Waverly-st, Whitehall.

Bishop Says Last Mass In Columbus

Bishop Clarence Issenmann will celebrate his last Columbus mass this afternoon (Jan. 28) at St. Joseph Cathedral, before his departure to Cleveland where he will be installed Feb. 2.

Issenmann

After serving seven years as head of the 23-county Diocese of Columbus, Bishop Issenmann was feted by more than 500 persons at the Jan. 24 reception at St. Francis DeSales High School.

Accomplishments of the bishop cited by Charles Chapman, Portsmouth, DCCM president, were: building schools, churches, religious facilities and new programs. Mrs. William Langley, DCCW president, expressed thanks for his leadership during great church events such as the Vatican Council, the ecumenical movement and changes in the liturgy.

Succeeding the bishop, since his appointment as Coadjutor Bishop of the Cleveland Diocese, is the Most Rev. John J. Carberry, Lafayette, Ind. He will be known as the bishop-elect until he is formally installed sometime in February or early March.

PERFUME AND THE SPACE PROGRAM!
Strange as it may seem there is evidence that the race for space has invaded even the field of perfumery. Realizing how odor influences human beings, the space agency is seeking to change odor characteristics of space ships. Perfumers agree that the "zero odor level" or no odor does not produce a fresh air effect, nor a pleasant environment for human beings. They are also aware of how different the same odor can smell under different atmospheric conditions. Well, girls, I guess the problem of which perfume each of us should select for ourselves, is not so trivial after all!

000,000,000 POUNDS OF BATH SOAP
$350,000,000 was spent by Americans on toilet soaps last year. Luxury is almost a necessity in our country today. 95% of the population use toilet soap and more than a few of them use a luxury cake costing $1 and $3 a piece. For the most part all firms with fragrance products now make the basic scents available in bath products. Special shampoos have been accepted as necessary expenditures. Few of our women are satisfied to wash their hair with a cake of soap anymore. Hairdressers have led the way in this mass education and their findings have been proven many times over. In spite of the fact that more women than ever expose their hair to permanent wave lotions and color products, the average head of hair is far more beautiful and healthier than the old days of once a month shampooing with harsh soaps. Also salon shampooing is apt to be less vigorous but much better for the hair and scalp than individual bathroom efforts.

Hadassah Patron's Party Features World Traveler

Joseph Horwitz, of Cleveland, will be the guests of Hadassah, Thursday, Feb. 4. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nutis of 2790 Dale-av, will be hosts for this first patron's party. All members who have pledged a minimum of $50 to the donor, are invited to attend with their husbands, at no additional charge.

An inveterate world traveler, Horwitz has made four trips to the European continent, including visits to the Soviet Union and Poland, and has toured Israel and South Africa. Horwitz illustrates his talks, which cover each country he has visited, with his own color films. He has a travel library of 14,000 feet of 16 mm color movies which he plans eventually to develop into an educational documentary film.

His trips through Europe and the Middle East have helped him further one of his most rewarding interests — the collection of antique Jewish ceremonial art. Many of the valuable articles which Mr. Horwitz has gathered have been loaned to various institutes and are on display at Temple Israel in Miami, Fla., and the Mansion Museum of Oglebay Institute in Wheeling, W.Va., and the Klutznick Exhibit Hall, B'nai B'rith Institute, Washington, D.C.

Dr. Benjamin W. Abramson, physician, veteran Zionist leader, and Hebraist scholar will be the fourth speaker in Hadassah's monthly Monday evening discussion groups on the topic "The Modern American Jew—His Origin, His Institutions and Religious Groupings." There will be a discussion period after Dr. Abramson's talk, which will begin at 8:15 p.m., at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Jack Marks of 217 S. Harding-rd, on Monday, Feb. 8. A social hour will follow the discussion period.

Test Your Kids With Public Opinion Polls

By ADELINE DALEY

With public opinion polls being so widely published in newspapers and magazines, I have found myself polling my kids continually and analyzing the results every time I ask them routine questions. I don't know what I'm trying to prove, but a typical survey produced the following results:

What are you going to wear to school tomorrow?
Same thing I always wear 14%
I don't go to school 14%
Undecided 72%

A cross-section of those leaving for school were asked three minutes before departure if they knew where all of their books and homework papers were located:
Yes 17%
Don't know 83%

Do you think you receive enough spending money?
Yes, parents are greatest philanthropists since Andrew Carnegie 58%
Too slow with dollar 28%
Rather not say 14%

Of the 58% of those who replied in the affirmative, the group was broken down into the following classifications:
Cannot count too well 75%
Had just asked for ice cream money 25%

Whose turn is it to do the dishes tonight?
Patrice's turn 77%
Elaine's 63%
Kathy's 56%
Let 'em soak 28%
Others 72%
(Totals more than 100% because more than one answer given.)

How do you evaluate the phone calls received in this household this past week?
Urgent, hadn't talked to friend in more than an hour 80%
Important, had to get homework assignment...18%
Not too important, long distance call for Dad .. 1%

Combined Effort Is The Key To Mass Transportation

By FRANK RYAN

Mass transportation for the greater Columbus area is not a question of whether or not we have a bus company. Life in "Megalopolis" is not that simple. Discussions with area officials show the following conclusion:

If for no other reason than sheer, desperate necessity, the "dreamers" and "doers" will someday combine their talents and mass transportation will be a reality. But this will not happen until the "core" city and the satellite communities admit that they need each other.

Heres what the experts say:

The mass transit problem can hardly be discussed in terms of Columbus alone. Most residents within Columbus can reach the downtown area in a maximum of 15 to 20 minutes. They really don't need much more than a "bus company" and taxis to meet the needs of those who can't or don't want to drive.

But what of the Columbus work force which travels from the suburbs? It is becoming more apparent every day that highway construction alone will never catch up with traffic demands. Costs of building additional freeways and expressways in place of developing a mass transit system would be prohibitive. More important, it just would't make sense, highway and transit experts say.

There is much talk now about developing a mass transit system which would include rapid transit service between Columbus and the satellite communities. One thought is to add a 20-foot "rapid" bus lane to the West Freeway when that facility is constructed. Planners will probably study existing expressways to determine if addition of "rapid" lanes is economically sound.

Another plan would use railroad rights-of-way for rapid transit service. And there is thought being given to eventual use of monorail service. Any and all of these alternatives are worth study, the experts say. But planners and administrators at both the city and county levels admit that there is little hope of accomplishment from any single direction.

Columbus officials are working towards possible creation of a Transit Authority which could operate a mass transit system. The Franklin County Blue Plan organization is "tooling up" for a detailed study of the mass transit problem as it affects the Greater Columbus area. And officials of the suburbs want better inter-city mass transportation.

When these three public groups can sit together and match their needs and desires against their common problems, a workable mass transportation program will begin to take shape.

But the "sands of time" are running out on a decision.

In less than 18 months the Columbus Transit Company will cease to operate as a subsidiary of the Columbus & Southern Ohio Electric Co. The impending loss of CTC has spurred the city to plan for the possible take-over of transit service.

A citizens committee study has revealed that public ownership of transit service is now the trend in metropolitan areas. Governmental ownership exempts transit companies from many of the taxes which must be paid by private enterprise. Thus, assuming sound business management, a public transit authority could improve service without increasing costs to those who use the transit system.

But there is a hitch. In effect, the various tax exemptions under public ownership could be termed at least an indirect subsidy of the transit operation. The public transit company's gain is at the expense of several public tax funds. This factor and the almost certain application for federal financial aid under a publicly owned transit system should gain the thoughtful interest of all area residents — not just those in Columbus.

Competent testimony has adjudged the existing CTC operation as an excellent one —particularly in view of the various tax disadvantages. It might be that the present management team would be kept under the proposed "Transit Authority" plan. It seems evident that the days of a privately-owned and operated transit system for the Columbus area are numbered.

It is even more evident that the year 1965 must show some meaningful progress towards shaping the area's transportation future. The situation right now is serious but hopeful. Another year of stalemate could create a chaotic condition and lead to costly, patchwork measures.

Whitehall GOP May Primary Features Father-Son Team

Two new features have been added to the Whitehall GOP primary race—the first father-son combination to seek elective office and the youngest resident on the city's ballot.

The Republican candidates for nomination are Ray Shipley, 4077 Powell-av, and his 21-year-old son, Larry Shipley, 4227 Rickenbacker-av. The elder Shipley will seek re-election as councilman-at-large. He is a veteran of Whitehall politics, having served four consecutive terms on council.

Larry Shipley

The younger member of the Shipley team will have much the tougher assignment of the two. He will challenge veteran treasurer Francis (Red) Schaeffer. Larry Shipley is a 1961 graduate of West High School and attended Ohio State University. He is assistant to the production manager at Bonney Floyd Co.

Siemer Takes Dim View Of Combining City Jobs

Just when Whitehall officials were feeling twinges of austerity over an ordinance combining the jobs of auditor and tax commissioner into one elected position, Council President Walter Siemer caused second thoughts.

As Siemer sees it, tax collecting is "an art in itself, getting money out of these people" and he feels that combining the jobs will result in Whitehall's getting a bookkeeping-type auditor with little money-gathering finesse.

Whitehall's current tax commisioner, Irvin Beck, was lauded for his ability to collect back monies and Siemer feels that such talent won't be found in an elected auditor.

"And," he says, "four years is a long time to have an auditor who doesn't reap back debts."

Siemer's plan is for leaving things as they are or, at best, have the auditor appointed by the mayor and subject to dismissal at any time if he doesn't produce.

New Hangar Will Be Built

A $750,000 hangar and office facility is being planned at Port Columbus by Executive Jet Airways, according to a repor tpresented to the Airport Commission last week.

Phillip F. Lovett, general manager of the firm, outlined the proposal and told the commission it will need a site for its development.

Presumably, the structure will be along the main runway, west of the present Lane Aviation facilities.

The building may be completed by the end of the year, Lovett said.

3-Year-Old Leak Found

A leak in a 42-inch water main — which has been causing headaches for East Siders for the last three years — has been discovered and repair work is in progress.

The leak was discovered last Friday when water bubbled to the surface of Stelzer-rd, just north of Fifth-av.

General Construction Co. is completing the repairs, according to assistant water superintendent Robert C. Parkinson.

A record total of 5.3 million students enrolled this fall in the nation's colleges and universities, an increase of 10.8 percent, the U. S. Office of Education reported. Predictions are that the increase next year will be just as great.

Whitehall-Yearling High School

RAM-blings

By SARAH WINGO

The Travelers Four will represent Whitehall at a city-wide hootenanny, Jan. 30, at 8 p.m. Sue Gradwohl, Kathy Stuphen, Darryl Bojanowski and Kenny George compose the folk-singing group.

The hootenanny is sponsored by Y-Teens. Tickets may be bought from any Y-Teen member for $1. No tickets will be sold at the door. Paula Levine is president of the Whitehall chapter.

Y-Teens also sponsored the Teenage Program for the March of Dimes. Whitehall Yearling students collected $432.50. This was the fourth largest sum brought in from schools in the area which participated in the program.

Class winners of the American Legion government test given in December have been announced. Senior winners are Edgar Lakey and Pat Dearth. Top scoring juniors are Teri Hiatt and Tom Tyson.

Leading the sophomores are Margaret Rosky and Stan Finklestein. Freshmen are Marlene Marlown and Tim Newell. These winners have been given certificates and they are now eligible to compete in the state contest.

It's election time at Whitehall-Yearling. The top officers of the school, president and vice-president of the student body, were elected.

Election procedures began Monday, Jan. 11, with the releasing of petitions to those seeking candidacy. Each candidate was required to have five faculty members and 25 fellow students sign the petition.

Other qualifications included a "B" grade average and a good citizenship record. The deadline for filing petitions was Friday, Jan. 15.

The following Monday, Jan. 18, the campaigning began. It seemed as exciting as a national presidential campaign. The halls were afloat with campaign banners, and students sported campaign pins.

Feeling for the three candidates — Rick Foltz, Rhonda Hopkins and Ernie Peters — ran high as students discussed who was the better "man."

Strongly behind each candidate was his campaign manager: Teri Hiatt for Rick, Linda Ray for Rhonda and Ralph Leeseberg for Ernie.

Tuesday and Wednesday were registration days. Only those persons who had registered were allowed to vote. The American government classes took care of registration procedures, with two students from each government class officiating at the registration booths.

Thursday the excitement reached a peak with a political rally in the gym during the lunch hours. The rally featured campaign speeches, demonstrations and all the other activities which accompany such a gathering.

Friday, the last day of the election week, was the day to vote. All the campaigning had stopped — all the signs had disappeared and the pins were no longer in evidence. After the noisy campaigning, the halls seemed silent.

The only noises of election-time that were left were pleading cries asking "Have you voted yet?" Sixty-six per cent of the student body registered and voted.

After school Friday the votes were tabulated. Candidates were invited to observe. Ernie Peters was hailed as victor, with Rick Foltz fighting a close second.

These boys will serve a term of one year beginning in February as president and vice-president of Student Council.

DON'T FORGET!

Tonight (Thursday) there will be a donkey basketball game in Whitehall's gym. The junior class, which is sponsoring the affair, guarantees a million laughs. Could you use some?

RICK KOCKS, junior class president, lines up a practice shot for tonight's donkey basketball game in the Whitehall-Yearling gym. The donkey is a product of Rick's imagination, and will not appear at the game.

A CHECK SEALED THE DEAL

THE COFFERS OF THE English Club of East High were swollen when James L. Riggin, 4210 E. Broad-st, vice-president of Eastern Civitan, presented Myran Lewis, 1606 E. Long-st, with the check representing the profits made on Civitan fruit cakes sold by the club members. From the left are Michael Rosen, 2978 Janet Circle, of Eastern Civitan; Kent Schoolfield, 1460 E. Long, vice-president of the English Club; Riggin; Myran, club president; D. E. Wiley, East principal, and Mrs. Elizabeth Miller, faculty advisor to the student organization. Mrs. Miller explained that the English Club, with membership limited to juniors and seniors with at least a C average, is the cultural activity within the high school which promotes interest in arts, supports the drama and music departments and seeks generally to introduce students to the less prosaic side of life.

E-M Upset At W-R? Rams Meet Urbana

The rat-race City League cage chase, with four crucial games left and four different teams sharing the top rung with 6-1 slates, could prove interesting before its all over.

Previously undefeated Eastmoor was 6-0 last week before West applied a stunning 71-69 setback that gave the Cowboys, Linden and South a share of the top spot with E-M.

THE GAME was tied 10 different times before Jerry Francis dribbled in close and shoveled a pass into mate Steve Barnard who popped in a short turn-around for the clincher, nullifying fine point efforts by big Steve Howell (21), Jerry Groves and Gary Cochran (17 each) of the Warriors.

Bill Courtney's club, now 9-2 overall, treks to neighboring Walnut Ridge (2-10) tomorrow night for a rivalry-packed scrap with the fast-improving Scots of Jackie Moore.

Geary Bradley's Hartley quint, now 10-2 after a pair of weekend wins over DeSales (55-53) and Fremont St. Joe (71-54), kept pace at CCL heim with a perfect 6-0 ticket, one game ahead of Watterson.

THE HERO in the DeSales contest was guard Steve McGrew who meshed two clutch charities late in the game after the Stallions elected to freeze for the good shot.

Tom Schlager's 17, and 11 each by Frank Tafoya and Doug Parker led the Stallion triumph while the latter two each marked 20 to go along with Dave Thomas' 15 against Fremont.

The well-coached Hawks visit St. Charles (4-8) tomorrow evening and journey to Mansfield St. Peter on Saturday.

Earl Davis hit 14 for East in his first start after gaining eligibility status to go along with 20 more by improving John Lewis as Bob Hart's tainted Tigers romped to an 86-70 win over Whetstone, giving the Bengals an 8-2 mark overall and 5-2 in the City.

The fast-breaking Tigers travel to Brookhaven (4-8) tomorrow night for a big circuit match.

WHITEHALL, true to "Fearless" in the upset column, downed CBL toughie Arlington 62-61 in a hair-raising overtime session that was set up by guard Mark Blackstone's crucial free throws and won by Bud Ramsey's one-pointer with six seconds left in the fifth period. Gary Beckley and Blackstone led the win with 19 apiece.

Worthington got away with a 50-41 nod Saturday as the Rams lost a fine effort by Beckley (12) in the shuffle that left Whitehall 6-7 overall.

Phil Allen's combo entertains league-leading Urbana (13-0) tomorrow night, still mindful of the Ram's big upset a year ago.

AQUINAS wiped out Walnut Ridge 78-49 on Friday with a big 22-point third period, nixing a fine board and 15-point night by hustler Pat Beveridge.

The Scots (1-6 in the City) have a big intra-neighborhood match tomorrow night with front-running Eastmoor.

Urbana snowed Bexley, 84-47, holding a 30-point edge for most of the last two quarters, despite 14 digits by driving Robin Wells of the Lions.

The Bexley five (4-8) hosts Grandview (5-7) tomorrow night and Bill Burchfield (16.4).

St. Charles bowed to Watterson, 69-56, although Tim Rooney (19), Joe Van Balen (13) and Joe DiCesare (11) sparkled in defeat for Dick Geyer's Cards (4-8).

ACADEMY (6-5) divided two contests over the weekend, falling to Reynoldsburg 75-66, and winning over Rosary 70-59. Pete Bigelow's 23, Terry Larrimer's 17 and George Fulford's 12 paced the Raider setback while Larrimer's 22, Bigelow's 18, Joe Lanman's 16 and Fulford's 10 paced the Viking win over Rosary.

HAWK WRESTLERS SEEK WIN STRING

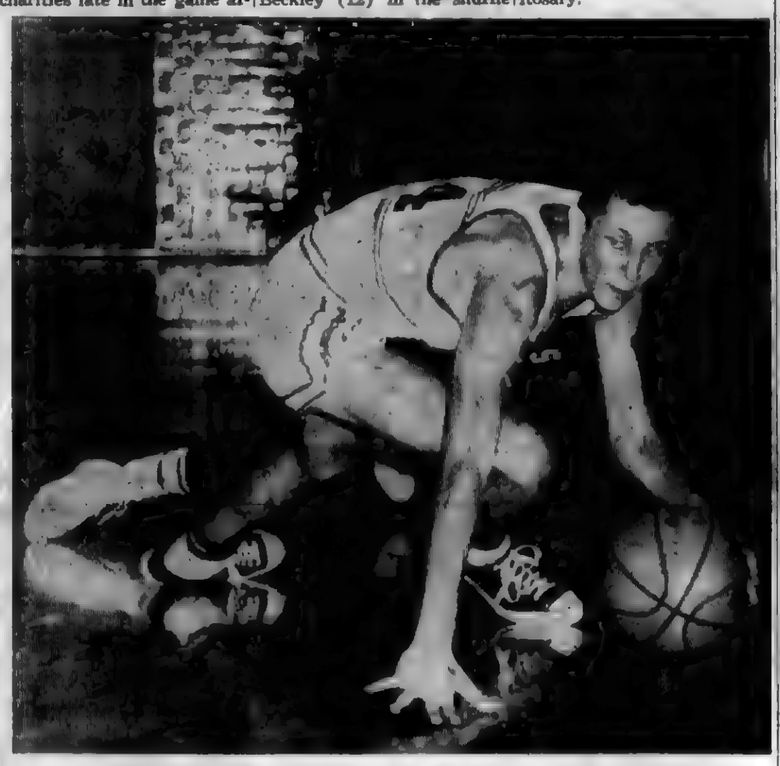
Rosary Coach Prefers A 'Groce' Like Jimmy

By LARRY OHARRA

Rosary's first-year basketball coach, Steve French, feels he has a diamond in the rough in 6' All-Franklin County League guard Jim Groce, the FCL's leading scorer to date and the chief weapon in the Crusaders' offensive attack.

Groce, an all-league forward a year ago when he ranked among the top 12 scorers in Greater Franklin County, was converted to a backcourt starter this season by French to utilize his passing and shooting prowess from the outside.



FRENCH, a former Rosary Jim's roundball success to "except whiz himself, attributes exceptional timing." Jumpin' Jim, a high C academic student, currently sports a healthy 18.3 scoring mark per game and also leads the team centile) and free throw (75 percent) shooting departments.

"His timing is exceptional," credits French. "This fact is born out in the rebounding statistics where Jim gets around 10 each game although he plays in the back court."

Steve feels that Groce, a 'marked man' every time out by the enemy defense, is "definitely a small college prospect and one of the better guards in Class A in the area." The "rookie" Rosary mentor is likely to be supported by his fellow FCL mentors on that last phrase.

ROSARY COACH Steve French reviews pre-game strategy with his versatile backcourt star, Jim Groce, who leads the Crusaders in almost every statistical department this year, averaging just over 18 points per outing.

AWAITING GUN?—Eastmoor cager Doug Cromer might be waiting for the gun for the start of the 220 if he didn't have that basketball. Cromer's three-point breakaway from West's Jim Bell came late in the game as Warriors battled to maintain a lonesome perch atop CL standings. Final gun and Cowboys beat Eastmoor to the wire, 71-69. A-W, Jacobs In Showdown Cliff Marvin's American Welding five eked out their 11th straight win of the current season, a narrow 92-90 nod over Hilltop Van that gave A-W undisputed possession of first place in the Monte Beaver League (10-1 for two rounds.

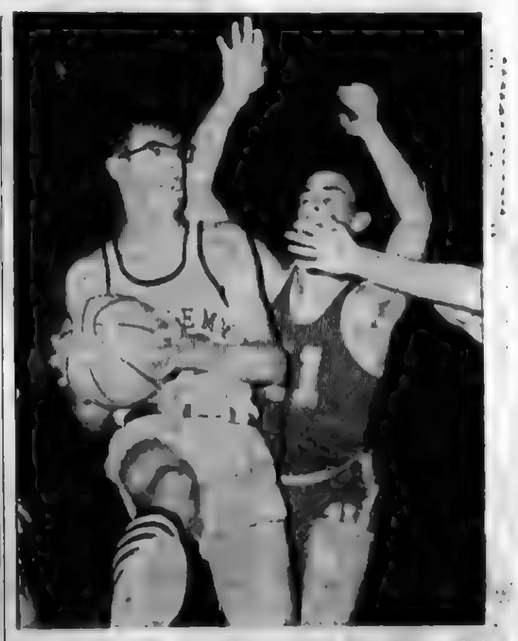
A-W, leading by eight (66-58) in the third quarter, saw that lead vanish as H-T applied a zone press for 10 straight tallies.

THE WELDERS however, made their move in the last eight seconds when Dick (27-point) Reasbeck stole the ball and passed to Bill Dodson who was fouled and sunk the winning free throws.

Wyatt Webb co-starred with 13 of 21 field shots and five of seven charities for 31 tallies, plus four key steals late in the game. Reasbeck's 10 for 16 showing included seven straight foul shots while Don DeVoe's 17 included nine in the final frame.

Hilltop's Jack Funk fired in 19 and had 23 caroms while Rollie Harris honed in 25 more for the Vanmen who connected on 23 of 29 charities to A-W's 37 or 56 from the floor and 18 of 27 from the white lines.



SATURDAY night, A-W (14-1 overall) tests Jacobs Movers in a first-round contest at South High School where the gate proceeds go to the Bulldog cross country and track funds. If Jacobs can pull off the big upset (5-2) and the Movers (4-2) will share title honors with A-W (5-1).

Rainbow Tenpin Event Continues

The Rainbow-Shulz Citizens of Ohio Headpin Tournament will continue this weekend at Rainbow Lanes where tourney play resumes on Jan. 30 and 31, Saturday, Feb. 6 and Sunday, Feb. 7.

Bantam boys and girls (through ten), junior boys and girls (11-14) and all seniors (15-18) will bowl headpin only once for 50 cents and receive trophies for their efforts.

Adults are the only bowlers eligible for the drawing on the door prize, a Zenith color television. Regular headpin bowling (one game) costs $1 with regular sweepers allowed for only $3.

GET LOST!—Maybe those aren't the exact words but that seems to be the message Academy's John Fulford is trying to get across to Reynoldsburg defenders, including Doug Weber (41). Vikings kept it tight for league-leading Raiders Friday, lost 75-66 in final period.

Boating, Vacation Show Starts Today At Vets

"The Greater Ohio Sport, Boat and Vacation Show" will be held Jan. 28-31, 11 a.m.-11 p.m. daily, at Veterans Memorial Building.

The show will feature the very latest in boating, hunting, fishing, camping, skiing, scuba diving, ice skating, and mobile home equipment. There will also be music and entertainment, and displays by scuba divers, karate and boxing experts, shooting clubs, and trainers of retrievers.

Quadrangulars At Groveport, East, P-V Top Wrestling Fare

Quadrangulars are the order of the week as a quartet of four-team battles are scheduled for the coming week.

Jim Porter's East High crew, picked most likely to succeed as District champ for the second straight season, kicks off the quad mat sessions by hosting Brookhaven, Arlington and Worthington tomorrow.

CROSSTOWN AT Pleasant View, Bob Mowery's Panthers will have the welcome mat ready for Westerville, Bishop Ready and Linden.

The remaining pair of quadrangular meets are set Saturday at Groveport (Central, Granville and Chillicothe) and at Whetstone (Westerville, Linden and Brookhaven).

The hosts would appear to be favorites in all quads with the possible exception of the Whetstone affair where Westerville might deserve the nod.

Groveport wrestling coach Pete Nix has announced starting times for Saturday's Cruiser Quadrangular. Prelims will get under way at 1 p.m. with finals following at 3 p.m. The winning team will receive a trophy while first and second place individuals will be awarded ribbons.

Benny King (W); 167 - Mike DeAscentis (DeS) dec. Brian White (GP); 177 - Mike Long (F-H) dec. Ed Smith (W); Hwt — Perry Evans (DeS) dec. Jim Starkey (C).

Marion-Franklin rallied with three straight wins to overtake Mifflin, 28-18. A decision by Jim Brown (165) followed by consecutive pins by Marvin Mills (174) and Tony Pack (hwt) provided the difference for the Devils.

Hubert Moore (133) also nabbed a decision for the winners.

East spilled previously-unbeaten Defiance, 24-18, despite the loss of two regulars.

RALPH COX, Jake Holloway, Clarence Bennett and Tilton Reed took decisions for the Tigers while Gary Rispress and Roland Martin secured pin wins.

RALPH WEBSTER announced this week that times and locations have been set for the Central District wrestling sectionals to be held Saturday, Feb. 27.

The sectionals will be quartered with nine teams competing at Whetstone, Brookhaven and Whitehall and ten more grappling at Franklin Heights. Prelims begin at 1 p.m. at all locations.

Two winners in each weight division will be sent from each of the sectionals to the District meet, scheduled Mar. 5-6, at Franklin Heights.

GRANDVIEW toppled Hilliard, 25-16. Wildcat wins were notched by Tim Patton and Tim Andres (decisions), Gary McCloskey (forfeit) and Adrian Stilson (pin).

Coach Jim Porter announced Monday that regulars Charles Hood (120) and Grady Bobo (hwt) have dropped off the squad. Their spots will be filled by Ron Peaks and George White respectively.

Worthington's Paul Mitchell was voted the Invitational's most outstanding matman.

The Ohio State School for the Blind eked out a 21-19 win over Grove City.

Richard Cooley (133) got the Greyhounds' lone pin while Tom Peterson (138), Alan McGath (145) and John Cooley (hwt) took decisions.

Hartley gained another prestige notch with a 26-18 verdict over Arlington.

John Sullivan and John Bayly got pins for the Hawks while Joe Weldon, Paul and Pat Burkey took decision wins.

RESULTS

DENNIS WALKER was the man of the hour at Bexley as the Lion heavyweight entry completed a fantastic Bexley comeback to help the Lions to a fast-finishing 22-21 verdict over Watkins Memorial.

Trailing 16-0 after the first four events, Bexley started its rally as Doug Felger, Jim Kelly and Jim Schottenstein took three straight decisions and Rick Doty (154) got a pin win.

Karl Petzinger's decision at 175 let the Lions four points short of victory but Walked pinned his opponent to complete the comeback.

Skip and Mick Shields, Terry Hall, Gary Raver and Tim Journey got W-M's wins, the latter three with pins.

South also finished strong but it wasn't enough to overcome Mifflin's early lead the Bulldogs losing, 26-20.

Louis Robinson (165) and George Harper (175) got pins for the Reb wrestlers while Fred Fillinger (138) won via decision.

HAMILTON TOWNSHIP rolled to win number nine in a row with a lopsided 41-6 verdict over Sheridan Tuesday.

Jim Britton, Ken Cornwall, Mike Bianset, Steve Beggrow, Jim Schumacher and Paul Keller got pins for the Rangers. Tim Houghtaling won by forfeit while Eric Bomhard and Ralph Morgan took decisions.

UMPHH! — Franklin Heights wrestler Jim O'Hara grimaces as he gets a breath-snatching bearhug from Worthington's Allan Mitchell in the 135-pound finals match Saturday at P-V's Invitational. Mitchell took a 4-1 decision.

Boy Scout News

By CARL JAPIKSE

A total of 99 East Side Boy Scouts braved sub-zero temperatures and a half-foot of snow at the White Oaks District's Klondike Derby held Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 17 and 18, at the Central Ohio Coon Hunters' Association, 12 miles south of Canal Winchester.

The snow was welcomed, however, and sledding was the main activity for the weekend.

Since the campsite was inaccessible by car, the scouts had to pack all their gear in by use of Eskimo "Komitik" sleds, which they had made ahead of time. They followed a prearranged compass course, stopping at several checkpoints to receive new instructions.

At each checkpoint, the boys received gold nuggets, which were redeemed for cups of hot chocolate when they reached the campsite.

The six troops attending were Troop 103, Earl L. Myers, scoutmaster; Troop 107, John Manjon, assistant scoutmaster; Troop 277, E. Richards, scoutmaster; Troop 288, C. J. Ringer, Jr., scoutmaster; Troop 379, Ira P. Rawdon, Jr., scoutmaster and Troop 274, Clifford D. Lau, scoutmaster.

Post 370 helped set up and operate the checkpoints at the derby. Philip Mastenbrook is president of the post.

Gil Powell, camping and activities chairman for the White Oaks District was in charge of the derby. Raymond Grayam and Robert Newcomb, district executive, assisted in the administration.

When In Rome . . .

. . . do as the Romans do! And sixth grade students at West Mound Elementary did just that recently.

"Roman Day," a full-day project to promote the study of Roman Empire history by teacher Mrs. Carol Hart, got underway with the formation of four committees — decorations, food, morning work and olympic games.

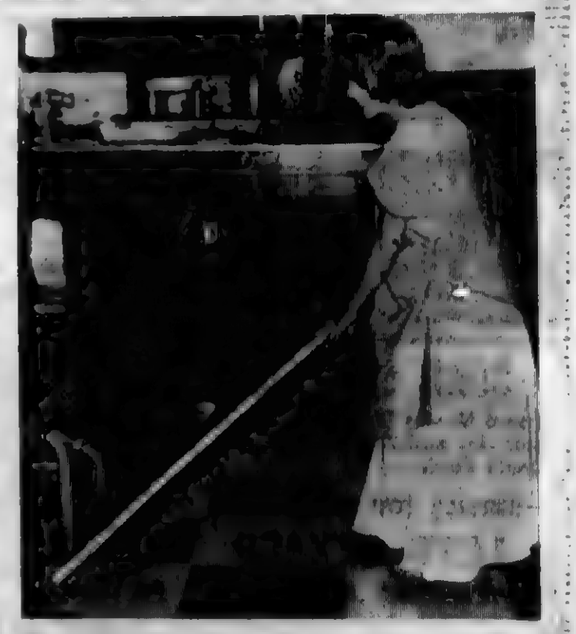
The children, who planned for the project for a month, carried out the program with great finesse and detail — right down to the altar of Juno, complete with burning incense.

"The children were very excited about the program," Mrs. Hart commented. "They believed they learned much more about Roman history this way and I guess, from all the library reading they had to do to prepare the program, they certainly must have."

Each student was responsible for his own costume and decorations went all the way from olive leaves and pillars to life-like replicas of the old Roman senators.

These were carefully prepared by placing wire forms, covered with papier mache, on wooden bases and then painting the figures.

And the Olympic Games were largely Roman with javelin throw, shot put, hurdles and high jump events performed in the Colosseum excuse me, gymnasium. (The sixth event — chin-ups — had a slightly American touch to it.)



Medals were presented to first, second and third place winners with the Olympic champion collecting the coveted olive wreath.

Each child wrote an evaluation of the project. All but one gave glowing reports. The lone criticism came from one boy who reported: "I ate too much at the Roman feast and got sick when I got home."

And that — from what this writer recollects from his history books — was pretty much in keeping with the Roman atmosphere too!

IT WAS quite a feast for Mound Street Elementary sixth graders on Roman Day as wine (grape drink) flowed freely and morsels like ham, hot rice, fruit, nuts, cake and bread (in loaves) tantalized the taste buds. Children ate with fingers and a spoon, each paid 50 drachmas (cents) for feast fee. From left are: Doris Drake, Regina Hebdo, teacher Mrs. Hart, Pam Abrams and Debbie Crum. Hungry gladiators in rear are Bob Hartwell and Danny Blake.

CLEANING UP after a Roman orgy certainly isn't much fun but Pam Abrams kicked off her sandals and helped clean up rice (sometimes too hot for tender fingers), bread crumbs and remnants of losing gladiators. Mrs. Hart, who piloted the project at an earlier assignment, believes "doing as the Romans do" is fun for children and sparks deeper interest in history courses.

PITY THE poor downed gladiator (Russell Elder) as his opponent (Paul Rasmor) prepares the coup de grace on a "thumbs down" verdict by that bloodthirsty Roman mob in the background. Soldiers, keeping the crowd from getting too much out of hand, are Jerry Whitcraft and Bill Entsminger.

YOUNG FLAVIUS here (better known around West Mound school as Jerry VanSickle) has just been crowned Olympic Champion by Emperor (Principal) Howard Trautner. Mrs. Hart smiles approval of the olive wreath crowning at right as Olympic gallery looks on.

USING A wooden stylus, Debbie Osborn prepares her morning work on a Roman scroll. Although most students find the plain, old, regular notebook paper best for everyday use, the scrolls and writing Roman style with Roman numerals were the order of the day for the program.

Cosmetology School Gains National Fame For Training

Whether at the theater, or on the street, or every day at work you see them — the smart coiffures of Columbus' beauty-conscious women.

Largely responsible for the pleasant view is Mrs. Lee Townsend of the Ohio State School of Cosmetology at 197 S. High-st.

Mrs. Townsend

Mrs. Townsend and her husband, the late George A. Townsend, have devoted their lives to the beauty of women.

They founded their famous school in 1935 under the name of the Columbus Beauty School. While George attended to management functions, Lee devoted herself to teaching, research, and developing a personalized system of training.

In beginning the school she was determined that the future customers of her graduates would reflect the skill of her teaching in their appearance.

She has prepared material at the request of the U.S. Department of Labor for its Occupational Outlook Handbook, an official government publication. She prepared a handbook for the American Personnel Guidance Association which is used by guidance personnel and students in Ohio schools.

Despite the death of her husband several weeks ago, Lee Townsend said this week that the school has a well-based depth of management and will continue uninterrupted. Lee, herself, will continue her active role as director of training.

After complete renovation of the second floor quarters, the school's clinic for advanced operators-in-training, was moved to new quarters on the High-st first floor level. Here, advanced students meet the public for the first time during their training.

The training at the school, which by state law requires a minimum of 1,250 hours, is a rigorous discipline. There are three levels which might be compared to grade school, high school and college. Training is complete and upon graduation, students have the requisites to operate their own salon or accept any position in another.

Buckeye Federal Reports Outstanding Gains In '64

Buckeye Federal Savings and Loan Association had an outstanding year of progress and growth in 1964, according to William S. Guthrie, president.

"Asset growth of $25,326,856 during 1964 represented a 24 percent increase over total assets held one year ago," said Guthrie. Totals were $128,912,679.

-9C- .

Net savings gains in 1964 totaled $25,844,627, bringing total savings held by Buckeye Federal at year end to $115,365,044.

Annual dividend payments paid to savings customers during 1964 totaled $4,222,244, based on a regular dividend rate of four percent.

New mortage loans amounted to $37 million, and total mortgage loans outstanding at the end of the year climbed to $111 million. Buckeye served their 100,000th home loan customer in 1964.

Westerville and Gahanna offices were acquired and opened as Buckeye offices on Jan. 2. The Eastern office, after five years in a shopping center location, moved into its own new building. The North Arlington office and the Great Western office were opened on June 19, 1964:

Previously serving customers from the Buckeye Porta-office, the North Arlington office moved into a new building at 4455 Kenny-rd. The Great Western office, after seven years in a store front location, moved into its own building.

Buckeye's Southern office opened in a new building on Sept. 1. On Oct. 19, the Northland office opened in the Porta-office at a Morse-rd site, while awaiting completion of permanent facilities.

Other Buckeye milestones of 1964 include the installation of electronic data processing equipment to provide added customer service. Automatic income accounts began a new saver's service.

Interest Growing

In the last 10 years, the number of depositors in Ohio savings and loans has increased 136 per cent — from 1,400,000 in 1954 to 3,400,000 today.

The average savings account in Ohio savings and loan institutions is $2,447—highest among the midwestern states.

Bolivar Arms Home Loans Are Available

Home loans of $14,500 will be available this year for the 500 families now living in the Bolivar Arms (Leanard-St. Clair) renewal area, the Department of Urban Renewal disclosed this month.

Application for the federally-backed loans may be made after Jan. 15 with the first property acquisition date set for Sept. 1.

The FHA 221-insured loans with regular financial institutions assure families with good credit backgrounds and regular employment, even in a low income category, the ability to buy a home with no down payment and long term mortgages at low interest rates.

During the past ten years more than 6000 families have found new places to live with the help of Urban Renewal's Family Relocation office.

At least 20 percent of these displaced in urban renewal, expressway construction and building programs are now buying homes through the 221 program, according to officials, and 95 percent moved into better housing than they left.

Caseworkers from the Family Relocation Office will call on residents in the Bolivar Arms area when the city begins land acquisition.

William A. Colwell is project coordinator and Patrick Phelan, Urban Renewal director.

The completed Bolivar Arms project will contain 800 units, including two high rises of Columbus Metropolitan Housing Authority, a $500,000 city recreation center, expanded Monroe Junior High site and enlarged Trevitt Elementary School.

Ask 3 dryer owners which kind lasts longer.

2 will say electric.

Electric sets pace as 1,011 women tell why and how they pick and choose dryers

Over 1,000 homemakers in The Electric Company service area recently took part in an independent study of why and what they preferred about certain appliances.

Naturally, automatic clothes dryers were included and compared.

This big cross-section of "experts" left no question about the overwhelming preference in this area for flameless electric dryers.

Area homemakers offer you buying hints for dryers

In fact, if you've never owned an automatic clothes dryer, here's a buying hint for you: 8 out of 10 local women who begin enjoying all the time-and-work-saving convenience of automatic clothes drying start with a flameless electric dryer.

One of the reasons more women prefer electric dryers is their longer life — a built-in feature of electric! Because an electric clothes dryer has fewer moving parts to wear out, it lasts longer, gives you more use over the years — and stretches your investment farther!

And with electric, your investment is lowest from the start!

Flameless electric dryers preferred 9 to 1 for low initial cost!

It's a fact: electric clothes dryers cost less to buy. And most women like that, too!

Nine times out of 10, women surveyed mentioned this money-saving advantage of flameless electric dryers. (There was very little doubt — even among owners of all types of dryers — that electric dryers, feature for feature, cost less to buy).

Prove it to yourself. Visit your favorite appliance dealer and compare dryers. You'll find electric dryers do cost less to buy.

Significantly so.

Women prefer more features of flameless electric dryers

While you're looking, there are some things you won't see — and these unseen features are more of what makes electric dryers most preferred by homemakers in the Columbus and Southern Ohio area.

You see, far more than the low price of an electric dryer appeals to women.

Once you get it home, you continue to save with electric.

Here's why:

There's only one connection to make. Electricity runs the dryer and dries the clothes. Pure radiant electric heat gently dries everything from your daintiest lingerie to Dad's work clothes; and because flameless electric heat is so clean, it protects clothes as it dries them fluffier, brighter and fresher.

You save time and steps because you can put your electric dryer wherever it's most convenient for you — upstairs, downstairs, in the kitchen, even in the garage. Put it any place you can run a wire!

It's easy to see why, in homes that have automatic dryers, you find 7 out of 10 dryers are flameless electric!

Every day, more people give more reasons for going electric!

Someday, you will want a new automatic dryer for your home.

The chances are good you're thinking about one right now.

Before you buy, shop around. Compare closely. Check the prices. Then remember that the important advantages of flameless electric dryers don't show up until you get one home.

Those are the benefits that count.

And they're the ones preferred by more homemakers like yourself.

You'll prefer a flameless electric dryer, too.

Even more when you get it home.

AT CO-OP OPTICAL Centers, vision becomes not only a reality but a new experience when correctly filled prescriptions are custom fitted to the individual customer. When requested, Co-Op also offers the customer help in selecting frames with the styling and color most complimentary to individual tastes and personalities.

Vision Becomes A Reality At Co-op Optical Center

Because men and women of vision dared to dream, people of all ages are seeing better. They are receiving the best eye glasses that skill, experience, research and modern equipment can produce at prices everybody can afford.

In the Columbus area, part of the credit for this rightfully belongs to the Co-Op Optical Center.

Co-Op Optical was founded in 1960 by a group of 40 Columbus area local unions, and has now progressed to almost every local union.

In 1962 Co-Op Optical was opened to the public, and management function has helped stabilize prices of eye glasses throughout the Columbus area.

Optical Centers is impressive. The decor is restful with a quiet beauty. Prescriptions are filled by dedicated technicians, highly accredited in their field. A glance into the laboratory reveals the most modern equipment available in the optical industry.

The same glance also reveals that the laboratory is functional, small and compact, important to a firm offering quality service at the least cost.

The original Co-Op Optical Center at 239 N. Front-st registered a definite and impressive impact on the local optical scene . . . and upon the public.

Management recently stated that it was the faith and confidence of the public, achieved in less than four years, which enabled Co-Op Optical to open their second office last year at 45 Wilson-rd for the convenience of residents in the Columbus western area.

Plans are under way for the opening of a third center to be located in the eastern area of Columbus. Details and location will be announced in February, a spokesman said this week.

The transit study committee approved by Columbus city council and appointed by Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner is off to an inauspicious beginning. With only one meeting of the 12-member group completed, an argument has developed over private-versus-public ownership in mass transit operations.

Actually, the study group was formed to recommend City Charter changes which would establish a transit authority through which the city could operate a transit company. It seems premature to discuss the relative merits of the two choices until there is a city-ownership plan to examine.

The study group's final recommendation will not be law. Any plan they propose must be put on the ballot by city council action and then the voters of Columbus will make the final decision.

Also, we think Columbus city council and Mayor Sensenbrenner should have included some official Franklin County representation on the study committee. County residents can not vote on whether or not Columbus goes into the transit business, but they will be affected nonetheless.

It would seem logical to add to the study group a Franklin County Commission member and a representative of the Franklin County Mayors' Council. An effective mass transit system — whether under public or private ownership — will not become a reality until both city and suburban officials replace the "kingdom concept" with co-ordinated planning for mutual progress.

What Kind Of 'Snow Job' Is This?

What's harder to handle at City Hall than a "hot snowball?"

A Clintonville woman reports to us that she was referred to six different city departments in a recent effort to find out why the city ordinance on snow removal from sidewalks is not being enforced. She gave up when a "referral" brought her back to the starting point.

Maybe she should talk to residents who complain that they clear their walks only to have city equipment push the white nuisance from the curb back onto the sidewalk. Snow-covered and icy sidewalks are a menace to life and limb. They also subject the property tenant or owner to civil suit in case of personal injury.

A city ordinance calling for fines up to $300 and up to 90 days in jail for failure to maintain clear pathways was termed by one city official "almost impossible" to enforce. The city should either find a way to enforce the ordinance, or wipe it from the books and eliminate confusion and the possibility of indiscriminate application.

Profit Is Our Most Important Product

If profits were eliminated entirely, the cost of goods and services could be reduced. That's a truism — though the reductions would be much less than most people believe.

And what else would happen? For one thing, there'd be no investment in new plants and equipment. No one would put his money into these engines of progress if there was no chance to earn a profit in return.

Along with this, the source of new jobs, and vast numbers of existing jobs would dry up.

No one could or would start a new business. It is the profit incentive that causes people to take risks implicit in doing that.

Government treasuries would be drained — a large part of all the profit earned in the country is paid out in taxes. The national defense, like the economy, would soon be in a critical state. The whole American system would collapse, and we'd go downhill as a people at a dizzying rate.

The size of profits varies from enterprise to enterprise, for many good reasons. But the average is about five percent of the gross national product. In the light of what the whole country gets in return profit is a tremendous bargain.

Guest Pulpit . .

And one of the scribes came, and having heard them reasoning together, and perceiving that he had answered them well, asked him, "Which is the first commandment of all?" and Jesus answered him, "The first of all the commandments is, Hear, O Israel: the Lord our God is one Lord. And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength: this is the first commandment." Mark 12:28-29

The question, "What is the first commandment?" is a legitimate inquiry for all men of every age. Every individual, as one of God's creation, should be asking what God desires of him.

Rev. Pool

The answer Jesus gave to the question was taken from the Old Testament, mainly Deuteronomy 6:4-5. This passage helped to form the Shema which was a recital of the heart of the Hebrew faith. The Shema is the first Scripture taught to Jewish children, and is recited by the Orthodox every morning and evening.

The first part of the first commandment is that we shall believe that there is only one true God. This may seem to be a strange command to Americans since most of us do not practice idol worship as such. However, we need to ask ourselves whether or not we drive our false gods up and down the highway, deposit them in the bank, or maybe even live in them.

The second part of the first commandment is that we love God with our hearts, life, minds and with all our strength. The love we have for God must be an intimate and warm expression. Love for God must issue forth into service that is positive and daily lives that are an example of righteousness. We must commit our total beings to God through Jesus Christ and serve Him with all our strength!

An Editor's Outlook . . . by Jenkin Lloyd Jones

Professor-Pupil Class Reunion Needed

On most university campuses of any antiquity in America there remains the original building from which the school, amoeba-like, has divided and grown. Usually they call it "Old Main."

Old Main is almost invariably ugly, a belfried Victorian pile of narrow windows, creaky floors, uncertain heat and roller shades. And in spite of its central location it is getting harder to find.

For dominating and dwarfing Old Main are the modern classroom buildings, the super new laboratories, the conference center, the student union — and farther out, the field house, the stadium and the high-rise dormitories.

Jones

Yet Old Main is loved. Its picture appears most often on the cover of the alumni magazine. For it represents the vanished day when students knew their professors and professors their students. It is a wistful reminder of the age when the institution had what the cheerleaders used to call "spirit," a collective personality with which both faculty and students could identify themselves with pride.

It doesn't do to grow too sentimental about Old Main. It didn't represent any golden age of knowledge. It dates back to frock-coated professors and a rigid diet of Greek, Latin, rhetoric, logic and a shotgun course in "philosophy" which included such sciences as there were. But when the entire graduating class could assemble in their wide cravats and stiff collars on the steps of Old Main for their final photograph there was no doubt that "Alma Mater" was a mother to them all.

Following the recent student riots at the University of California at Berkeley, which are, perhaps, to be expected under any administration that seems to be uncertain about who's running the school, there has been considerable inquiry into the origins of the unrest. And one theory advanced is that students at Berkeley are sick of being nonentities in a giant learning-machine.

For with 25,000 students that university has ceased to be a personality. As its capacity to inspire loyalty among its charges has diminished so has its ability to maintain discipline. Alma Mater has died and her place has been taken by a bewildering and amorphous city of classrooms in which the immature and recently-arrived citizens can neither identify themselves with any traditions or feel any kinship with the powers in city hall.

The time is overdue when we must consider how to re-humanize our colleges and universities.

Our first job is to handle the problem of bigness. Ten years ago there were 2.2 million college students in America. Now there are 4.5 million. University presidents have been deep in the business of empire building, aided by heavy federal grants. In the meantime, many privately endowed colleges, with good academic standards, have been starved as the income tax has dried up sources of gifts. Everywhere there are lean little junior colleges and miserable teachers colleges that haven't had the favor of state legislatures.

What we ought to do is stop the physical expansion of the great state universities. This can be done easily by cutting the undergraduate enrollments by stiff entrance requirements so that these schools may concentrate on graduate work.

Then we must re-equip and upgrade the smaller schools and build a lot more of them. This would not be more expensive. A college is not a factory or a supermarket and college bigness doesn't bring down the cost per student. The ideal should be a top enrollment of 5,000. The football teams might not be so hot, but students would begin to belong to something again.

Then the federal government and the great foundations should quit enticing professors away from teaching by the lavish and idiotic business of offering research grants to almost any applicant.

In a recent article in The New York Times, Peter Schrag, secretary of Amherst College, quotes one college administrator as follows:

"It's so easy to get grants that a fellow's dedication to teaching declines. Why labor in the vineyards when you can get a Fulbright or some other grant that enables you to study or work at what you want? The old publish-or-perish becomes travel-and-triumph while enjoying life more fully instead of plugging away at the old routine."

The "old routine," of course, is the business of teaching young people, which is what professoring used to be about. But no more. In most of the great universities the actual teaching is being done by graduate students who are only slightly more acquainted with the subjects than their pupils. It is ridiculous to let brilliant lecturers amuse themselves in private research, writing complicated treatises of interest only to other advanced scholars. Let's get them back to the rostrum and the blackboard.

America should not be appalled by the flood of young people now hammering at the college gates. We should be delighted. But at no greater cost than academic megalopolises we can have undergraduate schools small enough to have personality and esprit, where students can once again have contact with professors.

Old Main must rise again.

INSULT TO INJURY

'THE GRIST'
Ground Out by Dusty Miller

LAUGHING AT THE SNOW

Like a yodeling Swiss herdsman bringing up the cows, an old-home-town "hits man" waded hip-deep drifts to a drug store to 'phone his foreman: "I won't be there tomorrow; I ain't got home yesterday yet."

* * *

My country school seatmate and I were conning McGuffey's "It Snows." The last stanza reads: "'It snows,' cries the widow, 'O, God,' as she lays on her last stick of wood." Burch commented: "It'd make anybody swear to lay on a stick of wood."

Dusty

And there was the 1950 Michigan game! The fellow I went with I haven't seen since. Michigan didn't win that game. They took the ball and went home, and we didn't see 'em. You can't play a football game with anybody when you can't see nobody!

* * *

"Fusty's" neck was the standard gauge of exaggeration among the carelessly-referred-to "scholars" of our old school. To give an adequate idea of the depth of snow at the school house "Pealy" said: "You know how high the top of Fusty's neck is — well, it was up to it." Creating a family by-word, Uncle John cracked: "Did he go in head-first, or feet-first?"

* * *

The mercury in the thermometer on the depot platform had curled up in the bulb and died. In the crowded waiting room it was a few degrees warmer. After a round of "I mind the time" experiences, a squat, sheepskin-coated guy contributed: "When my mother-in-law died they couldn't drive the hearse to the graveyard, so they took the coffin on a sled. None of the family went but me, and it was so cold I had to run along behind the sled and clap my hands to keep them from freezing."

OUT OF PATIENCE

History in its obvious form may be, as we may believe, simply a record of events. But we may be puzzled by some of them and may wonder about their reasons. We're thinking specifically about some nations all over the earth and their attitudes vis-a-vis our actions and intent.

A generation ago we fought beside the Communists against the Nazis and the Imperial Japanese. But even before the victory, far-seeing and long remembering leaders of the free nations knew that the chief purpose of the Communists was to crush the Nazis only to make way for their own conquest of the world.

So, at war's end, whether by our own efforts or by good fortune, we found ourselves the strongest and richest nation on earth, still, and more than ever leading the forces of freedom against the growing strength of the new tyranny. Wisely or not, necessarily or not, we "took steps" to prevent its spread.

Chief among those steps was financial help directly out of our federal treasury at the expense of our long-suffering tax payers. This started in a comparatively modest way with the Marshall Plan for Europe in the 1940's. Few quarreled with this, because Europe lay virtually prostrate after the long struggle.

Now, a score of years later, we have about 50 nations on our international welfare list, and we have given $100 billion, two-thirds of our national debt. We're about to give more to friend and foe.

So, we read almost daily about our burned libraries and broken embassy windows. Gratitude? After all, a nation, like a man, has only two cheeks, and it looks as though we've turned both of them.

It says here . . . . .

Where does patience end and demand for respect begin?

STRICTLY FRESH

Strange, but it seems to be true: charm is a woman's strength, while strength is a man's charm.

Why is it that there are always more persons going on diets tomorrow than there are going on diets today?

It is said that even if a man could understand a woman, he still wouldn't believe it.

No matter how bad a haircut one gets, it will cure itself within days.

Many a man can tell what kind of time he had at a party by the look on his wife's face.

It is said even if you can patch a reputation, it's bound to show.

When a man marries for the second time, it could be said he takes a new leash on life.

The man who laughs at the boss' jokes certainly has a sense of direction.

Faith Is Reaffirmed

To The Editor:

I'm proud to live in Hilliard.

During the past holiday season something happened in my life that reaffirmed my faith in my community.

At about 1:30 in the morning I was awakened by the smell of smoke. Dense smoke was sweeping through the house from a fire in the basement.

In a matter of five to 10 minutes about 30 firemen, nearly all volunteers, were on the scene. In a very efficient and professional manner, this well-organized and well-equipped fire department extinguished the fire and removed the smoke from the house.

This feat in itself was nothing that any citizen could not expect from his community's fire department. The thing that caused my pride to swell was the conduct of the firemen. Each man treated my house and its contents as if they were his own. Newspapers were put down to protect the rugs and carpet. Windows were opened rather than broken to gain access to the fire in the basement. A minimum of water was used to extinguish the blaze; and when the fire was out, they cleaned up the debris as much as possible. During the entire hectic experience, my family was treated with the utmost care and courtesy.

This extra effort above and beyond what is normally expected is the very type of thing that makes a community better than "just a place to live."

Opposed To Bus Bill

To the Editor:

It is encouraging to learn of so many groups in Ohio who are opposing the attempt by the Roman Catholic Citizens for Educational Freedom to obtain statutory authority in Ohio for tax-supported bus transportation.

Schools exist to indoctrinate a child. If this were not so, these schools would not exist. The first amendment to the U.S. Constitution provides that Congress shall pass no law establishing a religion. As U.S. Justice William O. Douglas has so ably pointed out, there is no better way to establish a religion than to finance it.

A church controlled school is part of the religious activities of such church. In the case of the Roman Catholic Church, their Canon Law provides that Roman Catholic children must attend a religious school of that faith unless excused by the local bishop. If parents are willing to accept this kind of church doctrine, they should not expect the general taxpayer to support such schools.

Raymond Mostek, vice-chairman
National Committee on Church and State
Laymen's League
Unitarian-Universalist Assn.

Editor's Note: While Roman Catholics make up the majority of membership in Citizens For Educational Freedom, the group does not use the words "Roman Catholic" in its title. CEF publications describe the organization as "nonsectarian, nonpartisan and nonprofit."

Thank you for all your help on our special December Blood Drive . . . our collections for the month went over the goal of 5000 by 41 pints. The Blood Program has not had a 5000 December since 1952, which was during the end of the Korean War period.

. . . our appreciation for the job that was done by you and many others recently to make the 1964 Senior Citizen's Selling Mart a tremendous success—and that it was! Frosting on the Cake
BY "UNCLE DOC" ROSS — U.S.A.

Beyond any possible doubt, the inauguration of a President of these United States is the most significant single event to take place in the world.

President Johnson's inauguration Jan. 20, 1965, will have had the greatest impact upon the entire world ever achieved up to now. The most significant factor in this tremendous affair is not its immediate effect upon our own millions, but the commanding influence it will have upon the thought processes of scoundrels everywhere.

This great day in our history gives pause to the scheming machinations of every political opportunist who looks and listens to it. More minds than ever before in our history will feel this attack upon the status quo fixations of the "little man."

Members of the Diplomatic Corps were prompt to say it was a deliberate presentation for home consumption only. That is at once a psychological fallacy, and these same secret-minded enemies of our greatest of all political bodies know it is just the opposite in intent and challe

The philosophical content of President Johnson's message was of immediate importance for home consumption, to be sure. It was prepared by some very able minds, and had great emotional impact upon millions who are not too well situated in life.

We have all heard the prescription. Now comes the herculean task of filling the prescription per se, as "just what the doctor ordered." Human nature will still run true to form and our society will continue to produce more shiftless, unendowed adults from generation to generation.

Professional parasitism is still an unhappy fact in the growing "everything-for-free" political populism which is now so potent and dangerous to the real "common good."

Kinnear Doors Featured In New Lazarus Building

The recently completed F & R Lazarus service building, located on the sharply sloping terrain of W. State-st, features an excellent example of modern steel rolling doors "engineered in" to meet unusual construction and architectural demands.

This unique installation of four motor-operated doors was accomplished by their internationally-known Columbus maker, the Kinnear Manufacturing Company, 1191 Fields-av. The four large garage entrances each has a floor leveled off at a different height to conform to the topography. With a roof line of one level, common to the four entrances, the openings give the appearance of being four different sizes.

By placing stationary sections of matching interlocking steel slats above the lower doors, Kinnear engineers facilitated installation of four doors the same size, thus enabling the contractor to build a uniform door height into the prime structure.

This newest Lazarus installation is just one example of how Kinnear Doors can be adapted to a structure, whether it is a building or a tremendous gantry crane.

One of the biggest advantages of Kinnear Rolling Doors — aside from fire, weather intrustion, and burglary protection — is their space-saving quality. The doors coil overhead, requiring no floor, wall or ceiling space, even when fully open. Extra fuel and power savings are also realized because the doors operate in seconds, minimizing loss of heat or air conditioning.

Kinnear, with plants in Columbus, San Francisco and Toronto, has made an ever-broadening line of rolling doors, grilles and shutters for a wide variety of uses since the company first pioneered the interlocking metal slat curtain principle more than 60 years ago.

An unusual facet of the Kinnear program is the long-established Registration plan for door installations. Details of each job are indefinitely filed in fire-proof vaults. Parts for 40, 50 or even 60-year-old installations are readily replaced through this door Registration plan.

Another outstanding Kinnear product is the "Akbar" Fire Door, now in use in thousands of installations where valuable property and equipment are to be protected. These doors close automatically when heat from fire causes a heat-sensing element to release the closing mechanism.

In many instances, Kinnear "Akbar" Fire Doors and window shutters have saved millions of dollars worth of stock and capital equipment. They are frequently instrumental in effecting a reduction in fire insurance premiums.

UNUSUAL building construction features present no problem to doors to Kinnear engineers. Four 21' x 15' Kinnear engineered doors of equal size solved this unusual installation at the new Lazarus building on deeply-sloped W. State-st.

Over the 60-year history of the company, Kinnear doors — readily installed in old or new buildings—have been in steady use in manufacturing plants, warehouses, office buildings, schools, hospitals, department stores, hotels and other type buildings in all parts of the world.

Kinnear "Rol-Top" residential garage doors are also manufactured for local distribution.

Veterinarians Will Gather In Queen City

When some 500 veterinarians from over Ohio and the country gather in Cincinnati Jan. 31 for the 1965 state convention of the Ohio Veterinary Medical Association, Greater Columbus will be well represented.

Among those attending will be William L. Ingalls, Vernon L. Tharp, A. A. Gabel, John H. Helwig and Dr. John H. Helwig. Dr. Helwig is running unopposed for the post of president-elect.

West Jefferson will be represented by Harry B. Crawford and E. F. Donovan of Worthington will be present.

President Warren E. Amling, London, said he expects the 1965 meet "to be probably the most important meeting of memory."

Then Let NATURAL GAS Make Your Home REALLY COMFORTABLE

Appearance, quality of materials and installation are all important, but the TRUE VALUE of any heating system is no greater than the COMFORT it provides.

Experts say maximum comfort requires not only even temperatures, but proper humidity and the circulation of clean, fresh air.

Most fuels can provide the necessary warmth . . . but not all provide the other elements necessary for a comfortable and healthy atmosphere in your home.

NATURAL GAS DOES . . . and it's also clean, convenient, economical and dependable.

Isn't your family worth THE BEST?

TYPICAL OF AREA GEOWTH, Ohio Bell brought dial service to Worthington's 1,100 people 25 years ago, installing facilities thought to be adequate until 1968. Last fall, Ohio Bell employes like George Roberts (right), splicing foreman, and splicers Dick Innis and Wally Shepherd were working around-the-clock to put Worthington's new crossbar office into operation. Equipped to handle 14,820 subscribers initially, Bell estimates 16,000 will want service by 1967.

Expansion Paces Local Growth

Ohio Bell began to implement a four-year, $30 million master communications plan for Columbus in 1964, designed to meet demands in a metropolitan area that is among the fastest growing in the nation.

Involved are 10 major projects costing $28.3 million for land, construction and equipment. Some of the projects have already been completed.

Many of the improvements already authorized are part of an over-all plan designed to reduce the 25 telephone exchanges in Greater Columbus to 18 within a ten-year period, furnish revolutionary new services and provide faster and more efficient connections.

The program revolves around new central office facilities known as crossbar units. The crossbar is an electro-mechanical system which serves more customers more efficiently, and can easily be modified to provide service innovations, such as Touch-Tone calling, as they become available.

In addition, the plan calls for a microwave system which will provide many more circuits to handle long distance calls and broadband services, television, in and out of the city.

Five major projects in the program were completed in 1964. They are:

• The new Reynoldsburg crossbar office at 1260 McNaughten-rd, serving 8,045 subscribers in Reynoldsburg, New Albany, parts of Gahanna and Columbus. Cost: $2,300,000.

• A crossbar office at 2580 McCutcheon-rd serving 2,940 cupstomers in Gahanna and Columbus Amherst. Cost: $600,000.

• The Columbus-Newark microwave system which provides an additional 120 circuits.

• A crossbar office serving over 2,000 Hickory and Lockbourne customers. Cost $600,000.

• The new crossbar office of 6650 N. High-st, Worthington, serving 11,500 customers. Cost: $2,400,000.

Five other projects are under way. One, a $2,200,000 crossbar office in Canal Winchester designed to serve 5,600 customers, should be ready for service in 1967. It will be located at the intersection of Brice-rd and U.S. Rt. 33.

The biggest job in the plan is the three-story addition to Ohio Bell's building at 111 N. Fourth-st, which will house electronic switching equipment affecting 19,000 subscribers in the heart of the city.

At a cost of $11,850,000 the equipment will bring such improvements as abbreviated dialing, call waiting and transfer, and three-way conversations. The project is scheduled for completion early in 1967.

Other projects scheduled for the future are:

• A new crossbar office under construction in Grove City which will serve 5,700 customers. This office will be cut into service sometime in May.

• In 1966 another crossbar office will be ready to provide 5,400 lines in Westerville. The office, already under construction, will be located at the intersection of Columbus-Wooster and Schrock-rds.

• A microwave system will be completed within a year linking Cleveland, Columbus and Cincinnati with a loop to Zanesville. It will provide 461 additional circuits.

At a recent press conference in Columbus, Ohio Bell President Claude M. Blair announced that Ohio Bell would spend $17,000,000 in the Columbus area in 1965.

"The impact of this investment extends well beyond our own operations, supporting the economic health of Ohio by providing additional work for our suppliers and contractors and creating more purchasing power in towns where our employes work and live," Blair said.

Younger Set Takes Lead In City's Religious Interests

There's never been a better thermometer for Columbus' religious growth than the Christian Book Store, 179 S. High-st.

Owned and operated by personable Mrs. Mildred Smith for the last 11 years, the Christian Book Store has always been a reliable source as to the community's religious interests.

"Right now," Mrs. Smith claims, "there is an increasing number of younger people taking an active interest in religion and earnestly seeking a more thorough understanding of the Bible."

Although the Bible has always been the No. 1 "best seller" in the country, Mrs. Smith reports that sales have been increasingly high over the last few months — so high, in fact, that even the various Bible publishing firms are having trouble keeping up with the needs.

It's gratifying to see such a large number of young people taking a deep interest in religion," Mrs. Smith says. She attributes much of this to the Campus Crusade for Christ organization at Ohio State University.

The trend toward a younger audience pleases Mrs. Smith ("I'm thrilled to death," she says) since she enjoys working with youth and absorbing some of their enthusiasm for various religious subjects.

"We try so hard to conduct business on a very personal level. We want to help people . . . take pride in the fact that we operate a store of service — with a capital 'S'," she smiled.

Add, Mrs. Smith's kind of "Service" has proven its worth over the years — since she began operations over 11 years ago at 21 W. Gay-st.

Now, she employs two clerks (Hazel Armentrout and Inez Darnell) and serves over 400 churches in the Central Ohio area.

"Of course," she added, "the faithfulness of our customers has always been an asset. If we happen to be out of an item our customers have been patient enough to wait until we can order it."

MRS. MILDRED SMITH (left), owner of the Christian Book Store, 179 S. High-st, checks over some of the greeting cards available there, with her assistant, Helen Armentrout.

JUST SUPPOSE . . . .
That you need four bedrooms and 2 comp. baths for a growing family in Lincoln Village N. Just 1 sq. from a fine school. Just suppose this home had a full dry bsmt. for the kids to wear themselves out in and save the lovely carpeting upstairs, and a nice dining rm. that would seat 8 comfortably. Just suppose it had a lot 160' deep where football could be played and the total dn. pymt. was just $600 or nothing G.I. The monthly pymt. including taxes and insurance would be $132, with an income of $575 necessary. We can deliver this 8 yr. old home — as the owner is moving suburban.

Van Dyne Crotty Keeps Pace With City's Growth

Van Dyne Crotty, Incorporated, local industrial and commercial laundry, moved this week from its old location at 550 Wagner-st to a new million dollar plant at 2150 Fairwood-av, keeping up with Columbus' fast-paced growth.

The company began operations in a rented garage in 1947 and, in 1950, moved into larger quarters at the Wagner-st plant.

Frank Crotty, president of the company, credits the rapid growth of Van Dyne Crotty to the increased consciousness of management to cost and safety.

He cited instances of the past when many workers wore ill-fitted, nondescript clothes around moving machinery and, thus, were literally "accidents waiting to happen."

The same applied, Crotty stated, to grease or oil-soaked clothes worn in some industries which made the worker a potential "human torch."

The rental of job-suited clothes has eliminated many of these hazards by supplying the worker with clean, personalized clothes on a regular schedule.

In addition to cotton work uniforms, Van Dyke Crotty supplies synthetic dress uniforms for service companies such as bakeries, dairies, florists, etc. as well as the increasingly popular white dress shirt in broadcloth and oxford material. These, along with synthetic and wool dress trousers, meet the need of many who must dress this way on the job.

Van Dyne Crotty, in addition to uniforms, supplies millions of industrial wiping towels to industry yearly. "This towel," Crotty stated, "is designed in weave, texture and size to eliminate accident hazards."

One of the fastest growing services furnished by the company is their dust mop and walk-off mat rental. Everyone has a dust problem. With a specially treated walk-off mat at entrances and treated mops for floors of offices, stores, schools, churches, and others, the housekeeping problem is reduced to a minimum.

This service, like others of Van Dyne Crotty, requires no investment in materials. The company supplies all and the customer pays only for the service.

The one service furnished by Van Dyne Crotty on a non-rental basis is their cleaning, repairing and renovation service for safety equipment.

Among safety items handled are gloves of all types, sleeves, aprons, spats, shields and boots.

The Van Dyne Crotty company is one of the largest in the Midwest in its field. Its customer list includes some of the world's largest companies.

The Spectator Says:

By C. C. Hartley

Responsibility Must Begin At An Early Age

In view of the recent killing by a juvenile and the fact that Columbus has a none-too-good reputation in the matter of juvenile crime, it is interesting to note how Judge Lester Loble of Helena, Mont., has earned a national reputation in the past few years for his brisk treatment of youngsters who commit serious crimes. Excerpts from his story in the January Kiwanis Magazine follow:

"The closed court system places every decent kid at a disadvantage. I have no worry about youngsters of today. Ninety-seven percent of them are good; they are smart; they are resourceful. But the three percent who are hoodlums are worse than they have ever been, and they smear the good kids.

"When a delinquent learns in no uncertain terms that he stands on one side of the law and the people in the courts on the other, he starts to reform — and so do his parents.

"Now, there are those who oppose my program, lots of them—some of them judges, some of them social workers, some of them do-gooders, some of them molly-coddlers, some who think crime will go away if they just won't look.

"In 1961, the Montana State Legislature passed a law requiring open court sessions for juveniles charged with felonies. In the 18 months following the enactment of this law, compared with the previous 18 months, felony cases dropped by 49 percent in my district. Today is even better. Whereas, according to J. Edgar Hoover, juvenile crime in the nation is up five to 10 percent.

"In the last three years, my district's juvenile courts have tried no cases involving violence. And the sentences we give are, on the average, less severe now.

"I have a high regard for social workers, and I think they are doing a lot of good in the fields of prevention and rehabilitation. But, they don't believe in punishment and they will go along that line, so they have no business in court telling the court what it should do.

"Rehabilitation does work. I have it, too. But they (social workers) attempt it at the wrong time. You take a kid who gets away with it five or six times and you say, "It's too bad your mother ate spinach, and all that sort of thing and we are going to try to help you out and he just laughs at you. The juvenile court has become the laughing stock of the hoodlums.

"Now, if you will see that he is disciplined so that he has learned something about the laws of God and man and then rehabilitate him, then you have got something.

"The Montana law says simply that whenever a juvenile is charged with a felony—a crime for which an adult could be sent to the state prison — then the courtroom must be open to all responsible news media."

Judge Loble further points out that a tough 18-year-old who goes about bragging that he is a cop hater and that he has robbed this place and that, when charged with a felony in district court, may get a sentence in the state penitentiary for five years—but it is all suspended except for the first 30 days. The judge has an understanding with the penitentiary that the boys go in and go through all of the same procedures of an ordinary prisoner, complete with cell, kitchen work, etc.

"At the end of the 30 days he comes back here and admits that the pen is a tough place and that he doesn't ever want to go back. Probation, under these circumstances, is fruitful.

"The program begins with prevention. This means work with the youngsters, teachers, principals, and especially with parents." The article lays special stress on being tough with parents. A good summary is contained in the judge's expression, "I am not trying to win the popularity prize with the parents of juvenile delinquents."

YOU CALL US . . . THEY'LL CALL YOU

There were quite a few disappointed mothers last week . . . the ones who called too late. Mrs. William Manierre of Bexley placed a want ad in the "for sale" section advertising a crib complete, bassinet, baby carriage and playpen. Within eight hours she had sold everything, but the phone kept ringing all week. Don't be disappointed—look over the classified section now! By BETTY DAFT

Doubling, in a 10-year period, achievements it has taken America 324 years to accomplish is no easy task.

And the nation's colleges are faced with just such a problem — providing facilities for seven million students by 1970, double the 3.5 million students and corresponding college facilities the country has developed from the time Harvard was founded in 1636 to 1960.

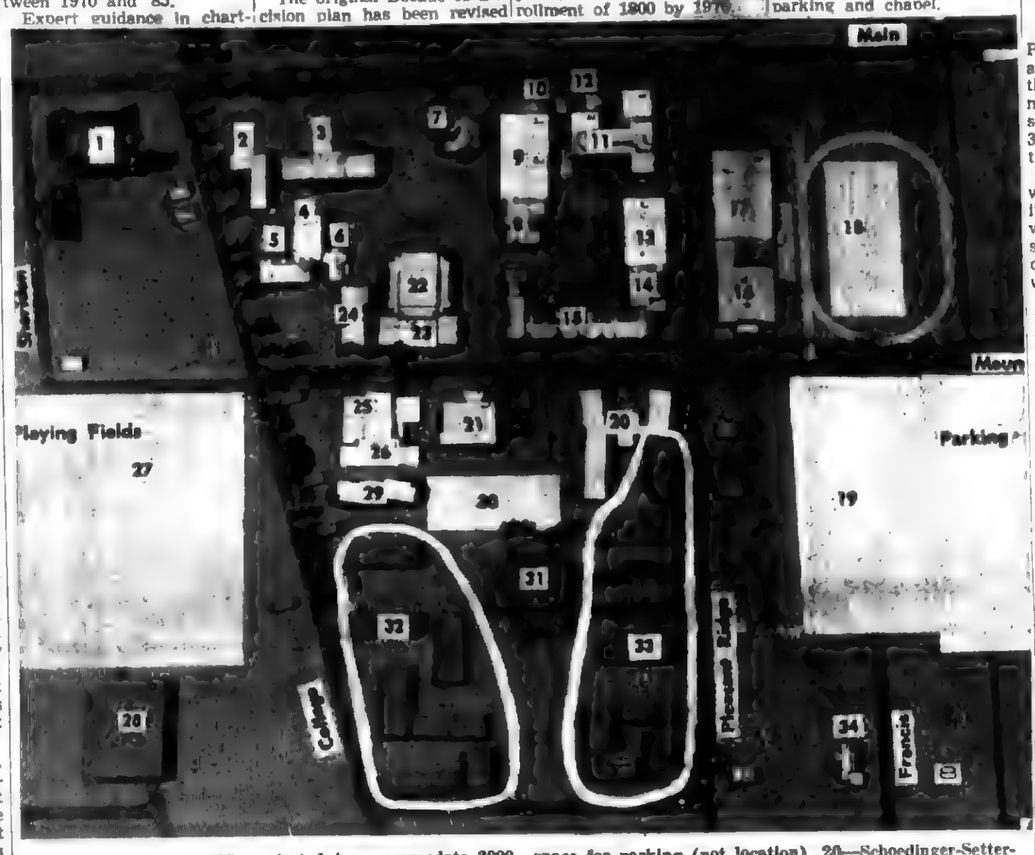
College enrollment is expected to double again between 1970 and '85.

Expert guidance in charting and implementing a plan of growth was necessary, and Capital University, confronted with its share of responsibility in the nation's exploding college population, turned to development consultants when it launched its Decade of Decision program in 1961.

Results of their intensive studies were unveiled this week by consultants John E. Severns, architect and planning consultant from Champaign, Ill., and Elmer Jagow, vice-president of finance at Knox College in Galesburg, Ill.

The original Decade of Decision plan has been revised into a roadmap for the years ahead.

Ways and means of developing Capital's landlocked 32-acre campus to care for 2170 students by 1974, and ultimately 3000 students, have been charted. Today's enrollment is 1555.



Much has been accomplished already under the Decade of Decision program, from 1960 to 1970, originally estimated to cost $10 million. Much more will be realized in the revised plan, computed at $14,566,000.

Thirteen new buildings must be added in the next five years, to accommodate an enrollment of 1800 by 1970.

Some of these, like the campus center and dormitory slated for construction this year, are profit-producing buildings. They will be partly financed through loans, repaid from revenue.

Campus services moved to the new center will free the refectory, currently being used for this purpose. Another floor will be added to the building and it will be converted into classroom space.

Most of the land needed in the ambitious expansion program is already owned by the university. Still to be acquired are sites for playing fields, parking and chapel.

CAPITAL CAMPUS, projected to accommodate 3000 students would have this appearance. No date has been set for the goal. The campus would include: 1—Seminary Campus. 2—Renner Hall (men's residence). 3—Lohmann Hall (men's residence one of two original buildings, 1876). 4—Proposed Additional Service Facilities Building. 5—Loy Gym (women's athletics). 6—Leonard Hall (faculty offices, 1876). 7—Recitation Hall (classrooms). 8— Library. 9—Proposed Library Addition. 10—Kline Clinic. 11—Science Hall. 12—Proposed Science Hall additions. 13 — Present Refectory-Student Union with proposed third floor (to be converted into classrooms). 14—Troutman Hall (faculty social rooms). 15—Saylor-Ackerman Halls (women's residence). 16—Alumni Gym. 17—Proposed addition to gym. 18—Bernlohr Field. 19—Needed space for parking (not location). 20—Schoedinger-Setterlin-Lohman Halls and un-named wing (women's residence). 21—Yochum Hall (administration). 22—Mees Hall conservatory of music). 23—Bexley Hall, (conservatory of music). 24—Power Plant. 25—Huber-Spielman Hall (fine arts and speech). 26—Proposed new theater. 27—Needed space for playing fields (not location). 28—Needed space for chapel (not location). 29—Schaaf Hall (men's residence). 30—Tennis Courts. 31—Campus Center. 32—Proposed men's residence halls. 33—Proposed women's residance halls. 34 — President's home. Also indicated are houses presently owned by the university. Parking area playing fields and chapel are indicated, but not located Sites would have to be acquired. Council Is Asked To Develop Park

About 25 Whitehall citizens braved Tuesday night's frigid temperatures to appear before council meeting and urge action in the development of the city park.

Don Evans, as spokesman for the group, requested council to appoint a parks commission to develop a long-range plan for development of the 27 acres of park land.

Council also heard:

• Service Director James Polzer announce that, "due to a difference of opinion with the administration, I am submitting my resignation as service director, effective Feb. 3. Polzer filed nominating petitions for mayor Wednesday.

• And another resident, who questioned the advisability of tearing up Collingwood-av to install the relief sewer now, only to repeat the operation at a future date when the street is improved.

Evans cited drainage, parking facilities and drinking water as the most immediate needs at the city park.

He pointed out that the park would be a center for neighborhood leisure time, serving older people as well as children, and the fact that adequate parks and recreation are essential to a city's growth.

Council assigned the request to form a parks commission to the committee for study. The city's recreation board has no jurisdiction over the city's park.

In other council action, a vote on the mayor's veto of the ordinance transferring the department of income taxation from the treasurer's office to the auditor's was tabled until next meeting.

A special council session was called for Saturday, Feb. 6, 2 p.m., to consider the ordinance for the installation of the Collingwood relief sewer. The project will open up E. Broad-st for development.

Councilman Marvin Levine, an agent with Equitable Life Assurance Society, recently questioned about "conflict of interest" between his council post and his connection with the insurance company who had submitted a group proposal for the city, was absolved of the charge by Equitable.

In a letter addressed to Council President Walter Siemer, the agency manager pointed out that the proposal was submitted before Levine became an agent with the company, and that he could in no way benefit from the transaction.

Joe Shannon, Civil Service commissioner, also defended Levine, saying "There is no question about his integrity in this matter. He worked hard to see the city got the lowest rate."

Hats Are In The Ring For Local Primary

Wednesday was the day of decision for those eyeing public offices in Whitehall — their final chance to officially declare their intention, or bow out. And a few were still wavering indecisively on the eve of the Feb. 3 filing date.

Since press time preceded the 4 p.m. deadline by several hours, the final tally of hats in the ring was not completed.

Candidates who hau filed their petitions or announced their firm intention of running in the May Primary, were headed by mayor candidates — for the Democrats, Paul Haytcher, city solicitor.

Those seeking the mayor's post on the Republican slate were incumbent Mayor William Holzhause, victor in the last election as an Independent; James Polzer, who announced his resignation as city service director effective Feb. 3, and Walter B. Moling, defeated by Holzhause in the last election.

Councilman James Toomey, Democrat, will seek the city solicitor's job, and Republican James Maxwell, former city solicitor, will make his bid for the post.

In the auditor's race is incumbent Walter Helber, Democrat, and Francis Cooke, Republican.

L. W. Felber is on the Democrat slate for treasurer, and Larry Shipley, 21-year-old son of Councilman Ray Shipley, will oppose incumbent Francis E. (Red) Shaeffer on the Republican slate for the post.

John H. Ramsey, Democrat, and incumbent Walter Siemer, Republican, filed petitions for council president.

On the Democrat slate, incumbents Marvin Levine and Loren Mason, and William Schoonover filed for the at-large posts.

Lewis Bower, Ward 1; Phil Neubecker, Ward 2; C. E. (Bill) Leeson, Ward 3, and incumbent Gilbert O'Shaughnessy, Ward 4.

Republicans filing nomination petitions for council seats are, incumbent Ray Shipley, former councilman Linn Hiatt, Ted Harmony, Civil Service Commissioner Joseph Shannon, and Al Hallis, Jr., at large.

Incumbent Lester K. Ballanger will seek to return to council from Ward 1; incumbent Roger R. Stahley, Ward 2; John Bishop and George Snyder, Ward 3, and Charles Carroll, Ward 4.

'Sherwood,' 'Old Orchard' Suggested

Names for two new area schools, scheduled for construction this year, were suggested to the Columbus Board of Education Tuesday.

Members referred the suggestions to a committee for recommendations.

The new junior high, to be constructed on Shady Lane-rd two blocks north of Livingston-av, would be known as "Sherwood Junior High."

The $900,000 building, with a capacity of 750 students, will be patterned closely after Eastmoor Junior High's award-winning design, with a colonnade courtyard.

"Old Orchard Elementary" is the name suggested for the school planned east of McNaughten-rd between E. Main and E. Broad-st. The school site is just west of Reynoldsburg, and will become the easternmost building in the Columbus System.

Both buildings will be ready for occupancy by next September.

BAND CONCERT FRIDAY AT WHITEHALL HIGH

Whitehall-Yearling High School Bands will present a concert Friday, Feb. 5, 8 p.m. in the school auditorium.

The concert will be conducted by J M Day, assistant high school band director, and William Young, guidance director at the school and a former band instructor.

Lawrence Griffin, band director is ill and unable to conduct at the concert.

He has written "The Liberties of an American," a chronicle of the Supreme Court decisions in civil rights and civil liberties and "This Honorable Court," a history of the United States Supreme Court, scheduled for publication in 1965.

In every major church-state or religious liberty case before the Supreme Court in the past 15 years, Dr. Pfeffer participated either as counsel for a party or as "friend of the court."

A graduate of the City College of the City of New York (BSS), Dr. Pfeffer also holds the degree of Doctor of Jurisprudence from the New York University.

Ministers Hear Ewald Discuss State Hospital

Victor S. Ewald, coordinator of Volunteer Services, Columbus State Hospital, was guest speaker at the January meeting of the Whitehall Ministerial Association. It is the policy of the Whitehall Ministerial Association to have a person each month who can deal in depth and with knowledge, about a particular community function.

Ewald has been with the Columbus State Hospital for 10 years. Primarily, he is coordinator of volunteer activities at the hospital and informs the community about the history, development and problems of the Columbus State Hospital.

Ewald said that mental illness or emotional disturbance is becoming less of a stigma than it was 10 years ago. He feels that mental illness, much like TB, is becoming a more acceptable fact and therefore less feared and more reasonably dealt with.

Ewald encourages as many people as possible to visit Columbus State Hospital to become familiar with the functions that the hospital plays in our community.

Real Estate Problems Solved At Rucker Realty

You cannot occupy the position of a first-line supervisor for nearly a quarter of a century without becoming a good listener to many people and their problems, George M. Groom said recently.

Groom, a supervisor for 23 years with a large industrial firm in Columbus, was explaining why, at 56 years of age, he suddenly decided to change careers.

"Sooner or later, everyone feels an urge to accomplish something on his own," Groom said. "In a shop, your effort is mingled with that of many others. Regardless of how good the product is, you lack a feeling of personal accomplishment."

In real estate, Groom explained, each transaction is an accomplishment. "It gives you a feeling of having done something important when you place someone in a home they've always wanted and they say 'Thank you!' very sincerely."

Groom's years as a supervisor has oriented him to accepting the problems of many people and, more important, to finding means of solving them.

"If you have a problem in real estate, Groom can probably find a solution for you," says Fred Rucker, who operates Rucker Realty at 45 Wilson-rd. "Drop in and talk it over with him. He's a good listener."

Rucker Realty is a member of the Columbus Board of Realtors and offer their clients the advantage of MLS, the Multiple Listing Service which, at no extra cost, provides the services of more than 200 local offices in the search for the ideal home, or sale of your property. —Adv.

East, E-M Eye Top; Rams, Lions Matched

The days (and schedule) are growing shorter for Bill Courtney's Eastmoor club, currently tied for the top spot in the scrambled City League cage chase with three other teams, all with 7-1 slates.

The Weyant-av Warriors barely held their first-place status last week at Walnut Ridge where Jackie Moore's fired-up Scots dropped a tough 44-40 verdict after being out-scored 11-3 in the third canto.

THE 'SLOW DOWN' match saw W-R hit a chilly 31 percent to E-M's torrid 35 percent, led by playmaker Jerry Grove's 16 and Ron Bollie's nine. Rick Houchen's 12, Pat Beveridge's 11 and guard Mike Tanner's nine led the spirited W-R stab.

E-M (10-2) treks to co-leading Linden McKinley (10-2) tomorrow evening for a go at 5'7 Ed Guice (16.4) and 6'5 Chris Ralston. A win is mandatory for both clubs in order to survive two more sets of games for the coveted City League title.

EAST REMAINED in title earshot with a solid 81-57 win over Brookhaven on Friday that gave the Tigers a 6-2 loop log. The Bearcat win was paced by hard-driving John Lewis (20), forward Gil Mathew's 16, Luther Curry's 12 and Vance Carr's 10.

On Saturday night, the well-trained Tigers tripped fifth-ranked state power Portsmouth, 69-61, behind a harassing press defense that acounted for four consecutive third-period goals that turned the tide for the Hartmen, now 10-2 all told.

Jumpin' John Lewis hit for 25 big markers in the win while guard Galen Bias weaved in 18. The Bengals have a big test at South (12-1) tomorrow night where the smooth-working Reb unit, led by Bill Bullock (20.2), Lloyd Pate (14-4) and 6'3 Joe Hayes, will be bidding for its first loop title since '53.

HARTLEY'S unified efforts brought the Hawks up to a 7-0 ticket in the CCL and 12-2 overall last weekend as St. Charles (68-47) and tough Mansfield St. Peter (68-67) were victimized.

The Card trumping was dealt by Tom Schlager's 25 and Frank Tafoya's 15 while guard Denny Craft hit 15, John Ryan 13 and Tim Rooney 12 for St. Charles (0-7 in the CCL).

The Mansfield success, Hartley's sixth straight win, was brought about when radar-grooved Tom Schlager (32 tallies) hit a crucial fielder and two charities in the waning seconds of play.

Bexley pulled off a 52-51 squeaker against Grandview after rallying from a five-point deficit late in the last period. Mac Albin rammed in 16 and Pat Lemmon 10 in the win that boosted Gene Millard's crew to a 5-8 slate and 3-7 in the CBL.

The Lions journey to Arlington (8-6) tomorrow night for a go at big Bill Craft (15.2) and cohorts.

WHITEHALL'S deliberate attack was no match for powerful Urbana's fast-break clique as the 'Climbers clobbered the Rams, 94-45, despite Harv Eader's 16 and Mark Blackstone's 11 tallies.

Phil Allen's stuttering charges, unable to get a win string started, will try to get back on the triumph track Friday night at Grandview (5-8) where Bill Burchfield (17.0) and Dick Stegmeier (14.1) lie in await.

On Saturday, the Rams roll over to Bexley in a rivalry-packed neighborhood match.

ACADEMY copped a 58-50 win over Dublin behind Pete Bigelow (18), Joe Lanman's 14 and George Fulford's 12 and hit a torrid 55 percent (34 of 60) in a 90-68 victory over Ready.

Little Ole Schedulemaker Does It Again In CL Race

As is often his doing, the schedulemaker has done himself proud in laying out a wild and woolly finish for the area's most nail-biting cage race—the City League dog fight.

Before Friday's tip-off, no less than four loopmates are snugly crowded into the top spot with identical 7-1 marks.

Co-champions are not particularly unusual in cage circuits but it would take some real scrambling to assemble co-leaders South, West, Eastmoor and Linden in identical positions come Feb. 20.

Here's the remaining league schedule for the four combatants:

WEST
Feb. 5 — Whetstone
Feb. 12 — at East
Feb. 19 — Aquinas

SOUTH
Feb. 5 — East
Feb. 12 — at Aquinas
Feb. 19 — Eastmoor

LINDEN
Feb. 5 — Eastmoor
Feb. 12 — at Marion-Franklin
Feb. 19 — North

EASTMOOR
Feb. 5 — at Linden
Feb. 12 — Central
Feb. 19 — at South

Eastmoor will have the stiffest test of the four, with two games (both on the road) against co-leader opponents.

Linden, South and West have two of three games at home and two of the Cowboys' three foes occupy the loop's second division.

And don't count East (6-2) out with shots left at two co-leaders yet. Aquinas has the spoiler role with chances to dump either or both South and West.

For the record, South has scored 202 more points than its opponents. Linden has a 170 point edge, Eastmoor 75 and West 61.

Does that make South 141 points better than West? Hardly. West handed South its lone loss of the season.

You figure it out—or wait till Feb. 20 when we'll all know.

G-C, Bucs, 'Cats Plan Quads; Worthington Hosts Invitational

With time running out on preparations for loop tourneys, Central, Grove City, Westerville and Worthington share the wrestling spotlight this week with major mat events.

Grove City kicks off a week of "specials" with an evening quadrangular, set for 6:30 Friday on the 'Hound mats. Grappling for honors with the host Greyhounds will be Hilliard, Pleasant View and Marysville.

SATURDAY brings the bonus with quads set for Central and Westerville and Worthington hosting an Invitational.

Linden, Brookhaven and West are Central's guests. Prelims are set for 1:30 p.m. with finals following at 3. At Westerville, Walnut Ridge, Eastmoor and DeSales are visitors. Prelims at 1 p.m., finals at 3

Worthington sports the classiest lineup for its Invitational with Toledo, Devilbiss, Martins Ferry, Sandusky, Circleville, Arlington, Franklin Heights and Whitehall challenging the Cards for honors.

PRELIMS begin at noon on three mats with finals scheduled for 7 p.m. Trophies will go to the first place and runnerup teams and individual winners. Seconds, thirds and fourths will take home medals.

Admission is 75 cents for adults and 50 cents for students per session.

RESULTS

NOT SO fortunate with a home mat quadrangular was East who finished last behind winner Brookhaven (84), runnerup Worthington (79) and Arlington (59) with 57 points.

The Tigers had four entries in finals events — Roland Martin (175), Grady Bobo (hwt), Tilton Reed (138) and Gary Rispress (154) — but only Martin and Bobo managed wins.

In dual competition, Walnut Ridge scored 20 points in the final four events to race past Eastmoor, 31-14.

TERRY, AND Steve Roberts, Tex Rife, Bill Masch and Dave Walters got wins for the Scots (the latter three via pins).

Mike Sullivan got Eastmoor's lone pin although Roy Leonard, Ron Reid and Pete Johnson took decisions for the Warriors.

ONLY HARTLEY wins came on Jim Carpenter's decision at 165 and John Bayly's pin in the heavyweight division.

Bexley rallied in the late events but couldn't overtake Whitehall as the Rams won, 25-19.

In the pin department, John Wittman, Randy Nichols and Randy Catalina got five pointers for the Rams while Tom Shafer, Dennis Walker and Bruce Levin did likewise for the Lions.

Mike Decker, Wes Seymour and Dave Mowrer took Whitehall decisions while Rick Doty got a nod for Bexley.

PIN WINS by Tom Shafer (120) and Rick Doty (154) helped pace Bexley to a 24-19 verdict over Grove City Tuesday.

Al Fulford (112), Doug Felger (133), Bruce Levin (165) and Larry Miller (175) turned in decisions for the Lions.

Hartley padded a 39-6 victory over University with five forfeit wins with Paul Burkey (145) running his mark to 7-0 with a pin win.

PAT BURKEY and Joe Weldon notched decisions for the Hawks. Top match of the day came in the heavyweight slot where Hartley's John Bayly decisioned the Little Bucks' Martin Foster, 8-1, in a battle of the unbeatens.

Walnut Ridge toppled Granville, 28-17, as Tex Rife (120) and Dave Walter (hwt) secured five pointers on pins for the Scotties.

FARM FORECAST

— Clay Eager

Harold S. Stiver, a prominent farmer in corn production recently asked your reporter to delve into the corn stocks in Ohio, and this I have done. The figures in this week's column were taken from the Ohio State University Co-Op Extension service Econogram.

Corn stocks on Ohio farms Jan. 1 totaled 121.3 million bushels, smallest since Jan. 1, 1958, and 18 percent less than a year ago. The reduced stocks, a slightly higher CCC resale price, and deficit areas account for Central and Western Ohio corn prices currently averaging about a nickel above a year ago.

Looking on a national level at the corn stock, we find that stocks total some 2,784 million bushels, down 14 percent from a year ago.

I repeat that we welcome your observations and questions and will do as much research as possible with the many agencies and farm organizations. I forward many questions to the extension services for direct answers and attempt to print ones of mass interest, with answers and quotations from informed sources.

My many years on the farm and in farm programming qualify me for reporting and acting as a clearing board for your numerous inquiries through TV and The Spectator, but I do rely on the many facilities and contacts at our disposal for accurate and concise facts and quotes.

See Clay Eager's Farm Forecast, program weekdays 6:30 to 7 a.m. on TV-4.

Electric dryers are first choice of 8 out of 10 women.

One reason: electric dryers cost less to buy!

Electric sets pace as 1,011 women tell why and how they pick and choose dryers.

Over 1,000 homemakers in The Electric Company service area recently took part in an independent study of why and what they preferred about certain appliances.

Naturally, automatic clothes dryers were included and compared.

This big cross-section of "experts" left no question about the overwhelming preference in this area for flameless electric dryers.

They gave lots of reasons why, but one important feature heads the list: the fact that electric dryers cost less to buy!

Flameless electric dryers preferred 9 to 1 for low initial cost!

Nine times out of 10, women mentioned this money-saving advantage of flameless electric dryers. (There was little doubt—even among owners of all types of dryers—that electric dryers, feature for feature, cost less to buy.)

Prove it to yourself. Visit your favorite appliance dealer and compare dryers. You'll find electric dryers do cost less to buy.

Significantly so.

While you're looking, there are some things you won't see — and these unseen features are more of what makes electric dryers most preferred by homemakers in the Columbus and Southern Ohio area.

Area homemakers offer you buying hints for dryers.

In fact, if you've never owned an automatic clothes dryer, here's a buying hint for you: 8 out of 10 local women who begin enjoying all the time-and-work-saving convenience of automatic clothes drying start with a flameless electric dryer.

You see, far more than the low price of an electric dryer appeals to women.

Women prefer more features of flameless electric dryers.

Once you get it home, you continue to save with electric.

Here's why:

There's only one connection to make. Electricity runs the dryer and dries the clothes. Pure radiant electric heat gently dries everything from your daintiest lingerie to Dad's work clothes; and because flameless electric heat is so clean, it protects clothes as it dries them fluffier, brighter and fresher.

You save time and steps because you can put your electric dryer wherever it's most convenient for you — upstairs, downstairs, in the kitchen, even the garage. Put it any place you can run a wire!

Over the years, you'll get more use from your electric dryer, too. With fewer moving parts to wear out, they last longer.

It's easy to see why, in homes that have automatic dryers, you find 7 out of 10 dryers are flameless electric!

Every day, more people give more reasons for going electric!

Someday, you will want a new automatic dryer for your home.

The chances are good you're thinking about one right now.

Before you buy, shop around. Compare closely. Check the prices. Then remember that the important advantages of flameless electric dryers don't show up until you get one home.

Those are the benefits that count.

And they're the ones preferred by more homemakers like yourself.

You'll prefer a flameless electric dryer, too.

Even more when you get it home.

Wit 'N' Wisdom

By JACK WITTENMEIER

Well now, let's see. Jim Brown has his Hickock Belt and John Huarte has his Heisman Trophy. Baseball's MVP and "Rookie of the Year" honors have been passed out.

Anything left? Plenty!

FOR INSTANCE, there's the first "annual DeBartolo Award" soon to be graced upon the lucky fellow who has provided the best performance by a jockey during the foregoing season.

Wittenmeier

The new award they tell us will not only consider the most victories in a calendar year but figure money earned by all mounts, winning percentage and stakes winners ridden.

We don't doubt that the boys who boot 'em home deserve such an honor but we note, with increasing alarm, the number of special trophies or awards started each year—each getting just a little more specialized.

WE DON'T suppose it will be long before a few more categories are opened and then — who knows where she stops. By 1975, we envision these awards:

THE KILLER O'LEARY AWARD (year's dirtiest wrestler) — in honor of retired pro-wrestling great Danny "Killer" O'Leary, who packed 'em in from coast-to-coast with underhanded mat tactics that made him the most feared and hated competitor in the business.

THE ROSCOE MANKIEWITZ AWARD (best trapping guard under 5'6" in a Big Ten school which has never gone to the Rose Bowl) — in honor of the late, great University of Minnesota lineman who was renowned as the finest trapping guard of all time in his varsity stint on the gridiron.

Mankiewitz's illustrious career came to an end in the 1923 Rose Bowl game when he mistakenly tackled his own quarterback three times in a row and was thrown off the squad.

THE SANDER VIP AWARD (best left-handed hook shot artist, not a varsity regular) — in honor of the fabled NYC cager who was hailed as the greatest left-handed hook shot in the game while competing at Alabama (1942-43).

(Editor's note — Since the only function he could perform was a left-handed hook shot, Vip never won a varsity letter at Alabama).

THE JAMES STEELTON III AWARD (amateur golfer who loses the most balls in water hazards during one season) — in honor of the free-swinging multi-millionaire golf enthusiast who lost his entire fortune in six years on the links at New Haven Country Club.

Happy-go-broke Steelton reportedly drove 14,000 golf balls into three water hazards on the course in his top season (1953).

THE OSCAR "CRAZY" DOLT AWARD (rookie driver in the Indy 500 who refuses to make a tire change) — in honor of the deceased auto racer who vowed he would finish the '500 on his original set of tires. (Dolt finished the '47 race at the northwest turn—35 laps and three simultaneous blowouts from the finish line.)

Policy Papers . . .

"Ohio is an unusual state. She is rich in people, a highly educated and industrious people. She is rich in agriculture and industry. She is rich in many types of natural resources."

These are the opining words of the first of a series of "Policy Papers" being prepared by the Ohio Department of Natural Resources. According to Department boss Fred E. Morr, these papers are being prepared "to solidify our position, to set a standard base for conducting future operations."

So far three of these papers dealing with the operations of this state agency have been completed and, as all of them will be, have been submitted to the power advisory agency called the Recreation and Resources Commission for approval.

POLICY Paper No. 1, from which we quoted, is titled simply "Outdoor Recreation in Ohio," and discusses such points as the sharply rising needs for outdoor recreation, policy for development of outdoor recreation facilities, methods of getting money, operation and maintenance of facilities.

Ken McCreary

One important point covered which is expected to become a reality in the near future — "a system of entrance and user charges" at state parks and other recreation spots, with the objective of making the facilities largely self-supporting.

Policy Paper No. 2 deals with "Land Acquisition." The department's policy calls for almost doubling the 306-thousand acres of land now administered by the Natural Resources department.

The new land would include thousands of acres for enlarging present areas, supplementing continuing projects such as state forests, and providing for future needs through "a well-balanced program of development and timely land acquisition.'

THE THIRD of the policy statements covers the relationship between the state and private individuals and agencies in development of facilities on state-owned lands. Where feasible private enterprise will be encouraged to build and operate facilities on state areas — this would include such projects as lodges, marinas, golf courses, ski slopes and restaurants.

Additional Policy Papers will be completed in future weeks, according to departmental spokesmen, covering a number of other facets of Natural Resources.

Another bright spot in the outdoor field appears in the current series of study courses being offered by the Center of Science and Industry, 280 E. Broad-st in Columbus. Among the fine and varied courses available to youngsters are two titled "Conservation."

Each of the eight-and-a-half-hour courses will deal with various aspects of conservation in Ohio, with emphasis on our wildlife. Conservation 301 is for boys and girls in the fifth to seventh grade range, while Conservation 401 is for those in the eighth to 12th grades. Both classes meet at the Center on Saturday mornings, and even though the first class was held Sat., Jan. 23, Bill Schmitt, the education director, assures me that your youngsters are still welcome to enter. For all the scoop you can call the center, 228-6361.

From us, a hearty tip of the Under-Buckeye-Skies cap to the Center of Science and Industry for recognizing the need for conservation for our younger generation. To Sandy Halleck and all his staff — CONGRATULATIONS!

The 'Fair Bus Bill': A Look At Both Sides Of The Story

The so-called "Fair Bus Bill" facing the 106th Ohio General Assembly has been labeled the most controversial issue of this legislative session. Reportedly, the measure would place all children in schools accredited by the state under the same rules and regulations relating to bus transportation.

At issue is the question of providing tax-supported bus service for students in parochial and other non-public schools. The main arguments with direct relationship to the bus bill center on these questions:

Does such state aid violate the Constitutional guarantee of church-state separation? Is bus service an integral part of the cost of education, or a matter of welfare and safety of the children involved? Does denial of such service violate Constitutional guarantees against penalizing a person because of his choice of belief or non-belief in a particular religious faith?

The information presented below is the result of interviews with both supporters and opponents of the "Fair Bus Bill."

For The Bill–

Sponsor of the bus bill, Citizens For Educational Freedom (CEF), is a national organization with Ohio headquarters in Cincinnati. Among those in support of the measure are:

The Ohio AFL-CIO, Ohio Catholic Welfare Conference, Ohio Federation of Civic Clubs, Hamilton County Board of Education, Cleveland City Council, the Right Rev. Roger W. Blanchard, bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Southern Ohio, and the Ohio Democratic Party, which advocates such legislation as a plank in its current platform.

CEF and other bus bill supporters say the questions of church-state separation and aid to non-public schools were answered by the United States Supreme Court in its 1947 "Everson vs. Board of Education" case. The court affirmed the right of the state of New Jersey to pay bus transporation cost for a parochial school student.

Bus bill advocates cite a 1963 legal opinion of Ohio Attorney General William B. Saxbe. In answer to a set of questions from the Medina Board of Education, Saxbe ruled bus transportation for private or parochial schools illegal in Ohio. He said a public school board of education has no authority except that specifically granted by the legislature.

CEF emphasized two specific points covered by Saxbe in his legal opinion. Here are the two quotes most often cited from the ruling:

"I am constrained to note," Saxbe wrote, "that the United States Supreme Court in Everson vs. Board of Education has already determined that activity such as here involved is an exercise of public welfare powers for the benefit of the children concerned and does not violate the First or Fourteenth Amendments of the Constitution of the United States."

'And near the conclusion of his opinion, Saxbe reported:

"I am, therefore, of the opinion that legislative action is necessary before private or parochial school pupils may be furnished transportation in public school system buses."

The "Fair Bus Bill," CEF leaders say, is simply a means to secure "legislative action" in conformity with the Attorney General's legal opinion. They allege that there is no conflict with the Ohio Constitution, but add that this is a "moot" question in view of the decision by the U. S. Supreme Court, which supersedes state courts.

And while the 1947 U. S. Supreme Court decision is used as the "hallmark" case, CEF points to a 1962 "reinforcement" of the earlier ruling. The latter case involved the refusal of the State of South Carolina to qualify a woman for unemployment compensation. As a practicing member of the Seventh-Day Adventist Church, she had refused to work on Saturday, the sabbath day of her faith.

CEF Columbus District Chairman Donald J. Kegelmeyer quotes a portion of the 1962 U.S. Supreme Court ruling which says:

"This holding but reaffirms a principle that we announced a decade and a half ago, namely that no state may 'exclude individual Catholics, Lutherans, Mohammedans, Baptists, Jews, Methodists, non - believers, Presbyterians, or the members of any other faith, because of their faith, or lack of it, from receiving the benefits of public welfare legislation.'"

Speaking for the Ohio Catholic Welfare Conference, Executive Secretary James J. Hollern had this to say about the bus proposal:

"The Ohio Catholic Welfare Conference, which speaks officially for the state's six bishops, said traffic hazards are increasing, and pointed out that 20 states provide all-inclusive bus rides in the American tradition of fair play. The conference said that the bus bill would be a safety and welfare measure and the same as the public health services and federal surplus food programs for free school lunches in which all school children now share."

Bus bill supporters bristle at charges that the parochial schools involved are "completely controlled" by the religious groups who operate them. Actually, they say, the accredited parochial schools must fulfill the same state minimum standards applicable to public schools, and covering subjects taught, teacher certification and compulsory pupil attendance. These regulations are a matter of state law, and administration of these laws rests solely with the Ohio Department of Education, a state agency.

But even beyond this, they say, state support of bus transportation for private and parochial school children is not an aid-to-education matter, but a welfare and safety service to the child.

In Opposition–

The strongest single source of opposition to the "Fair Bus Bill" comes from an organization with nationwide membership, Protestants and Other Americans United for the Separation of Church and State (POAU). POAU activities are being co-ordinated with those of a statewide group, the Ohio Free Schools Association.

Groups opposing the bus bill include the Ohio Council of Churches, Columbus Area Council of Churches, Greater Cincinnati Council of Churches, the Northern Ohio Independent Baptist Fellowship of Churches and Jewish community groups in Cincinnati and Cleveland.

The most pertinent arguments advanced by opponents of the Fair Bus Bill center on the following points:

1. They maintain that the U.S. Supreme Court Everson ruling did not rule that states must provide bus service for children in parochial schools; did not say that Constitutional rights of these children would be violated by lack of such service, and did not override state constitutions which specifically prohibit such service. All the U.S. Supreme Court did, they say, is to rule "by the narrowest possible margin" (5-4) that the Federal Constitution is not violated when a state permits state and local tax funds to be used to reimburse parents for parochial school bus expenditures.

2. Bus transportation, the opponents say, is an integral part of the cost of education, and any tax-supported aid towards this cost is at least indirect financial aid to the church and school involved. While admitting that this view is at variance with the Everson ruling, they say that the closeness of the vote, and a subsequent decision in 1948, "give hope" that the U.S. Supreme Court "will some day reverse itself."

3. The opponents see the bus proposal as a "wedge driven into the heart of the wall of separation of church and state." If the bus bill is enacted, they say, its supporters will be further strengthened to "further breach" the church-state separation concept.

POAU members vigorously deny charges that their actions are motivated by an anti-Catholic attitude. Their differences arise, to a great extent, with the Catholic Church and the Catholic school systems. But this, they say, is because more than 90 percent of all parochial schools in the country are Catholic.

Local members point out that POAU was primarily responsible for preventing a Protestant denomination in Texas from assuming control of a public tax-supported hospital. Closer to home, they say they are challenging school bus service for children attending a Lutheran school in a nearby community.

POAU and other bus bill dissenters maintain that parents who choose parochial and private schools over the available public schools should be prepared to pay all direct and incidental costs. They point out that those who have no children in the public schools also pay taxes for support of education.

Another point of the opponents is included in the resolution of opposition to the bus bill released by the Columbus Area Council of Churches which says in part: "It would be unjust, unfair and illegal to expect citizens, who already support schools for the entire community, to be taxed to support any aspect of a second set of separate and segregated schools which they did not establish, over which they have no control and in which they have no voice or representation . . ."

Some of the anti-bus bill element, particularly POAU, cite the U.S. Supreme Court decision in the "McCollum" case of 1948 as an indication of a change from the stand taken in the earlier Everson ruling. In the McCollum hearing, the court ruled against the teaching of religion in public school class rooms during the normal school day. The program ruled out by the court permitted clergy to conduct religion classes, with voluntary participation by the students.

A delegation from POAU recently visited Ohio Attorney General William B. Saxbe to discuss the bus issue. He informed them that he had made no official ruling on the matter as it relates to the Ohio Constitution. Saxbe said: "We do not propose to rule on the Constitutionality of this or any other proposed legislation. If it's passed by the legislature, of course we must defend it."

POAU has indicated that the Fair Bus Bill will be tested in the courts if it is enacted into law.

An Editor's Outlook . . .

by Jenkin Lloyd Jones

Immigration: Whose Country Is It?

President Lyndon Johnson has called for a massive liberalization of our immigration laws and an end to the quota systems which have favored persons born in Western Europe over persons born elsewhere.

"The procedures we have followed," said the President, "imply that men and women from some countries are, just because of where they come from, more desirable citizens than others. Relationships with a number of countries, and hence the success of our foreign policy, is needlessly impeded by this proposition."

Jones

Now, at the risk of losing my Boy Scout merit badge for cosmic tolerance, I might suggest that if the majority of Americans had sprung, not from western Europe, but from central Africa or southern Asia, we would have a vastly different country. There are, in all parts of the world, fine human beings, but peoples differ widely in their social habits, their levels of ambition, their mechanical aptitudes, their moral traditions and their capacities for maintaining stable, popular governments.

Why should the United States be the only advanced nation in the world to develop a guilt complex over selective immigration? Every other country that is attractive to immigrants selects baldly and without apology.

Trinidad is in the British Commonwealth. Yet under a new British law, immigration from Trinidad is closely restricted. But President Johnson's proposed bill would make Trinidad quota-free.

The President has decried our present stringent quotas for Asiatic immigrants. Australia has no quota at all. It simply excludes anyone of non-European ancestry. And the Japanese Government discourages immigration from any country. A spokesman for the Japanese embassy in Washington this month stated simply that the Japanese are of one race and proud of it.

Although any person may apply for immigration to Israel, that government frankly seeks only an "ingathering of the Jews." Last year a Jew who had become a Catholic was denied citizenship by an Israeli court.

Each year, for 175 years, the United States has received more immigrants than any other nation in the world.

President Johnson, in his immigration message, says that the current American immigration quota is 158,361 annually, and that there are already substantially more immigrants than the quota figures indicate. There are no quotas for Latin America, nor for spouses and children of American citizens. In addition, Congress keeps passing special bills to admit immigrants. According to the Population Reference Bureau, the net immigration to the U.S.A. during the 10 years of the 1950's was 2.7 million.

President Johnson claims that his proposed bill would make it easier for people of "special skills" to come and help the American economy. Yet it would immediately double the quotas for such countries as Tanzia, Malawi, Yemen and Nepal, in which persons with "special skills" needed in America might be hard to find.

Unlike the immigration restrictions of almost every advanced country, the President's bill would admit persons suffering from feeblemindedness, insanity and psychopathic personality, if their families promised to take care of them. The requirement that immigrants would have to have the promise of a job would be taken out.

Now, if the President's bill were passed, who would come? You can get some indication by the current backlog of unsatisfied visa applications. In Greece there are 350 current applications for every place under the present annual quotas. In India there are 150 such applications; in Israel, 150; in Portugal, 125; in Jamaica, 115; and in the United Arab Republic, 90. Is the President really going to try to satisfy these anxious-to-leave-home people in the interest of the "success of our foreign policy"?

Why haven't other advanced nations felt it in the interest of their own foreign policies to let down their immigration bars?

The plain fact is that nothing America could do, without utterly destroying herself, could measurably ease the population woes of a world in which 125,000 people are being added every day.

The plain fact is that as long as America remains prosperous, there will be cries of rage from people who would like to get in and can't. Even a well-heeled Korean coolie could live more comfortably on relief in a New York tenement.

And the plain fact is that America is not hurting for population or job seekers. America now contains 193 million people. Our current birthrate is more than twice our deathrate. By 1980, even without President Johnson's new, liberal immigration law, we will have 240 million people.

Every other nation in the world writes its immigration laws to suit itself. Every other nation in the world says, "It is our country, and so what?"

Well, it's our country, too, and when we start writing immigration laws to suit the hungry camel drivers of Upper Malaria, old man History will bust his buttons laughing.

(T-M, WRR Gen. Fea. Corp.)

Guest Pulpit . . .

Philippians 2:15, "We must shine as lights in a crooked and perverse nation."

The great poverty which is facing the world today is the poverty of spiritual and moral leadership. Men are confused, and they know that they are confused. Individuals know not where to turn to find leadership and guidance in this complex and confused world in which we live. We are poor because we have no competent leaders.

Rev. Daniel

But poverty of leadership, confusion and complexity are nothing new. Men in every generation have felt that their particular age was the worst. When the world has been the darkest, it was up to the church to shine forth with its brightest light. Instead of being discouraged by the world, the church should give encouragement to the world. Instead of being a part of the world's problems, the church must strive to be a part of the answer. Paul wrote, "We must shine as lights in a crooked and perverse nation."

Into the poverty of our lives must come a divine leader. Into the poverty of our lives must come the Leader of leaders who will give us the guidance that we so sorely need. We must look to the Master of life to find the basis and the secret of a Deeper Life. We must stand humbly before Him, and allow Him to lead us out of the poverty of our existence into the spiritual pilgrimage that awaits us. We must follow Christ and allow Christ to point the way.

In the poverty of our lives we must follow Christ's leadership in relationship with the Scriptures. Jesus knew and understood and used the Scriptures. Jesus translated their precepts into life. He pointed the way to new power and freedom through a knowledge of the Scriptures.

And then Jesus points the way out of the poverty of our existence through the use of prayer. Jesus took time to pray and if Jesus had not been a man of prayer, He would never have become the Savior of the world. The secret of Jesus' power was in His knowledge of the Scriptures and in His vital prayer life.

The church stands today in a strategic place. It must come forward with a leadership that will point the way out of the poverty of our living toward a world-wide crusade of bringing Christ to the nation and to the world. We are living in poverty only because the church has failed to lead us to the Master. We must renew our allegiance to the Master and allow Him to give us new strength, new power and a new zeal that will transform our lives and make the world a different and a better place in which to live.

Rev. Raymond S. Daniel, Sr., pastor
Briggsdale Union Methodist Church

Mayor Outlines Purpose Of Transit Study Committee

To the Editor:

In your Jan. 21 issue, a Mr. A. R. Thomas commented on the transit service here in Columbus. I read the letter with interest and, although I recognize the fact that every individual is entitled to his opinion, I would like to make some observations as to the letter.

The City Council by unanimous vote approved the appointment of a Mass Transit Study Committee, whose function would be to evaluate and consider the recommendation of the Citizens' Transit Study Committee.

For the information of your readers, who may not be familiar with the facts, I would like to point out just what the background history happens to be in regard to this matter.

In April 1963, the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. publicly stated that the Columbus Transit Co. was for sale. In February 1964, the Development Committee for Greater Columbus organized the Citizens' Transit Study Committee, made up of 32 organizations, among which were the Chamber of Commerce, Retail Merchants and the Columbus Board of Realtors. This group recommended that the City Council place a charter amendment on the ballot at the May 1965 Primary to provide for a transit authority with public ownership and private management.

At the present time, the Mass Transit Study Committee, which is composed primarily of governmental officials, is studying the recommendation of the Citizens' Committee and it will then make its report to the City Council by Feb. 15, as to whether they deem it to be feasible or otherwise for a charter amendment to be submitted to the voters so that the general public can either approve or disapprove public ownership.

Personally, I favor private ownership; but if that is not practicable, then we must accept public ownership, if that is what the people want; and it will not be only my decision. This question would be left entirely to the people, who would then decide it by the manner in which they would vote in the election. Whatever is best for the people of the City of Columbus is what I would like to have.

I certainly hope that this letter has helped to clarify the purpose of the Mass Transit Study Committee and why it is necessary for such a committee to exist.

M. E. Sensenbrenner
Mayor of Columbus

In Tribute To 'Winnie'

To the Editor:

I wish to present this as an elegy in memory of Sir Winston Churchill. Acknowledgement: "The Bugle Song," by Alfred Lord Tennyson.

The darkness falls on castle walls
And England's moorlands, old in story;
The shades of night have fallen now
On one whose life was wreathed in glory.
The muted bugle sets no wild echoes flying,
But still the answer echoes, dying, dying, dying.

O hark! O hear! How far and clear
That sound of VICTORY still is heard;
The world can ne'er forget, nor know
The scope of this man's spoken word;
So, blow bugle, let us hear the purple glens replying;
And all those echoes answer, dying, dying, dying.

O Man! They do not die in yon black sky,
They seem to grow on hill and river;
His echoes roll from soul to soul,
And grow forever and forever;
Blow bugle, blow, set the wild echoes flying;
And answer, echoes, there is no dying, dying, dying.

'THE GRIST'
Ground Out by Dusty Miller

"Thou shalt lie down with kings, the powerful of the earth; the wise, the good, and so shalt thou rest."

The purple mountains' majesty could be enhanced by reformation with sprouts from the federal-funds tree.

"Real Estate Remains the Best Investment." — Headline. Like, for instance, U.S. embassies and libraries in foreign countries.

Dusty

Due to my poverty, "Him" got the nod, not me, at the inauguration. But in the Great Society I'll rank as high as he, and give the dog oration." — F. L. Dough.

But educating boys with federal funds will deny them their constitutional right, as future fathers, to brag to their sons about how they worked their way through college.

Mark Antony urged Romans to "beg a hair of Caesar's head, to bequeath as a rich legacy to their issue." That's what friends of Spectator Publisher C. C. Hartley will do with the incomparable letter he wrote to himself on his birthday anniversary.

While Americans heard with reverential and approving appreciation the superlative prayers at the inauguration, the Chief Justice just stood there and let millions of school children listen, although he doesn't allow them to pray. (If this be treason, shoot, if you must, this old bald head.)

Frosting on the Cake
BY "UNCLE DOC" ROSS — U.S.A.

Minds that have acquired a realistic sense of justice and respect for others by age 10 have laid a real foundation for added wisdom as life unfolds. Experience is NOT always the best teacher. Too often it is a dangerous cumulative growth of utterly wrong knowledge.

Children kindly but firmly disciplined on the indispensable virtues of decent social behavior have a line of direction by age 6. Tantrums, screaming sessions, deliberate destruction of toys and furniture are red lights of terrific import to parents .

Thousands of men and women wind up in prisons because they never had their education attended to on both ends. By 10 many are so fixated in anti-social bullheadedness that life is never going to be worth living.

Then comes the day; a dear doting Mama has a typical Castro ready to start to school. Teacher loses her mind trying to "unwind" a spoiled brat. Finally she blows her stack and takes the little ruffian apart because he has it coming. Then Mama has the teacher arrested for assault and battery.

The "roof falls in" on a disgraced family and the juvenile goes from one school of crime to another.

The saddest trip one can watch is when a person goes from the high chair to the electric chair.

It still makes sense to make kids mind. Not abuse, but "the law of the home" right from the cradle.

COFFEE BREAK

My Kids Read Only The Finest Menus

By ADELINE DALEY

In our never-ending pursuit of culture and gracious living, we believe in periodically taking our children out to dine in fancy restaurants.

How else will the kids learn how to read a menu and become familiar with such gourmet items as vichyssoise and caviar? In fact, how can I learn what these are without eating out occasionally?

Of course, it would be simple if everybody read a menu the way I do—by just scanning the prices and ordering the least expensive items; thus avoiding Chateaubriand for Two at $9.

What I'm looking for is the entree which feeds nine people for $2. There is an art, however, in not letting the waiter know by announcing aloud, "Oh, Dear, I don't think I could stand filet mignon again."

For these reasons, we don't take our kids out to dinner too often. Maybe that's why we have a habit of choosing the wrong kind of restaurant, because inevitably we will select the type of place which is decorated in "Early Palace of Versailles" — thick rugs, gilded walls and high ceilings —with matching prices.

Without checking, you can tell that the prices are high because the fruit cocktail is referred to as "Fruit Compote" and soup is called "Potage."

This type of restaurant usually has such a staid, quiet atmosphere that you unconsciously speak in hushed tones.

Before we have time to sneak out, however, the hostess—who looks like a fugitive from a Charles Addams cartoon—will spot us and find us a table. Which isn't too difficult because, aside from a couple obviously celebrating their 75th wedding anniversary, the dining room is deserted.

We are then presented with a menu which offers more of a selection than I prepare in a year. All attempts on my part, however, to recommend the more moderate - priced dishes are ignored.

Our kids want the entrees which require "10 minutes more to prepare on the charcoal broiler" and an extra 10 minutes for the bookkeeper to prepare the Timeplan loan we have to take out to pay the check.

But no restaurant overcharges us. Not when at least three waiters are required to keep us supplied in butter, bread, ice water and sugar lumps which the little ones consume by the bowlful.

'Spook' Spikes 'Coffee Club' With Punch

By JOHN AUBLE, JR.

TV-4 promotional promises heralding a "new Spook Beckman" danced through my head as I pulled into the WLW-C parking lot.

His daily "Coffee Club" show (9:30-10:30 a.m.) was to present a new Spook, they said—a Spook which Columbus viewers or listeners hadn't seen or heard before.

He looked the same, however, standing amidst a group of mostly matronly women going through his pre-show warm-up along with pretty Jeanne Cummins and "shucks, ma'am" Clay Eager.

No new Spook here. Still the flowing blond hair, the ready smile and the quick ad-lib.

At 9:30, Al Waslon's band struck up the Coffee Club theme and Spook came bouncing out, happy as a well-paid lark. Right up to the camera he went, into the applause, and in Spook's own brand of sincerity, he whispered, "Thanks a million . . . I love ya . . . I love ya all." No new Spook here, either.

It was patter time and, somehow, listening to Spook, you get the idea he's talking in a strange kind of code.

He throws a few lines at you like "rusty dusty," or "blue johnnies." He complains about having the "nervous Minervas" and feeling like "pitching a hissy" but quickly adds that he's not "too pooped to participate."

Certainly no new Spook here.

Then, it's commercial time. That's when the old Spook really shows through. He's got sponsors waiting in line, they say; and why not? It's a rare thing to see Spook read a "cue sheet" for a sales pitch — other than to make sure he gets the address correct.

No advertising man ever thought to write "spread the payments out like mayonnaise" in his ad copy.

Maybe it's the Beckman humor that's changed. Wrong again. The "grass roots" touch (calling bass player Joe Schmalz the "marshal of Marble Cliff") is still there. His "human humor" shines through brighter than ever as he says he "understands if the audience has to leave during the show, because he knows what seven cups of coffee does to the kidneys."

A new Spook Beckman? Not on your life. He's still the same robust, contagious Spook he's always been.

And I don't think Columbus would want him any other way.

PUTTING IT TO TEST BEFORE PUBLIC SEES IT

CUSTOMERS OF THE J. C. PENNEY COMPANY are given a glimpse here of some of the electronic testing equipment and technicians employed by the firm to maintain rigid quality standards. The photo was taken inside one department in the Merchandise Testing Center of the new 45-story Penney building located a few steps from Radio City in New York. Technicians, employing equipment which equals the finest instruments used at Cape Kennedy, are testing a newly-developed television chassis. Purpose is to assure that the basic circuitry meets the exceptional standards which Penney customers have recognized by their patronage since 1902, when James Cash Penney opened his first small store in Kemmerer, Wyo. Testing of soft goods such as apparel, Penney's traditional source of strength and long endorsed by Columbusites, continues to receive major emphasis at the testing center.

Insurance Complexities Demand Specialization

In his annual statement, Dennis E. Clark, CLU, placed strong emphasis on the necessity today for specialization in the insurance industry.

"Specialization for the insurance man evolves from his work with the policyholder's professional advisors, namely, the accountant, lawyer and banker," he pointed out.

Puderbaugh Clark

These demands of the sophisticated client which appear in today's market were foreseen by Clark when he departmentalized the Clark and Associates Agency at 395 E. Broad-st.

Historically, they stem from the 1958 income tax revisions that afforded the small businessman, sole proprietor or partnership, to incorporate and elect to be taxed in the same manner the taxpayer would have been taxed had he remained as sole proprietor or partnership. Additionally during the last few years, there evolved permissive legislation for professionals to incorporate.

Sibbring Smith

The insurance deductibilities that have arisen for the businessman demand specialists in different departments. These, Clark and Associates provide through departmentalization of their personalized professional insurance services.

One important department headed by Max V. Puderbaugh, a mechanical engineer and expert statistical mathematician, is the Pension and Profit Sharing Planning Department. This is the leading producer of insurance and investment dollars in tax deductible plans.

Other specialities, group insurance and health insurance, enjoy tax-favored treatment and these phases are managed by John A. Dodd, Jr.

Donald A. Sibbring manages the Personal Estate Security Plans Department. Although personal estate security generally involves the least current income tax advantage in insurance planning, Sibbring points out that the completion of personal financial planning for the relatively small businessman is often necessary before pension, group or health insurance can be employed for the benefit of the corporate-stockholder employe.

The agency's various departments were coordinated by Clark and Horace D. Smith, CLU, assistant sales manager. Clark holds the franchise for the Great-West Life Assurance Company throughout 26 Central Ohio counties.

Clark believes that change in income tax rates and other proposed legislation affecting the American businessman's insurance portfolio, will bring greater demands for more competent insurance agents and brokers, who must look to specialized assistance in their agencies and home offices.

THEY HELPED LIGHT THE 'K'ANDLES

CENTRAL OHIOANS had a prominent part in the glittering Kiwanis International Golden Anniversary celebration Jan. 21 at Cobo Hall, Detroit. Gerald Patton, first picture, far right, president of the Moundbuilders Club, Newark, was given the distinction of "wheeling in" the huge birthday cake because Jan. 21 was his 50th birthday, too. Cutting the cake are Harry Young, Detroit, only living founder of Kiwanis, and International President Edward Moylan of Miami. In picture at right are Columbusites posing with Moylan, rear, center. Members of the Hilltop club, they are, from left, International Trustee Phil Stout, with Mrs. Stout, Donald Best, William Dawson, Gary Tague, James Foote and Wilbur Ehlers.

Ohio License Plate No. 1 Prize In Safety Contest

There is still time to win Ohio's auto license plate number 1 for 1965.

The unusual prize will go to the winner of the third annual Traffic Slogan- Essay contest being held by the Ohio Department of Highway Safety, according to Director Warren C. Nelson.

Contestants submit a traffic safety slogan and an essay of not more than 100 words on "Why I believe my slogan will help reduce traffic accidents."

The winning slogan will be used throughout the year in all official activities of the Highway Safety Department. The tags will be presented to the winner by Governor James A. Rhodes.

The contest is open to all Ohio residents, regardless of age, except those under active suspension or revocation of driver's license, and those on the list of point system convictions during the present or past year.

Entries should be mailed to Ohio Traffic Safety Slogan-Essay Contest, Ohio Department of Highway Safety, 240 Parsons-av, Columbus 43205, postmarked no later than Feb. 19.

Last year's winner was John W. Shively, a London, Ohio, school teacher, who submitted the slogan "You Bet Your Life—Safety Pays."

WILL SPEAK

COLUMBUS ATTORNEY Wayne T. Geissinger, 289 S. Harding-rd, will be the principal speaker at the meeting of the American Gas Association's Great Lakes Personnel Conference Friday, Feb. 5, at the Columbus Plaza, it was announced by D. H. Stewart, manager of employe relations for Columbia Gas of Ohio. Some 35 industrial relations representatives of natural gas distribution companies throughout a seven-state area will attend the all-day meeting.

FOOD MARKETS THIS WEEK

What Will Grocer Feature In February?

By ESTELLE B. FRANKS

THIS WEEK LOOK FOR:

Fruits — Grapefruit, oranges, apples, fresh pineapple.

Vegetables — Lettuce, cabbage, broccoli, celery, dry onions, carrots.

Meat and Poultry — Eggs, beef "specials," wieners and frankfurtess, ground beef, fryers.

Other Foods — Canned and frozen vegetable "specials," canned fruit "specials," prunes.

Cherries and February have belonged together since the days of George Washington. For this February, the 1964 record-large cherry crop has provided generous supplies of canned and frozen cherries, as well as a variety of red cherry creations now in supermarkets.

Mrs. Franks

Citrus fruits seem to bring sunshine to the table even on the coldest and gloomiest day. You can have that sunshine often for February is mid-season for grapefruit and oranges and prices are softening as this year's good crop moves to market. Quality is fine. Lower prices on frozen and canned juices can also be expected during the next two months, if Florida's valencia orange crop reaches volume harvest unharmed.

Other fresh fruits being marketed in February will include good supplies of eastern apples from cold and CA storage, and more western apples. There will be a modest number of strawberries; lighter-than-usual supply of lemons; a rising supply of Hawaiian pineapples; more greenhouse rhubarb; and seasonally declining supplies of winter pears and grapes, and very few tangerines.

The new canned fruit pack is of record size — specials seem most likely for peaches, red cherries, fruit cocktail and pears. Remaining stocks of frozen fruits are about a fourth larger than last year, with the greatest increases in red cherries, peaches, apricots and strawberries. Most frozen berries are in smaller supply than a year ago.

FRESH VEGETABLES

Although a good variety of tender vegetables will reach our markets this month from southern and western growing areas, supplies will be generally light as is typical for February. The vegetables listed under this week's good buys will continue as such, and there will be more vineripe tomatoes.

Recent frosts have hurt the green beans, green peppers, radishes and summer squash. Cucumbers, eggplant and potatoes are in lighter supply and prices on these items are higher.

MEAT AND POULTRY

Among the better protein-rich buys this month will be eggs and broiler-fryers. Egg prices are expected to remain about the same as in January, which should make the consumer happier than the farmer. Prices to retail stores last month were down 12 cents per dozen from a year ago.

Broiler-fryers are expected to be more plentiful again later in the month and, therefore, offered more frequently as "loss-leaders" than was true in January.

While beef prices are expected to change little, if any, from the past weeks, upward trends are again anticipated for pork and lamb.

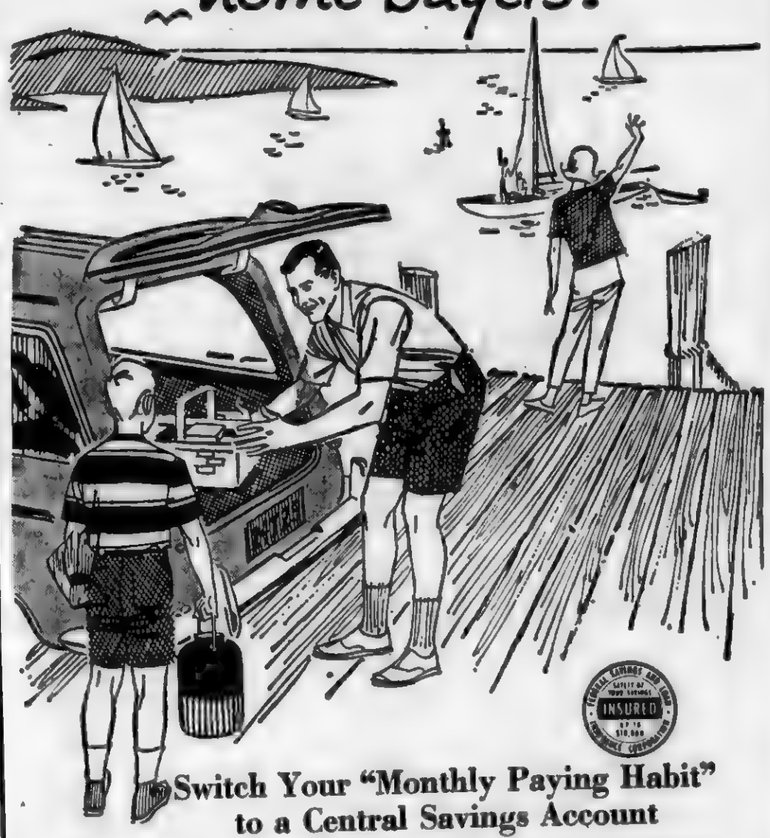
Conservation Club Opposes Highway



At the first quarterly meeting of the Allied Conservation Clubs of Franklin County, the proposed use of the Olentangy River Valley Flood Plain for the construction of a major highway was discussed.

The members have prepared a resolution protesting the planned use of the Olentangy River Valley as a site and route for a major highway, expressway or freeway.

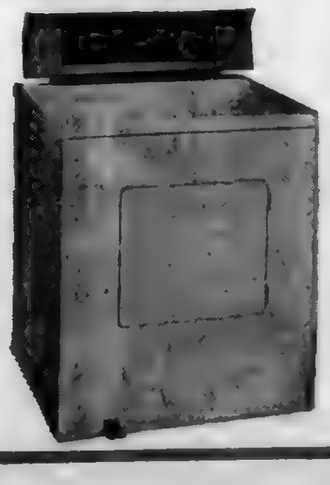
Annual Report Given

A report on the use of the 1964 Easter Seal funds was made by Mr. W. J. Treece, Executive Director of the Franklin County Society for Crippled Children, in his annual report.

Services for 721 different local crippled persons during 1964 totaled 17,743, an increase of 10 percent in number of persons served and an increase of 30 percent in total services. These figures are the highest in the local society's 25-year history.



In addition to direct services, Easter Seal funds also helped maintain the Treatment Center where services are given and the administration of the program. Funds helped contribute to a national program of research, education and professional consultation and service.

JUST SUPPOSE . . . .
That you need four bedrooms and 2 comp. baths for a growing family in Lincoln Village? Just 1 sq. from a fine school. Just suppose this home had a full dry bsmt. for the kids to wear themselves out in and save the lovely carpeting upstairs, and a nice dining rm. that would seat 8 comfortably. Just suppose it had a lot 165' deep where football could be played and the total dn. pymt. was just $900 or nothing G.I. The monthly pymt. including taxes and insurance would be $132, with an income of $575 necessary. We can deliver this 5 yr. old home — as the owner is moving suburban.

The Spectator Says:

By C. C. Hartley

Man is not ready for disarmament.

This was the opinion expressed by Gen. Thomas S. Power, USAF (retired) when he addressed the luncheon for the fifth biennial Electrical Manufacturers Exposition Tuesday noon at Veterans Memorial.

"If we have any notions along this line, we should try an experiment at home. Let's suggest that the city of Washington or New York disarm all their policemen and then let's observe what happens in our society," he said.

General Power was Commander in Chief of the Strategic Air Command and Director of the Joint Strategic Target Planning Staff at the time of his retirement Nov. 30, 1964. An active military flier for more than 35 years, with 10,000 flying hours to his credit, he was a rated Command Pilot and Aircraft Observer.

Total disarmament, the general claims, may become possible a thousand years from now or maybe a million, if people can learn to live peacefully among themselves at home. Nations have the problem of living in a world of international gangsters.

The general enthusiastically states that the United States has an overwhelming military superiority in the world today, so much so that the thought of any nuclear war on the part of any nation is utterly ridiculous. "Any nation that seeks to solve its differences by a nuclear war has reached the highest plateau of stupidity," he claims.

General Power was loud in his praise for SAC and points to the need of our continued efforts to "keep the playing field open," not just try to settle our problems by force.

America is in the unique position of having a government comparable to a three legged stool: the Congress, judicial and executive branches, backed up by freedom of the press and civilian control of the military.

Perhaps there is comfort in the words of Gen. Power if we too can believe that our real security rests in our strength!

EAST JAYCEES NAME 'MAN OF YEAR'

ROGER STAHLEY, Whitehall Councilman, was named Outstanding Young Man Of The Year at Saturday night's annual Distinguished Service Awards Banquet by Eastern Columbus Junior Chamber of Commerce. His family, adding their warm wishes to congratulations of Jaycees and guests are, from left, his mother-in-law, Mrs. Julius Anderson of 4139 Virginia Circle E.; his wife, Betty; Roger Stahley, and his mother, Mrs. Inez Stahley of Jamestown, N.Y., who flew in especially for the event. HONORED FOR SERVICE to their community and its young people by the Jaycees Saturday night were five young men, selected for contributions they have made in civic and youth activities. Dr. A. J. Weiner, at left, was honored for the second consecutive year for his outstanding record in youth work. At top, from left, Rev. James R. Metager, assistant pastor St. Edward's Episcopal Church; Donald Harrison, Whitehall firefighter who saved the life of a child last summer, and John LaCorte, Whitehall recreation director, are congratulated by Whitehall Mayor William Holzhause. The fifth young man, Roger Stahley, was selected as Outstanding Young Man Of The Year. (See story inside, Eastern Jaycees Honor)

Whitehall Relief Sewer Is Approved By Council

Whitehall Council, meeting in special session Saturday to consider a measure for the immediate installation of the Collingwood relief sewer, passed the resolution unanimously despite vigorous protests from Collingwood residents.

The delegation protested the inconvenience and nuisance of having the street torn up for months while the sewer was being laid, only to repeat the procedure later when a widened street, storm sewers, curbs and sidewalks will be installed on Collingwood.

The sewer is seen as necessary in order to develop E. Broad, presently without adequate sewer facilities and Collingwood is its only route south from Broad-st.

Mayor William Holzhause indicated he would not veto the resolution but, in deference to the rights of Collingwood residents, neither would he sign it.

Council contends that the city is financially unable to proceed with street improvements at the same time the sewer is installed.

The mayor says that it might be done by postponing certain other projects.

He continued that Collingwood residents should not be penalized for a facility that would be of no specific benefit to them, although it would aid the entire city by opening up Broad-st for development.

He further pointed out that, "it will cost the city somewhere between $15,000 and $30,000 to lay blacktop on Collingwood when the project is completed, and this would be torn up the following year when the street is improved."

The delegation Saturday asked council to complete the street improvements at this time or, if the city was financially unable to put in the street until next year, to postpone the sewer project until that time.

Broad-st property owners, also attending Saturday's session, protested that a year's delay would be detrimental to the development of the street.

Without the sewer, new businesses would have to install septic tanks.

Requiem Sung For Curran

Requiem mass for Dr. Thomas R. Curran, 52, of 2444 Brookwood-rd, was sung Saturday in St. Catharine Church. He died Feb. 3 at Mt. Carmel Hospital after a short illness.

A physician for more than 20 years, he was president of the Academy of Medicine of Columbus and Franklin County in 1963. His office was located at 2680 E. Main-st.

He was chairman of Mt. Carmel's committee on continuing medical education, past chairman of the hospital's general medical staff, secretary-treasurer of the Academy of Medicine in 1949, trustee of the Academy from 1960 to 1964 and head of the Academy's professional relations committee from 1957 through 1961.

Dr. Curran was a past president of the Academy of General Practice of Franklin County, member of the Ohio State and American Medical Associations, and a member of Christ the King Parish.

Present Zoning Permits 1085 More Apartments In Whitehall

By BETTY DAFT

Apartments, springing up like proverbial mushrooms in Whitehall at the rate of more than 600 in the past two years, will continue to sprout in the city for some time to come.

Zoning for apartments, approved before the "moratorium on apartments" went into effect when the present administration took office a year ago, may eventually swell the present tally of about 1500 apartment units by an additional 1085.

An estimated 5,250 Whitehall residents are now apartment dwellers according to A. W. "Hap" Martin, city chief building inspector, who also estimates that 70 percent of the city's population of approximately 25,000 now live in rental property.

In addition to apartment houses, double dwellings in English Village, Parklawn, Woodcliff, Fairport and Hamilton Terrace are rental properties. (Parklawn also has six eight-family apartments, and Woodcliff has four four-family and two eight-family buildings.)

Martin tallied the number of apartment possible for the city according to zoning requests previously approved, some dating back several years:

Fairlane Apartments, on Fairway-blvd east of Dimson-dr, has been zoned for 455 units, with permits issued for 108 and construction already started. The developer will install new streets—Irongate-ln, Fountain-ln and Brickwall.

A planned 188 units on the tract zoned for multi-family on Main-st, east of Whitehall Discount Center, has been held up by the lack of sewers.

More than 250 may be constructed south of the 3900 block on E. Broad, behind the new theater. An access street would have to be cut.

Four four-family buildings, with another 16 units, are now under construction at about 60 to 70 Maplewood.

Hamilton-rd north of Etna is zoned for an additional 88 units.

Multi-family zoning for approximately 88 units on Robinwood, south of the post office, was approved several years ago.

The owner of a tract on E. Broad between Beechtree and Beechwood, zoned for multi-family, way back when the entire area was rezoned to permit construction of English Village, has requested Planning and Zoning to change it to general commercial. He has indicated he will build either an office building or a restaurant.

The line has also been resolutely held on new service stations in Whitehall, with no permits issued this past year.

There are now 46 service stations in the city with, according to Martin, five standing vacant.

Citizens Asked To Support Whitehall Recreation Center

Whitehall Recreation Board, in its effort to "sell" citizens of the city on the need for a recreation center and enlist their support, has prepared a letter of explanation and a questionnaire, directed to every resident.

Board members are personally visiting citizens to explain the program and the advantages of a new center, and to answer questions. Anyone wishing information on the plan may call John LaCorte, recreation director, BE. 7-8611, or any member of the board.

The present recreation program, balanced to include events for all ages from elementary children through adults, is curtailed by the disadvantage of depending upon city school facilities.

A new center would allow a greatly expanded program, and would also prove of benefit to schools by providing facilities for training swimming teams.

Possible locations for the center, available at the present time, include Robinwood and Doney, Yearling-rd across from City Hall, the area southwest of the high school known as Lamby Lane area, Etna and Hamilton-rd, and City Park.

The center would include an olympic size pool for year round use, and two gymnasiums that could be opened into one area to serve as an auditorium with a stage. Composition floors would permit its use for basketball, roller skating or dancing, and provisions could be built in for an indoor running track.

A lounge area would provide a meeting place for young people, and rooms would be included for arts and crafts, games and meetings.

A pistol, rifle and archery range would attract adults as well as young people.

Bexley Settles Wall Dispute

Bexley Council and one of the city's residents, Barry Zacks, Jr., Tuesday night reached an agreement in their controversy over the brick patio wall Zacks had inadvertently constructed on city property.

Council concurred with the Planning and Zoning Commission's approval of Zacks' proposal to tear down the wall and rebuild it within his lot line. He was also granted a variance to rebuild the wall to its present height, which exceeds the limit for side yards set in Bexley's recently-passed fence ordinance.

Zacks agreed to remove the wall within 60 days, weather permitting, and to withdraw the temporary injunction against the city, restraining officials from tearing down the wall.

The brick fireplace wall of the patio Zacks built at his home last summer was discovered, after the patio was completed, to extend 18 inches on municipal property.

The wall was ordered to be torn down within 30 days after council defeated an ordinance that would have permitted the wall to remain by granting an easement at a cost of $50 a year for Zacks. The property owner then obtained a temporary injunction against the city.

Council also confered with Mark Merkle on his revised plans for the Merkle Apartments on E. Broad-st between Merkle and Gould - rds. Changes in the garages, to be constructed partly underground along the alley behind the apartments, were studied.

The Georgian style, luxury apartments will include six four-family units and three two-family buildings. Each will have two bedrooms and a den, and two or two and a half baths.

Fire Claims Life Of Jon Darby, 6

An apartment fire claimed the life of Jon D. Darby, six, of 44 Woodcliffe-dr, despite a rescue by firefighter Donald Harrison.

Mrs. David Darby was awakened early Saturday morning by the crying of her son. When she tried to run upstairs, she was blocked by heat and smoke. A second child, Kathy, nine, was also upstairs with her brother.

Firefighters rescued the children and revived Jon with mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. The boy was taken to Children's Hospital where he died Saturday afternoon.

Other survivors include father, David, who was at work at the time; paternal grandmother, Mrs. Janet Darby; maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Spencer.

Service was Tuesday in the Rutherford Funeral Home. Interment was in Forest Lawn Cemetery.

Whitehall Fire Chief A. T. Reddy, Sr., theorized the children had been playing with matches or a lighter.

At the first part of the week, Kathy was in fair condition in Children's Hospital.

"LANCASTER, OHIO" a serigraph in four colors by Leland S. McClelland is currently on display at Scottwood Community Church, 3330 Scottwood-rd.

Scottwood Lobby Features Paintings By McClelland

Leland McClelland, well-known Bexley painter and former cartoonist with the Columbus Citizen, has a group of 15 paintings on display in the lobby of Scottwood Community Church, 3330 Scottwood-rd. Included are scenes from Key West, Marathon, and other areas of the Florida Keys, as well as landscapes of Fairfield County. Of special interest is a serigraph showing the main street of historic Lancaster, O., and its city hall. Other familiar subjects are Lake Erie and a view of Central Market in downtown Columbus.

McClelland, who received his training in editorial art at OSU and the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts, did not take up painting until 1959, and is self-taught in this media. Because watercolors do not require much equipment and dry rapidly, he finds them ideal to use "at the scene" as he does most of his painting from the car. His favorite locale is the Central Ohio region, although he travels to Florida, North Carolina and Maine to paint both land and seascapes.

Past president of the Bexley Art Guild and the Columbus Art League, McClelland has exhibited his work at numerous libraries, churches, and business firms, as well as the Columbus and Bryson Art Galleries and the Athletic Club. He has received awards in local and regional art shows, and maintains a studio at 1309 E. Broad-st.

The exhibit will remain through Mar. 7, and the public is invited to view the paintings in the church lobby, which is open week-days from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Sundays, 9 a.m. to noon, and 5 to 9 p.m. (Closed Saturdays.)

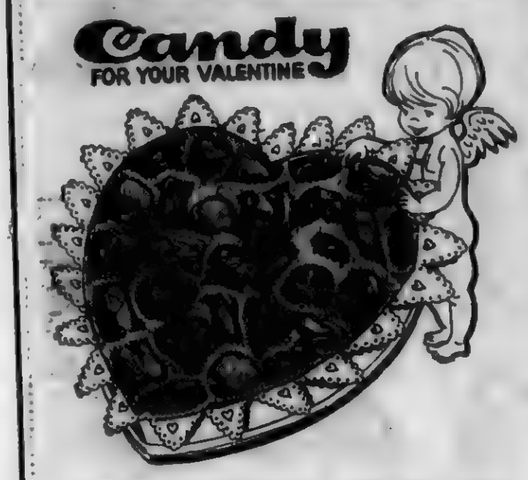
Rabbi Discusses 'Emancipators'

"The Emancipators" will be the subject of the sermon of Dr. Jerome D. Folkman at Temple Israel, 5419 E. Broad-st, at 8 p.m., Friday, Feb. 12.



In announcing his subject, Dr. Folkman explained: "Were it not for 'The Emancipator' of mankind, the human condition would be infinitely worse than it is. The conscience of Godfearing men is sorely troubled, especially in these times, whenever human dignity is degraded and humiliated. But such spiritual sensitivity has been developed by 'The Emancipators' of history. Humanity is indebted to such men as Moses, of Biblical times, and Abraham Lincoln, of the last century."

At the 11 a.m. Saturday service, Rabbi Stephen A. Arnold will discuss: "Legacy of Lincoln."

NATIONAL BEAUTY SALON WEEK
We Are Happy To Be A Part of Any Industry Dedicated To Keeping The Women of America Young and Beautiful.

LITTLE CURLS
Some little girls don't really feel like girls unless their hair is pretty. But woe the poor mother who tries to understand a child's hair. You struggle with snarles from the comb and the kidlet. Fine, hard-to-handle young hair breaks off, sticks out as if it had its own temperamental personality. In our days, we settled for Dutch bobs and braids. Then came the pony tails. None of those strict "do's" are beneficial to young hair.

SHAPER SHOW
Why not bring your daughter in for a shaping and let us teach you some tricks? We'll work around cowlicks and show you ways to control them. Stick-out wisps at the temple defy us, too. We can style her hair so they won't show so much. You'll be surprised to watch her sit up and steal glances toward the mirror. Now she knows she's a little lady!

PERM FOR HER?
Young hair is immature and even though we have some very gentle waving lotions, we don't recommend any permanent until a young tousle is part-way through grammar school. We can, however, shape up some flattery for her and you'll be happier when folks say, "she looks so much like you." Speaking of the two of you . . . why not make a dual appointment today?

IRON UNDER THE DRYER
Oh, so you've already experimented with her hair? Come in at once and we'll make repairs!

NBSW INTRODUCES THE VALENTINE LOOK . . .

Spring 'Sweetheart' Style

Members of the Columbus area Hairdressers Guild are assembling combs, brushes, curlers and other hairdressing paraphernalia in preparation for their annual visit this week to area hospitals and other institutions, where they will put their talents as cosmeologists to work for our community.

The public service project is part of the activities and celebrations saluting the 15th annual National Beauty Salon Week, Feb. 14 through 20, sponsored by the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association.

Similar service programs are being launched this week in other communities across the country, as the 70,000 members of the national association prepare to invade city, county and state institutions for a whirlwind campaign of beauty for institutionalized women who could not otherwise have the opportunity for professional beauty care.

"It may sound strange to some that 70,000 members of the National Association spend so much time in the beautification of women who may not even be allowed visitors. However, psychologists and psychiatrists applaud this program, because it is a successful way to give these women a real lift, to give them days of happiness and some hope for better days in the future," said a spokesman.

Another part of the week's program is devoted to increasing the membership in this National Professional Association.

The NHCA has been the outstanding advocate for 43 years in serving the passage of legislation. Its "model bill" has resulted in the licensing of cosmetologists in every state and in the furtherance of proper laws for the best interests of the public.

ROGER STAHLEY IS 'MAN OF YEAR'

Eastern Jaycees Honor Five For 'Distinguished Service'

Eastern Columbus Junior Chamber of Commerce Saturday night honored "five of our contemporaries who have done an outstanding job in the community," and named one of the group Outstanding Young Man Of The Year.

Roger R. Stahley, 4197 Chandler-dr, Whitehall Councilman, was selected as Young Man Of The Year for his service to the community and its youth, and his civic activities.

Others singled out for honors because of their distinguished service to Whitehall and the city's young people were Donald L. Harrison, Whitehall firefighter; John F. LaCorte, recreation director; Rev. James P. Metzger, assistant pastor of St. Edward's Episcopal Church, and Dr. A. J. Weiner.

Many of the public figures who were principals in the first annual distinguished service awards banquet in 1964 took part in Saturday night's program. And Dr. Donald L. Plotnick, 1964 Man Of The Year, presented this year's award to Stahley.

Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner returned as speaker, Mayor William Holzhaus of Whitehall again presented the DSA awards, and Spook Beckman did a return engagement as toastmaster.

Stahley was selected Man Of The Year on the basis of his record as councilman, member of the council's finance and recreation committees, civic activities, service to Eastview Methodist Church, and as coach for the church basketball teams.

Others honored for service were Don Harrison, 951 Rosepl, who saved the life of a seriously injured Whitehall child on Aug. 19 through his quick action and application of life-saving techniques. He has been nominated for a national life-saving award by Fire Chief Arthur Reddy.

John LaCorte, city recreation director, was recognized for a career devoted to young people as a recreation leader, in volunteer welfare work and his work with children of Franklin Village. He also organized the Senior Citizens group in Whitehall.

Rev. Metzger, 667 Fairway-blvd, has been a leader in the Columbus Urban summer project for teenagers in depressed areas, has served as a counselor, and worked close with juvenile authorities in the city and county.

Dr. Weiner, podiatrist, 4007 Barthel, was honored for the second year for his work in the support of youth activities. He is advisor to a teenage group of boys, chairman of Jaycees youth activities committee, was a starter for Bats For Boys, and is a director of Bikes For Boys. He is a member of local, state and national medical societies.

A special award plaque was presented to a club member, Ron Dickey of 1263 Marble-dr, for heroism in preventing the injury and possible death of three small children.

A car with the three children, including an infant laying on the front seat, parked on a lot on E. Main-st, was rolling toward the street when Dickey saw it. He leaped over the trunk of a car, ran in front of the moving car, jumped into the driver's seat, and brought it to a stop just inches from the fast-moving traffic.

Donald L. Hummer, national director of Jaycees, explained the DSA, Thomas Studebaker, club president, gave the welcome; and Rev. John W. Moody of St. Edward's Episcopal Church gave the invocation.

Judges who selected the Young Man of the Year from nominations received were, Judge John J. Duffey, 10th District Court of Appeals; Mayor William Holzhause; Dean Phillips, director of personnel, North American Aviation; Dr. N. A. Palestrant, podiatrist, and R. E. Gianetta, Ohio Probation and Parole Bureau.

Robert S. Huffman was chairman of the DSA program, and committees were headed by, Roland T. Gilbert, nominations: R. E. Dickey, judging and program; William H. Shanks, banquet; John Dye, publicity; Rudy Petaccia, promotion, and Larry Greiner and Frederick M. Frank, tickets.

Holding up other first and second-place awards are (from left) Marcus T. Orr, managing editor; Jack Wittenmeier, sports and promotions editor; and Frank Ryan, news-editorial writer.

WE LAND THE BIG ONE!

A kid with all-A's on his report card couldn't be prouder than the staff of The Spectator this week.

The newspaper was judged winner of the Ohio Newspaper Association's 1965 General Excellence plaque. Add to this, two more first-place awards, two second places, and an "honorable mention" and you see why we're beaming.

The winnings were revealed Friday at a gathering of more than 150 Ohio weekly newspaper publishers at ONA's 32nd Annual Convention at Columbus Plaza.

The Spectator entries, competing with other newspapers of over-4000 circulation, won the following awards and comments from the judges:

GENERAL EXCELLENCE — first place, based on news coverage and combined opinions of judges in various categories entered.

NEWS COVERAGE — first, "for depth of reporting of community issues . . . community problems are presented in lucid detail. Range of coverage is particularly good."

WOMEN'S NEWS — first, "good ratings in local news, thorough coverage and quality writing."

SPORTS NEWS — second, "Excellent variety, thorough coverage, good layout, typography, columns and photo features." A "Milk Bowl" special supplement was praised by the judges.

SPECIAL EDITIONS — second, for 1963 Surburban Homemaker Section. "Interesting staff-produced material on a project launched by the paper . . . well laid out and illustrated. Advertisements appropriate to the theme."

COMMUNITY SERVICE — honorable mention. "For The Spectator's campaign to dig out all the facts concerning the Scioto Conservancy vs. Army Corps of Engineers flood control plans. (First place went to the Yellow Springs News for its role in the Gegner barbershop desegregation case.)

At the convention, publisher C. Carlton Hartley served on a panel discussion of suburban newspapers. The Spectator awards were accepted by Marcus T. Orr, managing editor.

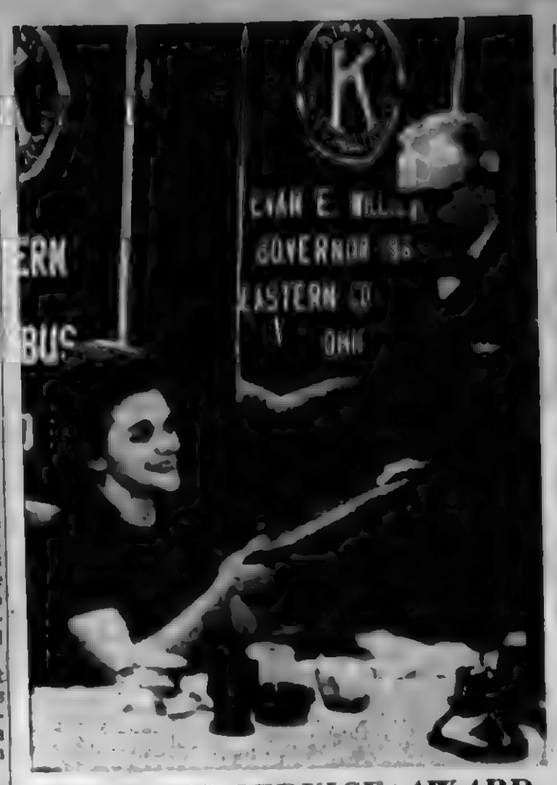
IT WAS FUN WHILE IT LASTED

THEY'VE EARNED THAT SLIDE! Whitehall's Mayor William Holzhause and Fire Chief Arthur Reddy rivalled the kids in enjoyment of the ice that, for a couple of brief days, converted the "winter wading pool" across from City Hall into the skating rink it was intended to be. The rink, proposed by the mayor and approved by council, and installed on Yearling-rd the early part of December, was beset with woes from the beginning. The $350 plastic liner immediately sprang leaks, and the firemen filled it — and filled it and filled it, but the water drained away before it could freeze. The badly damaged liner was finally removed, and last week's zero temperatures froze water standing in the depressed, level area. But for the rest of the winter, the mayor has been the subject of a lot of good-natured ribbing from folks who have wistfully waited to try out new Christmas ice skates, and the sight of firemen filling the rink has become sadly familiar.

Books Available At East Branch

Timely non-fiction books are to be found at the Shepard Branch of the Columbus Public Library, 2185 E. Fifth-av.

Jimmy Brown, in his book "Off My Chest" does not confine his "speaking out" to football. He makes some observations on bigotry.



"The Black Man's America" by Booker, "The New Equality" by Hentoff and "To Be Equal" by Whitney Young who spoke here Jan. 14 are three books dealing with the many crises in our struggle toward better understanding between the white and Negro races.

Dag Hammarskjold's "Markings" is a compilation of thoughts, poems, ideas, spiritual quotes, memories and maxims that beguile the reader as he reaches to grasp the "privilege of being in contact with the great, good and lovable man."

Another anthology that contains a similar selection is the compact "Treasury of Inspiration" edited by Kenneth Giniger with an introduction by Norman Vincent Peale.

A survey on the social security system in the United States today is told in "Social Security in America" by Mitchell. In Bagdikians, "In the Midst of Plenty; the Poor in America," the reader will be amazed by the statistics.

Books may be reserved by calling CL. 8-7111.

Pastor Langholz Marks Fifty Years In Ministry

Feb. 14 is the traditional day for showering affection upon loved ones . . . but seldom does one person get so much attention as will Dr. C. T. Langholz.

The congregation of St. John Lutheran Church, 2745 W. Broad-st, will honor their pastor on that day commemorating his 50 years as an ordained minister.

The special service will take place at the 10:30 a.m. worship with Rev. Charles H. Lange, pastor of Christ Lutheran Church, Bexley, as guest speaker.

The children of Dr. Langholz will also take part in the services. His son, Rev. Eugene N. Langholz, pastor of St. John Evangelical Lutheran Church, Richmond, Ind., will participate in the liturgical part of the service. Another son, Armin, who is assistant professor of speech at Capital University, will direct the senior choir. His son-in-law, Randall C. Miller, the mayor of Michigan City, Ind., will sing a solo, "Oh Take My Hand Dear Father." This is one of Dr. Langholz's favorite hymns and was sung at his ordination.

The 71 year-old minister has served the St. John congregation for the past 21 years. He is a graduate of St. Paul Luther Seminary, St. Paul, Minn. He has held pastorates in Canada, Texas, Kansas and Minnesota. During W.W. I, he was pastor at Camps Funston and Ft. Riley, Kan. Prior to coming to St. John, he was assistant to the manager of the Lutheran Book Concern, now known as the Augsburg Publishing House. In June of 1963, Capital University conferred upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity.

Dr. C. T. Langholz

He recently retired as vice-president of the board of regents of the Lutheran Seminary, Bexley.

Rev. Langholz will also be honored at the 4:30 p.m. of the congregation, at which time Judge Robert M. Draper will present a brief talk. Vicar Harry Carlsen will preach at the 8 a.m. worship.

Selma Kamholz changed only the first syllable of her name when she was wed to Rev. Langholz on June 6, 1920. The couple has another son, who is unable to attend the services. He is Marcus, a lieutenant serving with the U.S. Navy in Okinawa.

Dr. Langholz is planning to retire on May 1, 1965.

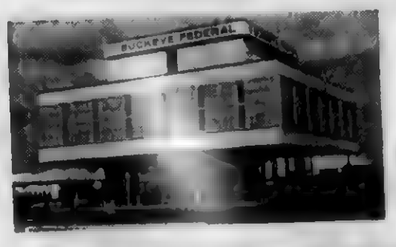
Pvt. Robert R. Nedblake, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton R. Nedblake, 80 N. Chesterfield-rd, completed an 11-week radio teletype operation course under the Reserve Enlistment Program at the Army Southeastern Signal School, Fort Gordon, Ga.



The 22-year-old soldier is scheduled to complete his military obligation with the 83d Infantry, an Army Reserve unit in Columbus.

He was graduated from Eastmoor High School in 1962.

Professors from Ohio and Indiana have found in a study that most teachers believe the study hall in the high school is a "barely tolerable necessary evil" which should be abolished. Researchers said too many study halls are in a school cafeteria next to a noisy kitchen, or in an auditorium where the lighting is poor and no provisions are made for written work. Teachers are frequently faced with 400-500 pupils.

Jim Britton, Steve Beggrow, Eric Bomhard, Jim Schumacher and Greg Sherrill paced the H-T win with pin wins while teammate Mike Blansett gained a decision.

FOR THE losing Red Devils, Jim Brown and Marvin Mills nabbed pins while Bob Hopson, Jim Hearn and John Borden took decisions.

Untouched Brookhaven ran away with Central's Invitational title Saturday, outpointing the runnerup Pirates, 114-62. Linden finished third (58) and West was fourth (56).

West's Benny King and Ed Smith took decisions in the finals while consolation victories were gained by Central's Dave Sherman, Charles Graham and Harold Frasure (pin) and West's Tim Miles and Lee Roger.

Pleasant View raced off with a similar crown at Grove City, outdistancing Hilliard (60), Grove City (56) and University (50) with 102 points.

EDDIE KROHN, Chuck Driesbach, Steve Barton, Larry Meade and Jerry Reibel notched finals wins for Bob Mowery's Panthers — Krohn and Reibel via pins.

For G-C, Tom Peterson, John Cooley and Larry Fannin took finals wins, the latter via pin while Pete Miller took Hilliard's lone win.

Pins by Dick Kesselring, Charlie Hall and Bill Berry paced Franklin Heights in a lopsided 38-3 verdict over Hilliard.

DICK GRAMBO, Joe George, Jim O'Hara, Fred Scolerie, Sam Blankenship and Mike Long took decisions for the Falcons while Tim Andres took the Wildcats' lone decision.

Four consecutive opening pins by Bill Alspach, Jeff Nelle, Tim Wolf and John Jordan got Groveport off fast in a 33-13 win over Bexley.

Brian White later got a pin and Bill Nelle and Dave Thompson added frosting with decisions.

Doug Felger and Rick Doty took decisions for the losers while Miller got Bexley's lone pin at 175.

WALNUT RIDGE edged favored DeSales Saturday to nab Westerville's Quadrangular laurels. The Scotties took only two firsts (Tex Rife and Steve Roberts) but added six seconds, two thirds and a fourth to slip past the Stallions, 81-80.

Host Westerville edged Eastmoor, 55-53, despite finals wins by the Warriors' Roy Leonard, Pete Johnson and Bill Collins.

Worthington was the only successful tourney [illegible] over the weekend as the Cards edged Toledo DeVilbiss (66), Martins Ferry (56) and Sandusky (51) with 69 markers.

IN DUAL competition, back-to-back pins by Bill Astley and John Bayly saved a 21-all deadlock for Hartley against Fremont St. Joseph.

Joe Weldon, Dave Brown and Paul Burkey got the Hawks other wins via decisions.

A pin win by Lewis Robinson, Robbie Burton, Don Martin and George Harper paced Mifflin. The win, South's second in a row, pulled the Bulldogs up to a 3-3 mark.

A pin win by Bob Robinson and decisions by Eddie Anderson, Bob Burton, Don Martin and George Harper paced South to a 24-8 victor over Mifflin.

BISHOP READY had little trouble sidestepping Marysville, 32-11, Monday.

Bill Paxon, (8-0), soph Mike Morrison and heavyweight Bob Jones took pins for the Knights while Jay Michael (7-1), Bill Scales, Jim Rough and Steve Guglielmi won via decisions.

DEFENDING district champ East led all the way in a 28-17 victory over crosstown rival West.

Jake Holloway, Warren Hardon and Grady Bobo got pins for the Tigers while Tim Miles and Ed Smith did likewise for the Cowboys.

Fourth straight decisions by Ron Reid, Pete Johnson, Mike Sullivan and Dan Goldberg pulled Eastmoor away from Central, 26-15.

Dave Sherman, Harold Frasure and Al Amos took verdicts for the Pirates.

Area Matmen Zero In On Loop Meets

With a thinning mat schedule on tap for the week and most area teams settling down to dual matches, attention has turned toward five big loop tourneys, set for next weekend.

CITY LEAGUE
Feb. 19-20, Eastmoor

Most likely to succeed is Jim Porter's East squad. The Tigers, while not as impressive as in '63 when they nailed down the District title, seem stronger in every department than any other CL squad.

Defending champion Walnut Ridge, riddled by injury and graduation, seems likely to relinquish the crown to East who wore it in '63 and '62.

Brockhaven and Central seem to be the Tigers' chief source of competition.

CENTRAL BUCKEYE
Feb. 19-20, Grandview

Defending champion Arlington, who ran away with the loop title last year can't be overlooked but '64 runner-up Worthington, sporting the best brother combination in the area in Paul and Alan Michell, could pull it out.

Other contenders — Whitehall, Bexley and Grandview — have some top-flight individuals but don't seem to have the overall team strength to contend with either the Bears or Cards.

MID-EIGHT
Feb. 19-20, Westerville

Anyone who thought last year's league meet was too close for comfort doesn't want to miss the '65 edition.

Westerville edged Groveport (88-87) then and it could be just as tight this time with the 'Cats returning seven vets, the Cruisers six this season.

Dark horse might be Grove City, who could surprise in several categories especially if the two top contenders have their sights set on each other.

SOUTH SUBURBAN
Feb. 19, Pleasant View

Another dandy with all three entries — Pleasant View, Franklin Heights and Hamilton Township — capable in most weight slots.

Falcon coach Bob Twiss, with practically an all-vet lineup, deserves the edge although P-V should keep it close.

Hamilton Township, whose only set-back (as of this writing) was a one-point opener loss, will stack up its share of points in this first-time tourney.

CENTRAL CATHOLIC
Feb. 20, Hartley

This one should boil down to a dogfight between Jeff Cardosi's Hartley Hawks and Jack Harold's DeSales Stallions.

Watch for the sparks at 145 (DeSales' Wayne Hiles vs. Hartley's Paul Burkey).

This one — plus matches at 165 (Hawks' Jim Carpenter vs. Stallions' Mike DeAscentis) and heavyweight (Hawks' John Bayly and Stallions' Perry Evans) should tell the tale.

Edge still has to go to tourney-wise DeSales, winner of P-V's Invitational and runner-up at Whitehall's multi-squad scrap.

LAFB Judoist Tourney Star

Eleven - year - old Bruce Clithero, son of Major and Mrs. Robert G. Clithero, completed a 6-1 record in the Springfield junior judo tournament to win the lightweight championship recently.

The young judoist defeated six opponents on throws while dropping his lone match on a decision.

The 77-pound Clithero has been undergoing extensive judo training since 1961. He, along with his nine-year-old brother Jeff who also competed in the tourney, is a member of the base junior judo club.

Technical Sergeant Wally Soga, veteran judo competitor and coach, conducts classes for base youngsters each Saturday at the gym. Sergeant Soga piloted teams to Strategic Air Command and All-Air Force championships last year.

GO-KARTS GO

The CBS Go-Kart Speedway, located four miles north of Lancaster on Rt. 33, will open the pits Sunday noon for all karters after a month layoff due to the inclement weather. All races start at 2 p.m.

J. Myers (200 and 400-yard free style).

Center Titlists Are Named

A balanced scoring attack, led by Bernie Weston's 22 points led Sun TV to the first round championship in the Tuesday night Adult League at the Jewish Center.

Stan Ross and Ron Golden added 17 and 15 for the winners while Jack Alexander sparked the losing American Building team with 16 and Nate Edgerton added 14 and Milt Lewin 10.

OHIO TECHNICAL Institute defeated Raybo Vending, 81-63 as Mark Topy and Bob Grad led the winners with 26 and 23 points respectively and Bill Hyman and Wes Rosenthal added 11 each.

Fred Davidorf led Raybo with 17 points while Preston Gurwin and Harold Post popped for 13 each.

Bob Benjamin's 23 points led Robert Builders and Co. to a 73-59 victory over Berwick Seafood Manor. Al Kass and Mike Honigberg added 14 and 12 for the winners.

Sandy Solomon and Sandy Pollock scored 17 points for the losers. Stan Robins added 13.

Jetcoat and Green Cab finished the first round in a tie for first place in the A division of Pony League.

A fine 15-point performance by Barry Rosen and a 12-point effort by Dave Engelman carried Green Cab to a 32-27 victory over Nationwide but Mike Ballen's 16 points made him the game's high scorer.

A 23-POINT first half led Jetcoat to a 31-21 victory over Richfield Construction.

Mike Goodman led the winners with seven but high honors went to Jeff Finke of Richfield Construction with eight points.

A well-balanced scoring attack carried J.W.V. to a 34-15 victory over Gilbert Shoes. The victory left J.W.V. with a 4-1 record and the first round championship.

Harris Construction averted a two-way tie in the B League by defeating Art Lithograph and Printing, 27-26.

In a low-scoring game Superior Home Maintenance dropped K. Beck Furniture, 13-10 as K. Beck scored all their points in the third period. A tenacious defense by Superior kept K. Beck off balance.

THERE IS a four-way tie for first place in the fifth grade Little League with one week running in round one.

A nine-point fourth quarter was not enough for Berwick Builders as they lost to Allen Construction 16-15.

Leopold Construction remained all alone in first place in the sixth grade loop by defeating Bargainland 27-18. The winners trailed 6-5 after the first period but led 15-8 at half time.

In a high scoring affair, United Roofing defeated Nutis Press 49-35.

BUCS NEXT FOR E-M

Hawks Eye Title; Tigers Plot Trap

Eastmoor's City League title visions were really blurred last Friday as Linden stalled out most of the final two minutes for an earth-shaking 67-66 triumph that lowered the Warriors to a 7-2 loop ticket behind West, South and the Panthers (all 8-1).

E-M, down 16-2 early in the contest, rallied late behind spunky Jerry Groves and big Steve Howell (24 points) to knot the count at 50-all with 7:10 left to play. Groves gunned in 12 of his 23 markers in the frantic fourth frame and counted four in the last 12 seconds to no avail as E-M fell to a 10-4 mark overall.

ON SATURDAY, Athens escaped the E-M clutches, 52-49, as the Warriors were "down" after Friday's disheartening fray at Linden. Gary Cochran (12), Ron Bollie (11), Howell (10) and the ever-present Groves (12) stood out in defeat.

Tomorrow night Bill Courtney's vanquished crew hosts Central (4-10) and fast-break aces George Trammell (14.4) and Bob Chandler (12.3).

East's defending champs bowed completely out of the pennant picture as South eked out an error-infested 65-63 verdict in the last six seconds of play.

BOB HART'S crew, now 6-3 in CC and 10-3 overall, canned 23 of 59 fielders and 17 of 23 fouls but Luther Curry's two charities with five seconds left wasn't enough for East, which saw John Lewis sparkle with 25 major tallies.

The Tigers can eliminate one of the loop's "top dogs" tomorrow night when Jerry Francis (23.2) and 6'6 Steve Barnard (18.3) move in with co-leader West (11-3 and 8-1 in the circuit), a team seeking its first City pennant bunting in 28 seasons.

Hartley's surge toward a long-sought CCL cage crown almost hit a snag at Ready last week before the lethargic Hawks dug out a 59-53 decision behind a 40 per cent shooting night (25 of 62).

THE TALLER Hawks saw Ready tie the count at 46-even with 3:20 to play but Geary Bradley shrewdly applied a full-court press that caused six straight Knight errors and eight straight Hawk points.

The Hawks out-rebounded Ready 48-23 and got twin figure tallies from Tom Schlager in the point and carom departments. The Hawks (8-0 in CL and 13-2) face Newark Catholic (5-11) at home Friday in preparation for next week's "showdown" match with second-place Watterson.

Academy (9-6) overwhelmed West Jefferson, 82-71, behind a 42-point second half and the smooth point-making of Terry (25-tally) Larrimer, John Fulford (17) and muscleman Pete Bigelow (15). The Phil Hess Vikings trek to New Albany (5-11) tomorrow night.

ST. CHARLES chipped Newark Catholic, 54-53, in a heart-thumper as the Green Wave out-pointed the Cards 17-13 in the final frame to no avail.

Denny Craft wove in 22 counters to lead the Card win as the Carolians get ready for tomorrow's visit to DeSales (7-9) and Jack Diedalis (16.2).

Jackie Moore's hard-luck Walnut Ridge cagers dropped a tough 59-57 nod to Brookhaven after leading by a scant two points at the third period break. Star center Pat Beveridge hustled in 23 big points and Rick Houchen 10 in the loss that left the young Scots 2-10 overall.

THE HIGHLANDERS journey to hapless Whetstone (1-13) Friday night for a go at Jud Boley (17.7) and Dick Rahn (18.1).

Grandview swept to a convincing 82-61 win over Whitehall on Friday after reeling off a 47-point first half. Gary (the Shot) Beckley pumped in 21 tallies and Mark Blackstone 12, but the Rams still slipped to a bad night.

Saturday night was a different story, however, as Bexley felt the sting of the Rams' 58-57 sword in the last nine seconds of play.

BECKLEY'S 17 and Harv Eader's 15 paced Phil Allen's five while Rob Wells had 17 and Dave French 16 to set Bexley's tempo. The Rams (6-11) host Mt. Vernon (9-5) Friday night along with standouts Randy Clements (14.4) and Jim Byrd (13.3).

Gene Millard saw his Lion pack (5-11) fall to arch-rival Arlington, 60-34, after trailing by only 10 at one point late in the third stanza. Captain Bill Salt's 10 stood out in defeat as the Lions visit Worthington (9-5) tomorrow night.

Varsity Star Sends Thanks, Boosts Faithful Junior Fan

Too often in the hustle and bustle of a basketball season and the pressure of battling for a league title, the little important things are forgotten.

It might have been that way two weeks ago after the Reynoldsburg-University basketball game which the Raiders lost—all but eliminating them from the FCL title race.

DANNY JONES, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jones, 1394 Rose Hill-rd, attended the game as he does each Raider home game.

On his way home, some of the University fans, exhilerated by victory, yelled at Danny from their car, rubbing in the setback and degrading the play of the Raider's top scorer, Jon Heischman—held in high regard by young Dan.

Danny returned home, fighting back the tears and upset that anyone could say such things about Heischman. Danny told his parents when he got to high school and made the varsity team, he was going to help beat University, 60-0—just for Jon.

IT WAS THAT same night that Danny wrote a letter to Jon, refusing to let his parents read it because it was just between himself and his varsity hero.

Nobody but Heischman knows the content of that letter but Danny's parents were kind enough to supply the Spectator with Jon's return letter to Danny which reads as follows:

Dear Danny,

Thank you very much for the wonderful note you wrote me. It made me feel much better, for I too was very much down in the dumps after our loss to University.

THERE ISN'T much a team can do when it only shoots 15 percent in the first half and 25 percent for the whole game like we did.

Plus we couldn't out-rebound them which made the difference in the game. If we could have made 50 percent of our shots and rebounded much better, I'm sure Reynoldsburg would have won. But, that's basketball.

When you time comes to play varsity basketball for the Reynoldsburg Raiders, you will beat University, 60-0, like you said in your letter.

ESPECIALLY if you keep up the good work you've been doing in basketball. Twenty-four points a game is tremendous for a boy in the sixth grade.

You're one of the best basketball players for a sixth grader that I've seen. You have great potential, so take advantage of it.

Hard work and constant shooting practice will make you all the better. Basketball is about the best sport there is, so if you like it best, try to concentrate on it most.

IT'S REAL nice to know that I have such a loyal fan as you Dan. Thanks for sticking up for me and for taking time to write to me.

If there's anything I can help you with, please feel free to ask me.

Your Converse Pal,
Jon Heischman

Items Needed For Mental Health March

The Camp Fire Girls March for Mental Health began Feb. 1. The march is sponsored jointly by the Columbus and Franklin County Council of Camp Fire Girls, Inc., and the Franklin County Mental Health Association.

Collection of articles for patients at Columbus State Hospital continues until Feb. 25, culminating with an actual march by the girls into the hospital at 4:45 p.m. Friday, Feb. 26.

Girls will pass out door hangers which list desired articles, in their neighborhoods. The girls write their names and telephone numbers on the door hangers so that the residents will be able to call for collection of items.

Items needed this year include:

Sewing materials — yard goods, yarn, floss, tape, zippers.

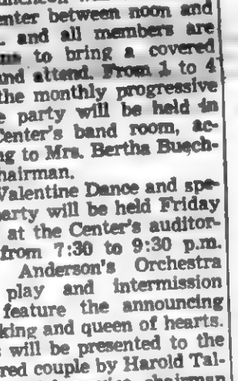
— Games — darts, balls, ring toss, table tennis paddles, bowling sets, baseballs, bats, athletic equipment, playing cards, hobby and craft materials, knitting kits, construction paper, wall paper, blunt scissors, paints and paint patterns.

Cosmetics; ribbon — one inch wide or less, gift-wrapping paper.

Gift boxes for jewelry; clothing — size 7 and up, washable; framed pictures; phonograph records (45 and 33 r.p.m.); paperback books and ashtrays.

Senior Citizens Center

Monthly progressive euchre party will be held Wednesday, Feb. 10, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Senior Citizens' Recreation Center. Mrs. Harriet Evans, euchre chairman, is anticipating nearly 140 players for the party.



Thursday, Feb. 11, a pot-luck luncheon will be held at the Center between noon and 1 p.m. and all members are welcome to bring a covered dish and attend. From 1 to 4 p.m. the monthly progressive bridge party will be held in the Center's band room, according to Mrs. Bertha Buechler, chairman.

A Valentine Dance and special party will be held Friday night at the Center's auditorium from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Rags Anderson's Orchestra will play and intermission will feature the announcing of a king and queen of hearts. Gifts will be presented to the honored couple by Harold Talbot, social service chairman of the Moose Lodge, who is sponsoring the dance for the center. Mr. and Mrs. George Teal are co-chairmen of center dance decorations.

On Saturday, Feb. 13, the combined ceramic classes will have a valentine party at the center from 11:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. It is a planned pot-luck. All class members are welcome and should contact Mrs. Clara Eaton to ask what to bring. A surprise program will be featured in the afternoon. Mrs. Edna Behmer, ceram, instructor, is in charge of the party.

If you plan to prune your climbing roses any time before they bloom, don't—you'll be removing the flower buds.

The Wonderful World Of ANIMALS

By Frank Miller, D.V.M.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Should I be worried about my cichlid (related to sunfish), Jerry? He looks fine during the day but I found he sleeps on his side at night when it's dark. I didn't know this was to be expected. Is it? M.A.

DEAR M.A.: If Jerry wants to stretch out at night don't worry about it. While many fish never catch more than a wink at a time, others, like Jerry, often lie on their sides and really relax. As long as he remains alert during the day, you needn't be too worried about Jerry's nighttime activities—or lack of them.

* * *

DEAR DR. MILLER: Several year ago, I gave my old maid aunt a lovebird named Miss McFeathers. Ever since, we have offered to buy the bird a mate. My aunt keeps refusing, saying Miss McFeathers is happier alone. What do you think about this situation? —T. E.

DEAR T. E.: Yes, Miss McFeathers may be happier without a mate. Your aunt is certainly in a better position to determine this than you are. Now that the offer has been made, don't give her the bird unless she asks for it. In the interests of family amity, I suggest you drop the whole subject.

Will Speak Feb. 18

Gilbert J. Driscoll will present a program on Federal Income Taxes on Feb. 18 to members of the Kiwanis Club or Northern Columbus and the Civitan Club of North Columbus. The program will cover 1964 changes in the Internal Revenue Code with particular emphasis on problems of the individual, professional people and the small businessman.

Brace IV Sets Show, 'Flight To Spring'

Gold bird cages filled with pink and red flowers and red cardinals on each water glass will be the appropriate decorations for Brace IV's "Flight to Spring."

The annual Lilliputian parade will take place Wednesday, Feb. 17, 11:30 a.m., at the Columbus Athletic Club, with proceeds going to the Franklin County Society for Crippled Children.

Invitations to the parade, featuring women's and children's fashions, have been sent out. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. John Brantner, TE. 6-5139 or Mrs. Robert Beaman, TE. 6-5340.

Chet Long will be master of ceremonies and judges include Earl Green, Hugh De-Moss, Dean Lewis and Spook Beckman.

Mrs. Karl Sharon in general chairman.

OSU Greek Week Activities Announced

Greek Week 1965 presented its talent show Wednesday, Feb. 10, at 8 p.m. in Ohio State's Mershon Auditorium. The program included 14 fraternity and sorority acts (from magic to folk singing) and a special act by Diane Courtright, "Miss Ohio, 1965."

Sunday, Feb. 14, at 3 p.m. in Mershon, fraternity and sorority choruses will vie for top honors in the Greek Week Sing. Such old favorites as "The Whiffenpoof Song," "The Halls of Ivy," plus group songs will be featured. This event is free of charge, and the public is invited.

Say You Saw It In The Spectator

Ask 3 dryer owners which kind lasts longer.

2 will say electric.

Electric sets pace as 1,011 women tell why and how they pick and choose dryers

Over 1,000 homemakers in The Electric Company service area recently took part in an independent study of why and what they preferred about certain appliances.

Naturally, automatic clothes dryers were included and compared.

This big cross-section of "experts" left no question about the overwhelming preference in this area for flameless electric dryers.

Area homemakers offer you buying hints for dryers

In fact, if you've never owned an automatic clothes dryer, here's a buying hint for you: 8 out of 10 local women who begin enjoying all the time-and-work-saving convenience of automatic clothes drying start with a flameless electric dryer.

One of the reasons more women prefer electric dryers is their longer life — a built-in feature of electric! Because an electric clothes dryer has fewer moving parts to wear out, it lasts longer, gives you more use over the years — and stretches your investment farther!

And with electric, your investment is lowest from the start!

Flameless electric dryers preferred 9 to 1 for low initial cost!

It's a fact: electric clothes dryers cost less to buy. And most women like that, too!

Nine times out of 10, women surveyed mentioned this money-saving advantage of flameless electric dryers. (There was very little douht — even among owners of all types of dryers — that electric dryers, feature for feature, cost less to buy).

Prove it to yourself. Visit your favorite appliance dealer and compare dryers. You'll find electric dryers do cost less to buy.

Significantly so.

Women prefer more features of flameless electric dryers

While you're looking, there are some things you won't see — and these unseen features are more of what makes electric dryers most preferred by homemakers in the Columbus and Southern Ohio area.

You see, far more than the low price of an electric dryer appeals to women.

Once you get it home, you continue to save with electric.

Here's why:

There's only one connection to make. Electricity runs the dryer and dries the clothes. Pure, radiant electric heat gently dries everything from your daintiest lingerie to Dad's work clothes; and because flameless electric heat is so clean, it protects clothes as it dries them fluffier, brighter and fresher.

You save time and steps because you can put your electric dryer wherever it's most convenient for you — upstairs, downstairs, in the kitchen, even in the garage. Put it any place you can run a wire!

It's easy to see why, in homes that have automatic dryers, you find 7 out of 10 dryers are flameless electric!

Every day, more people give more reasons for going electric!

Someday, you will want a new automatic dryer for your home.

The chances are good you're thinking about one right now.

Before you buy, shop around. Compare closely. Check the prices. Then remember that the important advantages of flameless electric dryers don't show up until you get one home.

Those are the benefits that count.

And they're the ones preferred by more homemakers like yourself.

You'll prefer a flameless electric dryer, too.

Even more when you get it home.

Under Buckeye Skies

By KEN MACK McCREARY

Old Gripes . . .

That current, TV-inspired slang expression: "Boy, you sure know how to hurt a guy!" certainly fits our weatherman. After clobbering Spectatorland with bone-chilling, below-zero temperatures which resulted in widespread cases of "cabin fever", Ol' Man Weather turned right around last weekend and frustrated us with a sneak preview of warm April - type weather. No wonder those of us who enjoy the outdoors are becoming confused and irritable.

Ken McCreary

Adding to the confusion of last weekend was the unscheduled appearance of many of the birds, who apparently had also been tricked. We personally spotted flocks of up to 100 optimistic robins, and received reports of 250 to 300 robins seen together. Looking across the "back forty" on the greyness of this past Sunday morning it was difficult to believe our eyes — but it was true, that grey bird was actually a mockingbird.

SEVERAL other reports of that versatile-voiced visitor have since arrived, along with numerous sightings of bluebirds and other feathered friends who (in theory at least) spend the winter in the sunny southland.

And now that humans and birds alike have been almost convinced that spring is going to be a little early this year — yep, here we go again. Boy, Mr. Weatherman, you sure know how to hurt a guy!

The outdoors will go indoors during the next ten days as the conservation and outdoor recreation spotlight centers on Columbus, in the form of several conventions.

THE OUTDOOR Writers of Ohio convene for their annual conferences tomorrow afternoon at the Holiday Inn-East. Among the many topics to be discussed by the outdoor journalists during the three-day event will be pertinent legislation coming before this session of the General Assembly.

These will include changes in the Natural Resources Department. Other highlights of the scribes' convention will include a photo clinic and addresses by top conservation and recreation officials.

This same weekend, on Friday and Saturday morning, the Fifth Ohio Wildlife Conference will be held at Gus' Restaurant, next to the Division of Wildlife building on Dublin-rd. Topics on the agenda include: fish-killing pollution, deer-poaching, the status of the Lake Erie walleye and the outdoor recreation picture in Ohio.

JUST A week away, on Feb. 19, 20 and 21, the League of Ohio Sportsmen will hold its 57th annual convention at the Nell House in downtown Columbus. The prime subject under discussion and debate will be strip-mining in Ohio, its current status and possible needs for new, restrictive legislation.

Highlight of this meeting will come Saturday afternoon, Feb. 19, at a formal initiation ceremony for the Coonskin Cap Brigade, the conservation and gun-handling club for youngsters, sponsored by the League. Scheduled for an appearance is Fess Parker, the slow-talking hero of the "Daniel Boone" TV series.

* * *

Speaking of youth, our Under Buckeye Skies congratulations go to the Boy Scouts of America, during this, National Boy Scout Week. To the scouts and scouters of yesterday, today and tomorrow America owes a great deal for instilling those principles of conservation and enjoyment of the great outdoor life which have long been so much a vital part of our heritage.

Wit 'N' Wisdom

By JACK WITTENMEIER

Old Grads . . .

One of the last fading facets of the old order passed into oblivion last Saturday night in a crowded gymnasium where the snug dickies of the teen set clashed loudly with the somber conservatism of the old grads.

Wittenmeier

There were even different sounds from opposite sides of the hardwood rectangle. The shrill sopranos outclassed the enthusiastic hand claps from the other side.

IN BETWEEN the sounds, another generation was passing by — slowly at times, gasping to catch its breath.

If you haven't caught what we're pitching yet, I'm reminising a bit about the return of the old horses to the stable for a dying spectacle called an "alumni game."

Most high school schedules are too crowded now to allow this pivotal merger of the old and the new. And maybe it's a little sad.

FOR THE life of us we can't understand why most schools have dropped the practice of inviting in the old soldiers for another try once a year.

It can't be the gate. Even if the pull of an athletic contest wasn't enough to draw fans, surely no one could turn down the comic relief to an otherwise tension-ridden season.

One coach termed the alumni game as the best drawing card of the season. "Everybody has to see how fat that '56 all-league center has gotten or wonder how good ol' Bill lost every bit of that wavy hair."

MAYBE IT'S a little dangerous matching those lean, young men against a lineup of beef that could put the Chicago stockyards to shame.

Sure, we're a little oversized and maybe foul a bit too much. But don't shut us out for that. You can outrun us every time.

We figure complicated scheduling might be the culprit that keeps the old grads on the bench. Maybe you can't up a state rating by playing the old boys.

But, speaking for the old boys — we hope you'll invite us back.

JUST REALIZING you still cram what sits too long 364 a year into a snug 32 is worth every one of those sore sinews the morning after.

Sears Acquires West Location

The purchase by Sears, Roebuck & Co. of a 21-acre tract on W. Broad-st adjacent to Lazarus West indicates the company plans at least three full-line department stores in the Columbus area.

A spokesman said Sears' experience at the Northland Shopping Center store was the basis for additional expansion here. A second store should be open by spring of 1967 at the Eastland Shopping Center near Hamilton and Refugee-rds.

Sears' Chicago office was noncommittal on plans for a West area store.

ON 'TOWN MEETING'

"The Medicare Bill Debate" will be presented on Columbus Town Meeting Sunday, Feb. 14, 4 to 5 p.m. on WBNS-TV and rebroadcast by WBNS Radio at 9:10 p.m. Speakers will be Congressmen Jackson E. Betts (R.) and Charles A. Vanik (D) both Ohio members of the Ways and Means Committee. Earl Morris will moderate. Questions may be telephoned to the panel during the telecast by calling CA. 3881.

Jets Schedule 19 Training Games

Nineteen exhibition games have been scheduled for the Columbus Jets this year in Florida during spring training at Daytona Beach, which opens Mar. 18.

Fifteen of the games will be played against triple-A clubs and four against double-A opposition. Ten of the games will be with fellow members of the International League, four with the Rochester Red Wings, five with Toronto Maple Leafs and one with the 1964 pennant-winner Jacksonville Suns.

The remaining triple-A dates will be with Vancouver of the Pacific Coast League. Birmingham and Asheville of the double-A Southern League complete the schedule.

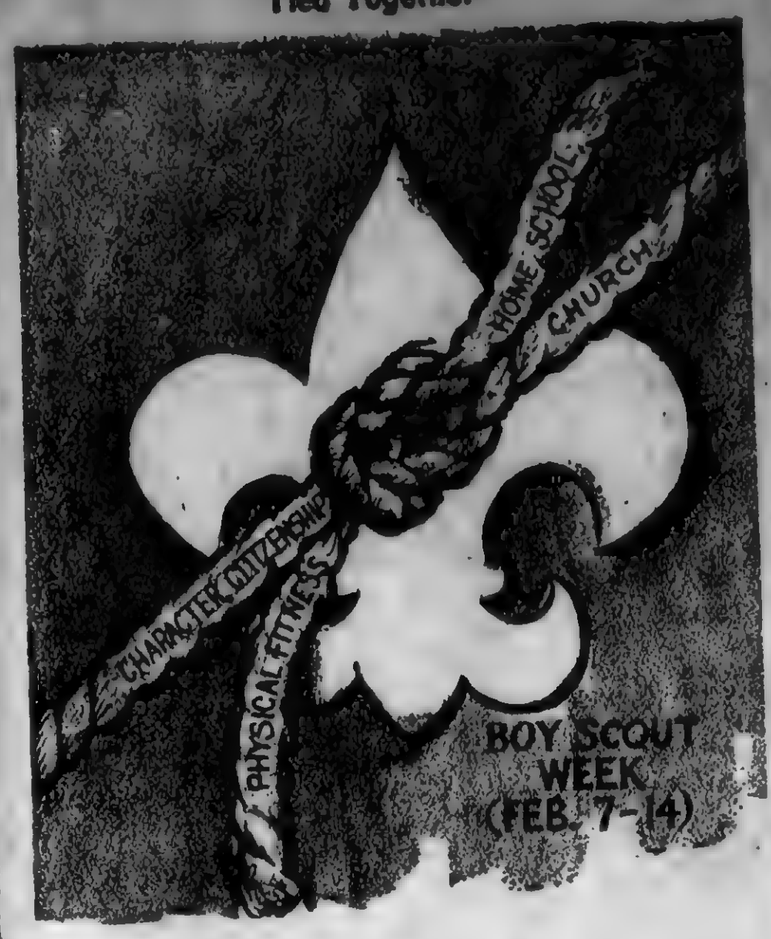
Why Not Annual Session?

The 1964 year-end special session of the State Legislature looks even better in retrospect than it did at the original call by Governor James A. Rhodes.

The Republican-dominated 105th General Assembly processed four major items of business for presentation to all voters in May. They include a $290 million bond issue for higher education capital improvements, measures to permit state loans to industry and continue state loans to college students, and the touchy reapportionment issue.

A number of lesser bills were passed and, at least theoretically, this should lessen the load for the present legislative session. In view of the current 16-16 State Senate alignment of Republicans and Democrats, an unusually large number of bills could be chaotic.

As matters now stand, the special session serves as a challenge to the 106th General Assembly to do as well in a full session.



But more important is the mounting evidence that legislative sessions could be more effective and less confusing if the General Assembly met annually. Biennial sessions burden the lawmaker with an avalanche of proposals, most of which are of the "housekeeping" variety.

But these "housekeeping" measures are time consuming. Consequently, too many issues of major importance are given less exposure and study than merited. We don't think it's asking too much of our legislators to spend about five months out of each year in Columbus for the $8,000 annual salary they now receive.

To Each His Own

If all Dental Health Week (Feb. 7-13) information could be capsuled into one piece of advice, we think it would be this: If you remain true to your teeth, they'll never be false to you.

Tied Together

A Scout Salute

The Boy Scouts of America has been known for 55 years for the great contribution it has made to the youth of our country, but there has been no finer activity than the current Strengthen America's Heritage program.

Now, during Boy Scout Week from Feb. 7 to 13, we can assess the influence of Scouting on boys from eight through 17 and its national program to preserve freedom through reverent, resolute, and responsible patriotism.

There is no question that Scouting — and its special emphasis on heritage — makes a constructive difference in the life of a boy. A good Scout is able to explain to anyone what he believes his heritage to be — who created it, who preserved it, who defends it, and how.

The experience of the Central Ohio Council, Boy Scouts of America, which serves a nine-county area, shows that 21,432 Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, and Explorers display the American flag at their homes to show their appreciation of their heritage. They work at living by their Scout Credo—the Cub Scout Promise, the Boy Scout Oath, or the Explorer Code. Their Scouting activities help to build and maintain personal fitness of body, mind, and spirit as a practical means of enjoying and passing on our heritage.

All Americans this week congratulate the five and half million members of the Boy Scouts of America on its 55th Anniversary.

Explains CEF Purpose And Leadership

To the Editor:

A letter appeared in this column recently signed by Raymond Mostek, vice-chairman of National Committee on Church and State Laymen's League, Unitarian-Universalist Assn., from Chicago, Ill. We all have the right to express differences of opinion but in so doing we should use facts.

Citizens for Educational Freedom is a national civic group and as such is nonsectarian, nonpartisan and nonprofit. It is a national organization of parents and other individuals dedicated to the cause of securing freedom in education. Membership in CEF is open to all who believe in the inalienable and constitutional right of parents to direct and control the education of their children.

Members of the CEF National Board of Trustees in addition to noted laymen from all walks of life include: Dr. John Cholitz, Superintendent of Greater Detroit Lutheran High School Assn.; Rabbi Alexander Mittlemann, principal of Jewish Day School in Sherman Oaks, Calif.; Rev. Virgil Blum, S.J., chairman of Political Science Dept. of Marquette University; and Dr. Edwin Palmer, Christian Reformed Minister and Dean of Men at Westminster Theological Seminary, Philadelphia.

It is very important that sentences from the U.S. Constitution be quoted completely. The First Amendment actually says "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

CEF is sponsoring the introduction of a Fair (Equal) School Bus Bill in the Ohio General Assembly. It is interesting to note that Illinois is one of the 20 states which has passed such a law for the equal protection of all its school children.

'THE GRIST'
Ground Out by Dusty Miller

BURIALS—Multiplied miles of land and fathomless depths of ocean separate the newly made graves of two immortal statesmen. By the custom of all peoples in all generations, each sleeps with his fathers in native soil.

There is a notable exception to this practice.

Frosting on the Cake
BY "UNCLE DOC" ROSS — U.S.A.

Merrie Olde England is now giving a second go-round to an all-out Labor Government, despite the sad-sack failure of an earlier radical leftist regime. In less than four months, the rest of the still-solvent free world had to bail out the British pound, and there is no assurance this moment that the impending insolvency of Britain is averted. Just one more Socialist frantic expediency.

Now Prime Minister Wilson is demanding nationalization of the steel industry. Next may well come total government seizure of the utilities and transportation and all communication facilities.

Repeated failure of all such political shenanigans teaches the mob-mind nothing. It is bad enough to see great old England seduced repeatedly by such Socialistic madness; now it is way past time for liberty-loving Americans to wake up to the constant and persistent effort of our own radical leftists to bring about the same tragic folly here.

The "lunatic fringe" of the so-called labor movement wants Uncle Sam to seize and operate the railroads. God spare the mark! After that would come demands for outright government ownership and operation of all the indispensable service utilities. What mess that would create!

The service utilities, privately owned and carrying an enormous part of the general tax load in every city and state, waste no priceless minutes to serve customers. No man in his right mind today is anti-labor, per se. But the Socialists never see the handwriting on the wall. No fool's paradise can survive the acid truths of the balance sheet and solvent businesses.

Wants To Agree, But Can't

To the Editor:

I so want to agree with you, Mrs. Lindley Kumler (who supports "Fair Bus Bill"), but will you look at a few facts with me?

In countries where Catholics have control they do not allow non-Catholic churches to even have signs out to show where they are located and the church is supported with tax money.

We have a private swimming pool because we don't like our children to associate with all other children. We should have public funds to keep it up? It would be for the health and welfare of our children. Will you write a letter to the legislature and tell them they should do this for us?

We don't want our children in the public park so we bought a farm but we can't make it into a park. We are sure you will support us in asking for government assistance.

Keep Arguments On Target

To The Editor:

It should be made clear that individuals who send their children to parochial schools do so because they want their children to receive a religious and academic education. The schools attended and text books used must meet the rigid regulations of the Ohio State Board of Education. All schools, public and private, exist to indoctrinate, for indoctrination is to each or inculcate.

The Fair Bus Bill is exactly as stated; this bill in essence would provide public school bus transportation for all children. Roman Catholics pay taxes just like any other person, and should be entitled to receive benefits from said taxes. It must be factually stated that equal bus transportation is not in violation of the Constitution of the United States, and in fact a number of states now enjoy tax supported bus transportation for all school children.

For those who would oppose this bill, I suggest that their criticism be limited to the Fair Bus Bill instead of using this bill as a method for attacking Roman Catholicism in general.

To the Publisher:

"Immigration: Whose Country Is It?" by Jenkin Lloyd Jones which you published Feb. 4, was smut. It was not written as an intelligent discussion of a current issue, but rather as an instrument to exacerbate hate.

The half-truths and obnoxious innuendoes throughout the story are exceeded only by Jones' apparent inability to conceal his own prejudices and bigotries. Perhaps we should weep for one of our countrymen so lacking in ethical or moral fiber as to ask why the United States should have a "guilt complex over selective immigration." For him to have the audacity to call us, in the same sentence, an "advanced nation," is a non sequitur, to say the least.

Why he thinks the United States should try to emulate the immigration philosophy and laws of any other country is difficult to conceive. Especially when he can find nothing pleasant to say about people from other countries. Indeed, our very reason for existence is a result of differences with other countries. But, then, his whole outpouring has no logic.

Guest Pulpit . .

Have you lost your temper with your critics lately?

Being emotionally grown up is an important factor in the mature Christian life. You cannot wear your feelings on your sleeve and still be a useful servant of Jesus Christ.

Rev. Baxter

But if you can learn to take criticism in a true Christian spirit, it can carry you a long way toward the fulfillment of one of the Lord's most difficult commands, the command which says, "Love your enemies, do good to those who despitefully use you."

For with most of us, our enemies are one and the same with our critics, and if we can somehow learn to appreciate our critics, perhaps we will discover that we have no enemies.

Then too, there is a very large amount of criticism which comes to us because we deserve it. It is valid and honest criticism. Of course the mere fact that it is valid and true does not always make it palatable . . . I once heard a definition of nagging which said that nagging is the continual repetition of the unhappy truth.

So it is, that even though criticism comes in unpalatable forms, you must be alert to its constructive value. Like a dose of quinine, it may be exceedingly bitter, and yet very worthwhile. But even the most valid criticism is made useful only by the way you react to it. A common question on character reference forms says, "How does the applicant react to criticism?" 1. Resents it. 2. Takes it good naturedly. 3. Asks for it. And woe to the man or woman whose references check the first answer. They will probably continue job hunting until that question ceases to be on the form, for no one wants a thin-skinned employe. The man or woman they are really looking for is the one who is emotionally mature enough to see the constructive value of criticism and to welcome it even though it may hurt.

Certainly it is true that sometimes criticism is undeserved and unjust. But the greatest answer which such criticism can receive and beyond which no one need go, is the mature, self-sacrificing attitude which patiently endures the continual carping or vicious criticism of those whom we seek to serve.

When Jesus died on the cross, the act of crucifixion was the expression of bitter criticism from the ones he came to save. Yet in the very midst of their criticism he was faithful to them, and rather than resenting their criticism, he prayed for their forgiveness while suffering the pain which they chose to inflict.

So in this as in other matters, you must imitate Jesus Christ. Be willing to serve with all your heart the best interests of those who criticize you, even though their criticism be both harsh and unfair. Because if you continue to serve with hard work, with good will, and with patience, those who unjustly criticise you, the irritation of their constant criticism will be the little grain of sand which will create in you the pearl of true greatness.

An Editor's Outlook . . . by Jenkin Lloyd Jones

Villages Vanishing; Are Small Towns Next?

Under the spreading chestnut tree the village smithy no longer stands. The chestnut blight has taken care of the chestnut tree. The automobile has eliminated the smithy. And now the village is about to go.

America's very small towns are in trouble. Take the rough figure of 2,500 population (in the West it might be less and in the East more). Below that line most communities are going to fade. Above it, many towns will grow and prosper. The economic reason for the American village has vanished.

Jones

This is a sad fact of modern America — sad because of the sentimental legend, still strong among us, that the village represented peace and virtue and friendly help as opposed to the coldness and wickedness of the city. Our folklore cherishes the clear-eyed country lad with his yellow button shoes and his wicker suitcase who came into the big town and outslicked the city slicker. We overlooked the main point, which was that this country boy never went back to the country.

The country town in America has been wrecked by Henry Ford, the paved highway, Hereford bulls and contract harvesting. Henry Ford and the paved road made it possible for the farmer to shop in the county seat if not in the metropolis. The Hereford bull took a lot of marginal land out of crops and into cattle. Contract harvesting made possible the corporate farm where the empty houses warp in the sunshine and no man watches the wheat grow.

This walking-off-from-the land has occurred all over America except in the shadow of the cities where suburbia has turned fields into lawns.

It is ironic that it is the city which is the little town's best friend if the little town is lucky enough to be close to the city. For those prosper best which lie within an hour's drive of the skyscrapers. They have the best chance for industrial payrolls. They are the only ones that can benefit from the commuter's taxes.

In Oklahoma, although only 20 percent of the area is within 50 miles of either Tulsa or Oklahoma City, half of the 80 towns over 2,500 are within these small circles.

Recently the University of Nebraska issued a study showing the "dominant towns" were increasing their market areas, while smaller centers that could not attract distant customers were drying up because the rural population per square mile was going down. A similar report by Kansas State University showed that in 30 years many Kansas county seats that had maintained their market radii had really lost 20 to 40 percent of their customers.

What does it take to make a good town?

It takes stores where there is an adequate selection. It takes good schools. It takes reasonable medical services. And it takes enough opportunity for good jobs so that the bright kids won't pull out the day after their high school graduation.

Karl Fox of Iowa State University says a large supermarket needs a base of 2,000 families. For a men's clothing store to produce $7,000 net profit a year it needs 2,680 customers. A hardware store needs 6,720. The young doctor of today is not content with an office over the drugstore. He wants to work in a clinic.

Dr. James Conant claims a first-class high school ought to have 100 students in the graduating class. That requires a population base of 6,720 persons. Towns smaller than this need a consolidated school covering a wide land area.

The tragedy of the small town is that when it starts to slip, forces are set in motion that cause it to slip faster. The more kids who leave town the older the population average grows and the less the town is inclined to spend on schools or civic improvements. Lack of these things makes it difficult to attract industrial payrolls, and this lack causes more kids to leave.

Dwight Nesmith stated in the U.S. Department of Agriculture Yearbook of 1963 that there may not be much that can be done for the rural village far removed from a city, but that small and medium-sized towns can go either way. They don't have the magnetic power of mass which, in an urbanizing nation, practically guarantees growth for all cities now above 50,000. But they have a future if they work for it.

With fewer people tied to the land the small city cannot count so much on captive customers. It must make itself attractive enough to bring in industrial and business payrolls, to lure the retired, to develop tourist income where the surroundings are favorable. It needs public officials who can hit the city hall spittoons, or, better yet, not require them. It needs schools remarkable for something beside the bands.

All this takes devotion. And — worst of all — taxes. But the little cities all over America, whether they know it or not, are in a desperate fight for life. For the centripetal forces drawing Americans into urban areas are strong and growing. The good little city can buck these forces. It's great to live in a town where you know the mayor and a picnic is not a safari.

But the small American cities that are going nowhere are just about sure to get there.

Money does not buy happiness, but it surely seems to relax the nerves.

Some women discover that it is sometimes just as hard to find a husband after marriage as it was before.

Some persons are willing to do a day's work but want to do it in seven and a half hours and want a week's pay for it.

COFFEE BREAK

Speak Now, Friend, Or Hold Your Peace

By Adeline Daley

Am I the only person who consults the Yellow Pages in the telephone directory whenever we need goods or services? I must be, because it seems that everybody else I know has an obliging relative or a magnanimous friend only too eager to sell everything at half price.

But I need not feel left out, for if I had "only called first," I, too, could be reaping the benefits of these money-saving friendships. Most of the time, however, I hear about these offers from a nodding acquaintance from whom I have never asked even the time of day.

But now that he sees a new roof being installed, he is practically driven to tears because we failed to contact him.

Far worse, however, than being informed that a fortune has just sifted through our negligent fingertips,' is to be told:

(A) The firm we are doing business with charges the highest prices since the Klondike Gold Rush of 1898.

(B) The company has pulled more swindles than those committed during the height of the Teapot Dome Scandals.

(C) Although honest, the organization is made up of incompetent bunglers. No matter what job they undertake, you might as well have hired a wrecking company.

The timing our "friends" use to inform us of our mistakes is perfect. For instance, I will be entering a beauty salon and meet an informer who will confide, "I should have told you to ask for Miss Cynthia. In fact, anybody but Lucretia — she practically ruined my hair." One guess who's scheduled to give me a permanent.

Or say we've made reservations, sight unseen, at a vacation resort. Why is it that just before departure, this same type will inquire, "Hasn't that place been condemned yet? The last time Myrt and I were there the rodents (not mice, rodents) kept us awake half the night. Too bad, we could have told you about a nice, reasonable place . . ."

And I love the "silent type" who just gives you a blank look when you tell them you're facing surgery — even if it's the removal of a carbuncle. "Look, every doctor is entitled to a few mistakes," they will comfort you.

This has convinced me of one thing: whoever wrote the marriage ceremony certainly had the right idea. Is there anything that prevents second-guessing more than the line, "Whosoever objects, speak now, or forever hold your peace"?

FOOD MARKETS THIS WEEK

How To Get The Best Food Buy

by ESTELLE B. FRANKS

THIS WEEK LOOK FOR:

Fruits — grapefruit, bananas, Temple oranges, apples.

Vegetables — lettuce, carrots, broccoli, yellow onions, new cabbage, turnips.

Meat and Poultry — large grade A eggs, beef "specials", pork shoulder cuts.

Other — red tart cherries, cherry products, dairy products.

Want to save $100 a year on your food bill? You can do it just by choosing carefully at the supermarket.

Recently in this column we pointed out that one way to chop off six percent of a weekly food bill of approximately $30 is to use weekend "specials" wisely. Now, let's look at other factors to consider for a good buy.

Mrs. Franks

What is a good buy? For a food to be a good buy, it must be accepted by the family, reasonably priced, easily stored, nutritionally adequate, and conveniently prepared.

Family preference is something with which every food shopper has to reckon, for certainly no food is a bargain if the family won't eat it. Food biases often result from religious beliefs, nationality or geographical customs and family tradition. Hominy grits are eaten in the South but seldom in the North. Family tradition may mean that kidney, brains, heart, and liver are seldom used even though they are winners in nutrition for the price.

When buying "specials", make sure that your dollar is buying more than usual — you'll need to know the regular price of an item. Then too, price and quality are not always synonymous, you'll need to compare. A careful look at your storage and refrigerator space gives the best guide for quantities to buy. For only when food can be used while it is in prime condition is it a good buy.

Convenience is becoming a bigger and bigger factor in food selection. Time is a precious commodity for a homemaker who has two jobs, so the instant foods, frozen dinners and cake mixes are in demand. The old rule, "the more you cook, the more you save", isn't necessarily true today. Mass production works in wondrous ways to provide convenience foods at a convenient price. You'll find this true when you compare convenience items with the homemade.

Nutritional value of a food is always important to the homemaker as she shops. With a comprehensive knowledge of the basic food groups she can alternate foods offered as good buys to suit her taste and season.

Comparing stores may also pay off. In a recent study conducted during a four week period in the Columbus market, a price difference was found between stores. When 73 items of equal quality were compared in six different stores the total cost of these 73 items in the lowest priced store was eight percent lower than the store which ranked highest. Of course, differences in price may reflect differences in services given such as carry out and features such as stamps.

Music Offers A Magic Language At Coyle's

By CHARLES McDERMOTT
Spectator Business Editor

It is not exactly original to mention that music has a bit of magic in its appeal. In happiness as well as sorrow, in martial conflict or reverent prayer, the harmonic poetry of music catches man's mood and explains it in a universal language.

In the Greater Columbus area the universal language of music cannot be mentioned without a word about Ziggy Coyle's Music Centers.

The first of these centers, now located at 2864 N. High-st, was founded in 1952 by William R. "Ziggy" Coyle.

Ziggy, as he is known to thousands who dance to the music of his popular band, grew up on the Hilltop playing his trumpet, attended West High School, and later established an instrument rental system and instruction plan that made it easier for children and parents alike to enjoy the universal language of music.

There are three other Coyle Music Centers now, including one at 12 S. Sandusky-st, Delaware, one at Great Eastern Shopping Center, and another at 2502 W. Broad-st.

Literally thousands of school children and others have furthered their musical educations through one of these four music centers. Probably one reason for Ziggy's success is the authenticity of his service.

A dedicated musician, himself, Ziggy sets high ideals for his branch managers. For instance, take a look at Dennis Iguchi, manager of Coyle's west branch.

Born in Mechanicsburg, Iguchi attended North High, graduated at Ohio State with a bachelor of science degree in education, and is presently working on a master's degree in radio and television education.

Iguchi has been in music 12 years and plays professionally on the saxophone. His assistant at the center is Lyle Preest.

Preest is a Linden McKinley graduate and attended the School of Music at Ohio State. He is a Columbus native and has played drums professionally in this area for many years.

In addition to professionals like Iguchi and Preest, the Coyle Music Center west branch has a staff of fourteen college trained teachers and many professional musicians available to students.

The west branch, like all Coyle centers, offers complete service and sales of nationally known musical instruments and accessories. Found here are such famous names as Conn, LeBlanc, Artley, Gemeinhardt, Ludwig, RMC, Embassey, Kay, Framus, Goya, Harmony and many others.

Here, too, can be found the Vox amplifier (used by the Beatles and the Dave Clark Five), and the drums with that "Great Gretsch Sound."

If you want to compare notes—on musical knowledge or a fine instrument — drop in for a chat with Ziggy or one of his Coyle Music Center managers. They all speak the universal language of music.

CEF Urges Rhodes To Back Standardized Bus Legislation

Supporters of the "Fair Bus Bill" introduced last week in the Ohio Senate have asked Governor James A. Rhodes to back a standardized school bus transportation law rather than permissive legislation.

The plea came from Citizens for Educational Freedom, sponsor of bus legislation calling for equal service to children in all state-accredited schools. A bill introduced in the Ohio House of Representatives seeks to enact "permissive" school bus transportation legislation. It would give local boards of education authority to provide or deny bus transportation at their discretion.

The "mandatory" legislation, proposed by CEF, would not change regulations now in effect for all public schools, but would make the same law apply to all schools accredited by the state.

Rhodes has said that he favors, in principle, enactment of legislation permitting school bus transportation for accredited private and parochial schools. But Paul Mecklenborg, Ohio CEF president, has urged the governor to specify mandatory instead of permissive legislation. He said the CEF proposal would provide "equal and uniform treatment for all school children," and would eliminate "discrimination and avoid local controversy quite prevalent under a local option permissive bill."

Of the plan by some legislators to push for permissive legislation, Mecklenborg said:

"A local option law might seem to some persons a suitable political compromise of the school bus issue. In fact, however, experience has illustrated that such a compromise will be the source of great local disunity. If the principle of transporting all children equally is right there is no reason for, and much to be said against, the odption of a 'pass the buck' permissive statute by the legislators of Ohio."

Old, Drafty House Windows Can Be Replaced in Winter

Unique Low-Cost Replacement Windows Are Installed From Inside In Minutes!

It used to be that window repairs—like sealing up drafty, loose-fitting sash—were performed only in the spring and summer when the weather was balmy.

However, such troublesome windows can now be eliminated permanently and quickly this winter, thanks to a newly developed aluminum replacement window—Nu-Sash.

and modest monthly installments.

Besides sealing out cold drafts and keeping the heat inside the home, Nu-Sash has many other year-around advantages.

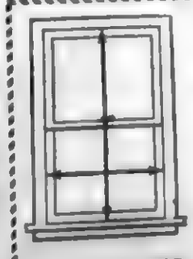
The sash are completely weatherstripped and the side jambs feature foam insulation.

Smooth, effortless operation is provided by spring balances plus self-lubricating tracks that won't bind or stick.

Nu-Sash has been tested under rigid laboratory conditions. Results show it is superior to standards for air leakage set by FHA for new house windows. Savings in fuel bills alone should pay a large share of the cost of Nu-Sash.

For free literature about Nu-Sash, mail coupon or telephone.

Old window leaks air, sticks and binds.



Nu-Sash replacement seals tight, yet works easy.

With Nu-Sash, all of the work is done from inside the home without touching plaster or woodwork. For example, an ordinary house window can be completely replaced with the new aluminum model in about 20 minutes.

What's more, Nu-Sash—including installation—costs approximately 50% less than any other method of replacing old windows with no down payment

For example:
It eliminates the most dangerous household hazard—perching on sills or tipsy ladders to clean outside glass. Nu-Sash lift out easily for washing conveniently inside the home.

Painting, puttying and virtually all other maintenance are completely eliminated. All parts are constructed of durable, eye-catching alumimum or vinyl, no upkeep.

PLEASE SEND ME FREE DETAILS AND SAMPLE PRICES ON NU-SASH — ALSO FREE LITERATURE.

A few weeks ago we ran a full page advertisement in The Spectator and were extremely pleased with the results and felt compelled to drop a line of congratulations for producing such a fine product.

Even today, several weeks later, we still have people wanting to buy some of the items displayed in the page.

Many good wishes for giving all of Columbus a fine newspaper. Keep up the good work!

Loan Date Advanced For Farm-Stored Beans

The speedup in the loan maturity date for 1963-crop soybeans now under farm-stored reseal loans reflects the fact that market prices are well above the level permitting profitable redemption of loans by producers, Owen VanSchoyck, local ASCS chairman said. The action is being taken to help insure a flow of soybeans to market to cover demand.

The accelerated date — May 31, 1965, instead of a maturity date of July 31, 1965 — together with delivery instructions will be issued to producers by the ASCS county office.

A reseal program will not be offered on 1964-crop soybeans placed under price-support loan. These loans will mature July 31, 1965.

This is daddy's den," said the little girl to her playmate. "Does your daddy have a den?" "No," said her friend. "My pop just growls around all over the place."

FORM BILLIARD GROUP

OFFICERS ELECTED by the Billiard Proprietors Association are (l. to r.): Don Herb (The Clock), secretary-treasurer; Allen Fireman (Cue and Pocket), president; and (standing) Max Friedman (Buckeye Billiards), vice-president. The newly-formed association was organized to promote the modern high standards of present day billiard and pool games. Membership is open to proprietors in the Central Ohio area.

SELLING FLORIDA

THIRTY OF THE nation's leading real estate agencies were represented at a General Development Corporation sales convention at the St. Lucie Country Club at Port St. Lucie, Fla. Among those present were Robert Yerke and Ralph Trachsel of Marvin C. Yerke and Associates, Inc., 232 S. High-st. The agency has sold more than 5,000 Florida homesites to Ohio customers.

PTA Joins Jaycees In Anti-VD Campaign

The Columbus PTA Council has joined forces with the downtown Jaycees in alerting people of a growing health menace, venereal disease.

At a specially called city-wide adult meeting, Jan. 28, in which the Linmoor Junior High PTA were hosts, Columbus PTA members and other adults heard City Health Commissioner Dr. Ollie Goodloe discuss the medical aspects of syphilis and gonorrhea.

Other speakers included Columbus Jaycee representative Al Dubose who emphasized the need for full public understanding and awareness; Russ Needham, city health educator who informed the audience of the local VD growth and the associated human behavioral trends and M.D. Sheatsley, director of physical education in the city school system, who discussed the responsibility of the schools regarding VD education.

As a result of this meeting the movie "A Quarter Million Teenagers" will be televised directly into the schools by Channels 34 and 4 on closed circuit.

The film is a scientific one, designed to aid the school instructor in bringing information concerning venereal disease to youth.

Parents and representatives of the two TV stations agreed that the pictorial presentation of the VD problem should be viewed by every high school student.

Infectious syphilis causes permanent sterility, blindness, brain damage, paralysis, heart problems, and eventually death. This disease has increased nearly five-fold in the past few years throughout the country and Columbus is no exception.

Most alarming is the fact that teenagers represent the largest portion of infected persons everywhere. Gonorrhea, although not as physically destructive as syphilis, is 10 times more prevalent in this nation. Nearly 2,000 infectious gonorrhea cases were reported in Columbus during 1964.

"We hope to be able to present and awareness program on VD to every social, civic, paternal, and youth organization in Columbus soon, and we want adult support for the need of full understanding and endorsement of VD education for today's youth in Columbus, commented Al Dubose. Columbus Jaycees are currently speaking to local Kiwanis, Lions, PTA's and other civic organizations in this area.

KIWANIS SPEAKER

Officer John Kaiser, for four years a member of the vice squad of the Columbus Police Department, will speak to the Northern Columbus Kiwanis Club Thursday evening, Feb. 11, in the Worthington Inn.

TO ATTEND MEETING

Dr. Willard W. Fine, 7110 E. Main-st., will attend the mid-winter meeting of the American College of Foot Surgeons to be held at the Flamingo Hotel in Las Vegas, Nevada, Feb. 14 - 18.

FARM TAX

Piggy Banks Getting Fatter

Coin shortages are accelerating a trend toward rounding off prices in even dollar amounts, according to Nation Wide News & Trends, monthly newsletter distributed to business leaders by Nation Wide Employment Service.

Hoarding was mentioned as one of the causes for the short supply.

Worth Repeating

"I think we've come to a whole new set of problems and priorities, and that greater and greater production is really not the Number One priority. We've come to an end, to a degree at least, of the constant emphasis on more and more. That is what the New Deal and Fair Deal and New Frontiers were — more and more, in quantitative terms. We're coming to a period where the problem is the quality of life in this country."

Eric Sevareid

JUST SUPPOSE . . . .
That you need four bedrooms and 2 comp. baths for a growing family in Lincoln Village N. Just 1 sq. from a fine school. Just suppose this home had a full dry bsmt. for the kids to wear themselves out in and save the lovely carpeting upstairs, and a nice dining rm. that would seat 8 comfortably. Just suppose it had a lot 165' deep where football could be played and the total dn. pymt. was just $800 or nothing G.I. The monthly pymt. including taxes and insurance would be $132, with an income of $675 necessary. We can deliver this 5 yr. old home — as the owner is moving suburban.

Variety . . . by I. F. Howell

ABOUT FOREIGN AID

The following information comes from the desk of Ohio Congressman William H. Harsha in his Oct. 23, 1964, Newsletter to his constituents.

Low-calorie food for Cambodia, $16,000; deodorants, eye shadow, and lipstick for Turkey, $12,000; hops for the Dominican Republic, $5,000; aphrodisiacs for China and Viet Nam, $39,000.

What are we talking about? Well, these are some of the items authorized by the 88th Congress in its $3.5-billion foreign aid bill while $7 billions in appropriated funds remained still unspent. Here is some more of the picture.

The World Bank has assets of $21 billion, of which 27 percent has been contributed by (who else?) the U.S. We have also given half of $1 billion assets of the International Development Association and more than 25 percent of the $128 million assets of the International Finance Corporation. We have paid in virtually all of the assets of the Export-Import Bank.

The $4.7-billion Food for Peace program for the next biennium provides for the "sale" of food to foreign nations. The "purchase" money stays in those nations for their development. None comes back to the U.S. treasury.

We have committed $330 million to the housing project of the Alliance for Progress program for Latin America. And who is getting the new houses? Not the poor living in shacks, but the upper one-fourth income bracket.

The $334-million grant sent to Bolivia in 1963 averages $80 per person. The average per capita income of four million Bolivians is an annual $95. Questionable U.S. worldwide expenditures totalled nearly $25 millions in 1963 alone.

It says here . . .

Does this mean anything? You're still represented in the Congress, and the mails still go.

Personnel Shift At Nationwide

A realignment of executive duties in the personnel office of the Nationwide Insurance Companies has been announced by Robert W. Heffner, vice president in charge of the department.

Leslie L. Diehl, Jr., 3551 Wenwood-dr, has been named director of employment and placement. Diehl

E. J. Henry, 2570 Eastcleft-dr, will continue as director of employe relations but with new duties. He will serve in a consulting capacity, and coordinate company policies involving various employe groups. He also will continue to direct the employe health and recreational programs. Henry has been with Nationwide since 1938.

Carl R. Harrington, 1085 Beechview-dr, has been named director of compensation and organization. In addition to his present duties, he will be in charge of company-wide organizational structure studies. Harrington, who has been director of compensation, joined Nationwide in 1950.

Two other personnel executives, Marvin A. Rusk, 7411 Cleveland-av, and E. P. Arter, 660 Seabury-dr, continue as director of training and director of management development, respectively.

Old Pop Can't 'Zero In' On Homework Anymore

By ROYCE BRIEB

A few years ago when Johnny (eighth grade) zeroed in on his homework, and asked for arithmetical help, the old gentleman could handle it in a vague way. But now he can't touch it, because it's loaded with symbolism.

This is the "New Mathematics" which appears increasingly in elementary and secondary schools.

The new mathematics contain nothing about Farmer Jones and the mensuration problems on his spread. Rather, it's full of abstractions, presenting arithmetic and algebra as exercises in the logical concepts and premises of mathematics. It is mathematics as an "art form," and is presumed to prepare the young for the esoteric branches of mathematics they will encounter in college and beyond.

Curiously, the new mathematics isn't fitting into the computer technology now infiltrating the business and industrial world. Like fathers, the machines don't savvy.

Take the word of Dr. R. W. Hamming, Bell Telephone Laboratories, who addressed a Montreal meeting of the National Council of Mathematics Teachers, and vigorously questioned the applicability of pure mathematics to current problems.

Dr. Hamming said that often, when he thought he knew what he was talking about when describing a problem to a machine, the machine balked. "Many of the present postulates of mathematics have not been tested in the real world, and cannot be . . . they aim for elegance of proof, rather than clarity."

Another doubter was Dr. Max Beberman, University of Illinois, himself one of the instigators of the new mathematics in education.

Now he thinks it is moving too fast, its symbolism "forbidding . . . elementary school teachers have become so frightened by the prospect of using esoteric mathematics, they have lost all common sense."

Dr. Beberman doesn't want to return to the learning by rote of the old mathematics, without regard to basic principles, but he thinks changes in the elementary schools should be made "carefully and slowly," and "large numbers of teachers must be retrained."

Like Dr. Hamming, Dr. Beberman thinks the new mathematics is on a tangent from the "real world" where mathematics must be applied if early learning is not to be a waste of time.

(As you perceive, columnists can also get on tangents. No specific examples are cited above because this writer has examined an eighth grade math text, and can't understand it.)

CAB Has New County Award

Nominations are now being accepted for the award which will recognize a blind citizen who has achieved a high degree of success throught his own initiative in his chosen field. Individuals and agencies washing to nominate a candidate should send pertinent information to William P. Rutherford, president of the Columbus Association for the Blind, 1393 N. President Fergus also noted that during 1964 the organization purchased the building at 8 E. Broad-st for a new downtown location this spring. In addition, in August of last year Park Federal's fifth office was opened in Northland Shopping Center.

"Can you suggest places that are REALLY cheap to live in Europe? For about three months?"

Portugal, Spain, Switzerland remain the cheapest for living costs. Get outside Lisbon and I think you can live in Portugal frugally for about $250 per month. There are very good beach towns and the weather is splendid.

The Swiss Tourist Office, 10 West 49th Street, New York 22, gives you a list. You can get it at any Swiss airport on landing, in New York or almost any large American city. But ALL Swiss hotels are excellent. The trick in Switzerland is to pick small hotels. The manager then gives you personal service. Better than your own home.

All French shops are very competitive on perfumes. The prices are much the same. Ask for a discount — on any gifts you buy. In France, not just perfume. TODAY'S REPORT

By ABE MELLINKOFF

By Abe Mellinkoff

Well, I see that South Vietnam has now joined the Burn a Book of the Month Club. A mob burned half the stock of our library in Saigon and threw rocks at the three fellows on duty — which is no way to treat librarians.

Book-burning is the harshest form of literary criticism. It far exceeds even those critics who promise to eat the latest novel if it is not the worst of the season.

But I have a feeling that the mobs who burn our books in Vietnam and elsewhere are protesting against our statesmen and not our authors. Maybe we could satisfy everybody (mobs and writers) by sending abroad bound copies of the "Congressional Record" —not for reading but for burning only.

Honeymoon Over?

All is not "love and kisses" between President Johnson and Washington reporters according to the current issue of Editor & Publisher, national publication of the fourth estate.

"It is apparent that the relations between the 'working press' and the White House are fast deteriorating," says E & P. "The Great Society he advocates will never flourish without an amiable sharing of the responsibility to keep the people informed."

Changing Values

The inside of the new Lincoln Village Branch Post Office took on the flavor of an old fashioned Fourth of July celebration last Friday when the official dedication of the P. O. took place.

There was music by the Franklin Heights High School Band, flag raising by Camp Chase Legionnaires speeches and recognitions galore, topped off with door prizes and refreshments.

Walter Heer, one of the speakers representing community interests, related how he had been criticized a few years back for appraising the ground in that area at the high price of $500 per acre and today it is selling at figures of 20 times that amount.

Yes, sir, the scene changes—and so do Values!

Why Not Spell It Out? — "In this country profits have eliminated much poverty, created better working conditions, made possible the vast company insurance and pension programs, supported the government, and, for icing, produced the good works of philanthropy. Columbus' Per Pupil Cost Lowest

Comparison figures of the per pupil cost of educating children in all Franklin County Districts and in the seven major Ohio cities, presented to the Columbus School Board at its Tuesday meeting, placed Columbus' expenditure as lowest of all.

Columbus schools' cost, for the year ending last June, was $339.25, or $89.27 below the county average, and $66.94 under the average expenditure of the state's seven largest cities.

On the county level, Grandview Heights was first at $510.90, and Bexley second at $481. Upper Arlington, Worthington and South-Western followed, and Whitehall was sixth, at $373.72.

Cincinnati's cost of $437.57 was highest among the state's major cities, and Columbus District was lowest.

Columbus also rated 38th among 40 city school districts in the state having populations of more than 30,000. Only Newark and Zanesville achieved a lower expenditure.

May Need New Study

Bureau of Customs officials last week outlined factors which the city should present in its application for an international-status airport.

The rulings open the possibility that the city may have to hire another firm to complete another study proving Port Columbus' eligibility.

WHITEHALL COUNCIL

Overrides Mayor's Veto

Whitehall Council Tuesday night overrode the mayor's veto of the controversial ordinance transferring the income tax department from the treasurer's to the auditor's office by a five-to-two vote.

Members then passed legislation changing the auditor's job from a part time basis to a full time, elective office, and including the duties of tax commissioner. The ordinance is effective Jan. 1, 1966.

The measure also dispensed with the office of deputy city auditor.

Councilmen voting to sustain Mayor William Holzhause's veto of the ordinance were Les Ballenger and Roger Stahley.

An advisory park recreational commission to the Recreation Board was approved by Council, in answer to citizens' request that a commission be formed to devise a plan for the development of the city park.

Since procedures for the creation of a regular Park Commission require that petitions signed by five per cent of the city's electorate be filed, and the issue placed on the ballot, it was thought that an advisory park board was the best approach.

The plan will permit action to be taken in time for the approaching summer season.

Also approved was a salary ordinance for elected city officials.

The annual salary scale establishes, for the mayor, $10,500; city solicitor, $12,500; auditor, $10,000; treasurer, $2400, and for council president and councilmen, $1200.

CONFERENCE, COMMUNITY 'AUDIT' PLANNED

Civil Rights Council Seeks Issue Answers

By BETTY DAFT

Plans for an intensive effort to arrive at a solution to racial imbalance in Columbus' public schools, and to thoroughly assess the status of race relations in the city have been launched by the Columbus Civil Rights Council.

A conference to explore ways of correcting racial imbalance of student bodies, and to recommend specific proposals to be Board of Education will be held the last of March.

Participating in the day-long session will be: 1. representatives of the 46-member organizations of CCRC, 2. signers of the Community Position Paper outlining areas of "de facto segregation" in schools which was presented to the School Board by Civil Rightists last June, and, 3. members of the Council on Intercultural Education of Columbus Schools.

A proposal for a community audit, co-sponsored by the CCRC and the Mayor's Community Relations Commission, was unanimously approved by the commission Feb. 12, when presented by Russell M. Jones, executive secretary, Civil Rights Council.

The project, to be under way by Apr. 1 and finished by June 30, would search out every facet of the city's race relations, and present the picture in its entirety, Areas where progress had been made would be recognized, and areas of problems and tension would receive attention.

Walter Tarpley, executive secretary of the Mayor's Commission, and Jones will work out details of the audit and present the plan to the commission at its next meeting.

Dr. John Rosemond will head the CCRC committee of 21 who will study methods tried in other cities for correcting racial imbalance in schools, and their possible adaptation to the Columbus situation, in preparation for the March conference.

Jones explained, "Thirteen methods have been devised to correct racial imbalance, and the school administration feels that none of these is feasible in Columbus. But we need to take another look — somewhere in the 13 there must be one, or two or three, that can be tried here.

"And the schools' new Department of Intercultural Education has had since last August to study the problem (of "de facto segregation") and arrive at some conclusions."

Joseph Davis, assistant superintendent of Columbus Schools, is in charge of the Division of Special Service created last summer, and James Wade is coordinator of the division's Department of Intercultural Education, dealing with "social and economic deprivation" problems.

"We will come out of the conference," Jones concluded, "with definite recommendations to the school board and officials, and urge that they be instituted by a target date."

New School Drawings Approved

Preliminary drawings for the proposed new Cherry-Hill McNaughten area elementary school were approved by the Columbus School Board Tuesday.

The school, to be ready for occupancy in September, will be of similar design to Barnett and Koebel Schools, opened this year.

The six-acre tract is north of Main and east of McNaughten-rd, and Old Orchard-dr curves around the north and east sides of the building.

The building will feature two kindergarten rooms instead of one, and a separate kindergarten play yard.

FIRE OUT, FIREMEN FULL

SIX HOURS after the first alarm was pulled at 2:43 a.m. last Thursday, two firemen mount an aerial ladder (left) for a final inspection of the doused flames at Kappa Kappa Gamma headquarters, 530 E. Town-st. An addition was gutted by the fire, and the older part was damaged by smoke and water. The building is a national headquarters and record center for the sorority, which has six chapters in Ohio, including Beta Nu at OSU. The sorority's national magazine also originates here. Serving unnoticed by most onlookers is the American Red Cross disaster truck (below). Manned by volunteers and stocked with soups, chili, doughnuts and coffee, it is equipped with a 10-kilowatt generator to operate independently of outside power, and provides emergency power when needed for flood lights and other equipment at disaster scenes. Most popular items dispensed at the Kappa Kappa Gamma fire to more than 120 firemen and police were coffee (13 gallons) and doughnuts (20 dozen).

Continual attention to fit is vital because poorly fitted shoes can be pressing the feet out of shape-without a murmur of complaint from the child. That's why we take great time and effort to check the shoe size of your child.
Being an "expert" isn't enough! Our buyers, fitters, all must keep your child's welfare in mind when carefully selecting shoes for your choice.

Recipient is Columbus Fire Lt. James Hodges of 55 S. Souder-st whose dream house he had worked on for 10 years in New Albany burned Jan. 21. The $14,000 loss was not insured.

Monies from the play will be donated to Hodges' house fund.

ME FIRST—There was no courtesy intended or implied on the rebound chase Friday at East as West's Steve Barnard (41) and Jim Bell (5) set out with East's Galen Bias (40) after an elusive basketball. Barnard got there first but the out-of-bounds line was even faster. West won 79-68, to stay in the thick of the City League title race. (Staff photos by Jack Wittenmeier)

Hawks 'Eagle'-Eyed; Warriors Visit Rebs

Coach Geary Bradley's Hartley Hawks hung up at least a half-share of the current Central Catholic League crown via a 75-52 win over Newark Catholic.

The win gave the Hawks a spotless 9-0 circuit slate and an eight-game winning skein heading into Friday's championship game with runner-up Watterson (8-1) on the Eagles' court.

THE NEWARK contest was won midway in the last period when Hartley erupted for 27 deciding tallies. Tom Schlager whipped in his usual 20 points and picked off 16 caroms while Frank Tafoya added 18 more and Doug Parker ten.

Saturday night, the Hawks (now 15-2 overall) eked out a double-overtime 82-80 victory over Dayton Alter when guard Steve McGrew and Doug Parker sunk two clutch-ridden goals late in the second session. The incomparable Schlager canned 30 markers and got twin-figure support from Tafoya (17), Parker (15) and Les Thomas (10).

Tomorrow night, coach Bradley will have to stop Watterson aces Mike Morris (16-5) and Dave Crites (14.7) if the Hawks hone to win an undisputed CCL crown.

GENE MILLARD got all five Lion starters clicking and Bexley earned a 52-47 nod over Worthington, holding off a last-period push by the host Cards.

Jump - shooting Dave Frasch and Fobin Wells each rimmed 15 in the Lion win that gave Bexley a 6-10 overall ticket.

Mt. Vernon made short work of Whitehall, 81-56, after assuming an insurmountable 48-22 halftime bulge. Phil Allen's scrappy crew saw leading scorer and rebounder Gary Beckley hit 15 and Mike Tarleton ten.

THE RAMS will spot a 7-10 record against host Delaware (4-13) tomorrow night and have to stop Rick Reed (15.7) to win.

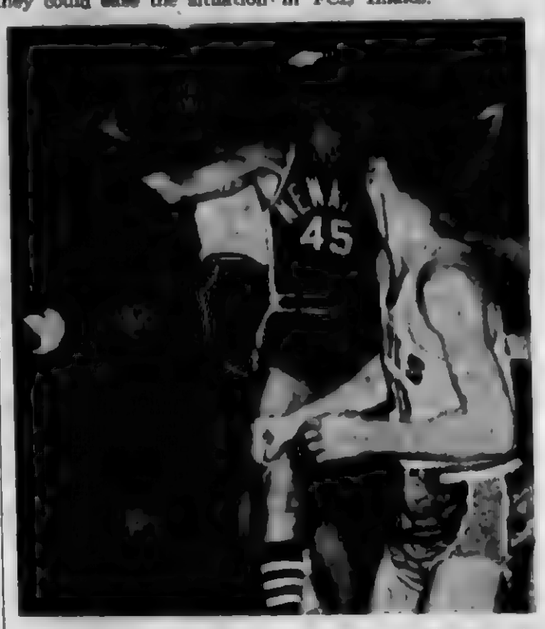
Win-hungry Whetstone surprised improving Walnut Ridge, 67-57, after trailing by only two at halftime (29-27).

Forward Rick Houchen got hot for 22 tallies, Pat Beveridge 14 and guard Dick Tanner twelve for W-R now 2-13 on the campaign heading into tomorrow night's fray with invading East (10-5).

EAST LOST a 79-68 decision to visiting West as the Cowboys out-scored the Tigers 29-17 in the third canto and eliminated the Bengals from further City contention with a 6-4 log.

Gil Mathews hit his old stride with 28 tallies and got 17-point help from big John Lewis and 11 from guard Galen Bias.

Dayton Roosevelt settled the Tiger hash on Saturday night, 76-65, after holding off a desperation bid by the Hartmen. Mathew's 16 and 15 by Bias accented ten tallies by Vance Carr.



EASTMOOR fell to a 10-5 season schedule after Central made the Warriors walk the plank in a surprise win, 76-68. Fine outside gunnery by 5'7 Jerry Groves (22) and 21 more by consistent Steve Howell couldn't avert the Warrior waxing.

The Warriors are out of the City title-running but they could ease the situation somewhat at South tomorrow night where the tri-leading Rebs (9-1) hope to gain at least a title share with a victory. Rebels Lloyd Pate (18.6) and Bill Bullock (20.2) are the boys to keep an eye on Friday night.

St. Charles squeezed past DeSales, 55-54 in a CCL thriller that saw the Cards down by four early in the last frame. Tim Rooney's 14 and Denny Craft's ten weren't enough for the Cards, now 6-9 all told.

THE CARDS finish up at home tomorrow night when Ready (3-6 in CCL play) moves in with Mike Horgan (13.2) and Joe Bellamy (12.7).

Academy got ready for District play by dividing a pair over the weekend winning over New Albany 71-65 behind radar-scoped Terry Larrimer's 30, and bowing to Cincinnati Country Day, 72-46, off-setting 13 digits by Larrimer and ten more by Joe Lanman. Academy now stands 11-7 overall and 4-4 in FCL finales.

Mat Strongboys Sharpen Up For League Title Showdowns

WALNUT RIDGE almost pulled the most sensational comeback of the season Tuesday — almost.

The Scotties, trailing Whitehall, 22-3, with four matches remaining, got pin wins from Jack Brown, John Cruse and Dave Walter and a decision by Bill Masch but fell one point short, 22-21.

The Rams got started early with decisions by Dave Nichols, Steve Beery, Randy Nichols and Randy Catalina and a pin by Wes Seymour (9-0-1).

W-R's other win came on a decision by Gary Britton at 112.

CONSECUTIVE closing pins by Jack Brown, John Cruse and Dave Walters sent Walnut Ridge mat fans home happy with a come-from-behind 26-15 win over Linden.

Tex Rife (12-0) also got a pin from the Scotties while Steve Roberts and Al Frazier won via decisions.

Eastmoor came from behind, winning five of the last six events to "pin" Groveport, 28-14.

ROY LEONARD, Vince Rutledge, Pete Johnson, Mike Sullivan, Jake Collins, Rick Newpoff (decisions) and Steve Gutridge (forfeit) won for the Warriors.

Groveport's 103-pounder, Bill Alspach got the meet's lone pin while teammates Mike Sparks, John Jordan and Brian White took decisions.

HARTLEY SCORED big in victories over Grove City (32-11) and Chillicothe (44-2).

The Hawks broke away from the Greyhound matmen, sweeping the final five matches. Pat Erwin and Pat Burkey nabbed pins for the winners while Joe Weldon, Rick Brown, Jim Carpenter and John Bayly took decisions.

Don Fannin got Grove City's lone win while Steve Peitsmeyer and John Bayly garnered decisions.

THE HAWKS never lost a match, securing six pins in the Chillicothe victory. Pat Gentile, Weldon, Brown, Paul and Pat Burkey got the five-pointers.

Erwin, Bayly, Bill Astley and Mike Newton added points via decisions. The week's activity left Hartley with two unbeaten matmen—Pat Burkey (11-0) and Bayly (12-0). Weldon's two wins raised the 112-pounder to 9-2.

Bexley spotted the Ohio State School for the Blind an 18-0 bulge then swept six of the final seven events to win, 30-20.

HEAVYWEIGHT Dennis Walker and Rick Doty (154) nabbed pins while Doug Felger won via decision and Jim Kelly, Bruce Levin and Larry Miller took forfeits.

Franklin Heights warmed up for tomorrow's SSL meet with a convincing 31-13 victory over East.

Under Buckeye Skies

By KEN MACK McCREARY

Don't be too surprised if Cap Brigade," in which a large number of boys and girls will be initiated into the youth conservation organization.

Ken McCreary

With applications still arriving it's impossible to estimate the total number of kids to be in the initiation; many will be from the Spectatorland area, including a group sponsored by the Hilltop Conservation Club.

Details on the organization and the 1:30 p.m. ceremonies are available by calling the League of Ohio Sportsmen (291-4960).

FOLLOWING the ritual the man who plays the original coonskip capper will spend an hour talking with the youngsters, passing out pictures and signing autographs for them.

Parker

Parker and Governor Jim Rhodes will also be honored guests at the League's Saturday evening banquet.

The more serious side of the convention will turn the glaring spotlight on strip-mining in the Buckeye State. There is currently legislation before the Ohio General Assembly and also Congress which would place harsh new restrictions on strip mine operators to reclaim the land after they get the coal out.

MANY conservationists and legislators feel that the strip miners are not required and do not restore the land to a condition where it is usable for recreation or other valid purposes.

The sessions on Friday afternoon and evening are open to the public; both sides of the controversial topic will be aired, and the speakers will be available to answer questions.

Also on the agenda for this busy weekend is the opening of the 1965 Marine Fair Boat Show, at the Buckeye Building on the Ohio Fairgrounds. Columbus Mayor Jack Sensenbrenner will man the scissors for the Saturday noon ribbon-cutting chores.

THE NINE-DAY show will highlight many of the new boats and supplies for the coming season, camping equipment and other new products which will make the outdoor season seem years, rather than weeks, away. For the third year, the Marine Fair is sponsored by the Central Ohio Marine Dealers Association and WTVN-Radio and TV.

MOVE OVER, BASKETBALL!

Area Wrestlers Seek 5 Loop Championships This Weekend

By JACK WITTENMEIER

Take your pick, wrestling fans!

League mat meets — the prelude for sectional, district and state grappling competition — are scheduled this weekend for five area loops.

WALNUT RIDGE is defending City League champ but either East or Brookhaven look like good bets to dethrone the Scotties.

Wittenmeier

Jim Porter's Tigers must pull some surprises in the early weight classes if they hope to gain their third CL crown in four seasons.

Brookhaven's strength starts right at 103 (Gary Rapp) and keeps right on going through 127 (Ron Levi, Brad Burbacher and Steve Lombard). Only Fritz Goss (165) looms as a serious Bearcat threat after that.

THE TIGERS look best in the heavy categories with the likes of Jake Holloway (127), Gary Rispress (154), defending district champ Roland Martin (175) and heavyweight Grady Bobo.

Other top individuals who could still be around at finals time are: Walnut Ridge — Steve Roberts (127) and Tex Rife (120); Eastmoor — Roy Leonard (112), Pete Johnson (138) and Mike Sullivan (145); West — Mike Baker (145) and Benny King (154); Central — Steve Howard (120); South—Louis Robinson (165) and Marion-Franklin—Marvin Mills (175).

Prelims open at 3:30 p.m. Friday at Eastmoor and action is extended to Saturday (1 p.m.) All City League schools will participate.

* * *

THE FIRST-EVER South Suburban tourney is set for tomorrow with prelims beginning at 6:30 p.m. and finals getting under way shortly after 8 p.m.

Pleasant View coach Bob Mowery, host for the tourney, reports that there will be three rounds in each division with two mats going full-time.

Admission will be 25 cents for students, 50 cents for adults. Besides the team trophy, medals will be given to the individual winners in each weight class.

FRANKLIN HEIGHTS is the early favorite with Vic Vance (103), Dick Grambo (112), Jim O'Hara (133), Dick Kesserling (127), Fred Scolerle (154), Sam Blankenship (165) and Mike Long (175) all going in with good records.

Efforts of Pleasant View and Hamilton Township to stage an upset look best in the following weight classes: H-T—103—Jim Britton, 133—Mike Blansett, 138—Steve Beggrow, and 165—Paul Keller.

P-V — 112—Chuck Driesbach, 120 — Rick Erbe, 154—Larry Meade, and 165—Jerry Reibel.

* * *

AT GROVE City, Westerville hopes for a repeat Mid-Eight crown are centered around Leonard Mullins (120), Larry McIntyre (145), Jim Moran (138), Bill Owen (175) and heavyweight Jim Hance.

Groveport, runnerup last year, looks like the Wildcats' top opposition with Jeff (112) and Bill (145) Nelle, Tim Wolf (120), John Jordan (127) and Brian White (165) likely to give the '64 champs the most fits.

The host Greyhounds, bolstered by Steve Peitsmeyer (103), Tom Peterson (138), Alan McGath (154) and heavyweight John Cooley could pull some surprises of their own.

HILLIARD'S best chances for a finals win are at 145 (Tim Andres) and 175 (Pete Miller). Other participants include Mifflin and Marysville.

Tournament host Dario Gatti, G-C's mat mentor, reports that prelims for the two-day tourney are set for 7 p.m. Friday and finals carded for the same time Saturday evening.

Besides a team trophy, first-place individuals will be awarded gold medals, second place, silver medals, third and fourth place, ribbons. Admission will be 50 cents per session.

* * *

WORTHINGTON is no worse than a co-favorite to cop honors in the Central Buckeye scrap set Saturday at Grandview.

The one-two Mitchell punch (Paul at 127 and Allan at 133) plus possible finals wins at 154 (John Chrystal) and 175 (Frank Lowrey) could carry the Cards past '64 king Arlington, strongest at 103 (Tom Hartman) and 145 (Mike Sanders).

WHITEHALL has two top individuals in Steve Beery (120) and Wes Seymour (138) as does Bexley (Rick Doty, 154, and Dennis Walker, hwt.) and Grandview (Terry O'Keefe, 133, and Ted Jones, 175) but none of the three seem to have the overall strength to down either Worthington or Arlington.

CBL prelims are set for 9:30 a.m. with finals expected to get under way around 2 p.m. Admission will be 50 cents for students and $1 for adults.

Only CBL team outside the Spectator area participating will be Delaware.

* * *

THE CENTRAL Catholic tourney, reset from Hartley to DeSales, finds the hosts seated in the favorite's seat Saturday.

The Stallions look strongest at 112 (Steve Arnold. (138 (Dave Kauder), 145 (Wayne Hiles, 165 (Mike Deascentis) and heavyweight (Perry Evans).

Hartley, which came a long way toward gaining area mat recognition this year under coach Jeff Cardosi, should provide most of DeSales' opposition.

JOE WELDON looks good at 112 but the Hawks must score where the Stallions are strongest (heavier weight classes).

Cardosi has the material to turn the tide in Paul Burkev (145), Jim Carpenter (165) and heavyweight John Bayly.

Ready, while strong in some of the departments (Jay Michael, 138 and Bill Paxton, 127), doesn't seem likely to keep either DeSales or Hartley from the title. Watterson will also participate.

PRELIMS Saturday get going at 1 p.m. with finals under the lights at 7. Admission will be 50 cents per person for both students and adults alike.

Awards will consist of a team trophy and the Cleary Fredricks' "outstanding wrestler" trophy. Hartley's Dave Erwin won the individual honor last year while DeSales took the team title.

Join Freedoms Roll Call

Last week we marked the birthday of Abraham Lincoln and next Monday we celebrate George Washington's birthday. It is an appropriate time to give serious thought to the Freedoms Roll Call sponsored each year at this time by Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, Pa.

A famous Ohio son, Col. John Glenn, Jr., is national Roll Call chairman. The 1965 slogan for the event is both appropriate and true: Keep Freedom Strong — Exercise It!

Here's what Freedoms Foundation has to say about its campaign:

"It seems odd that such a campaign is necessary. With tyranny manning the guns at Viet Nam, Cuba and East Germany—to name only a few danger spots around the world—one would think that the freedoms we enjoy would appear more precious than ever. . .

"It is now for us, the living, to protect the heritage of freedom which we, as Americans, enjoy. We owe that debt to our brave dead, to our fellow citizens alive today, to ourselves and, certainly, to our children and all succeeding generations."

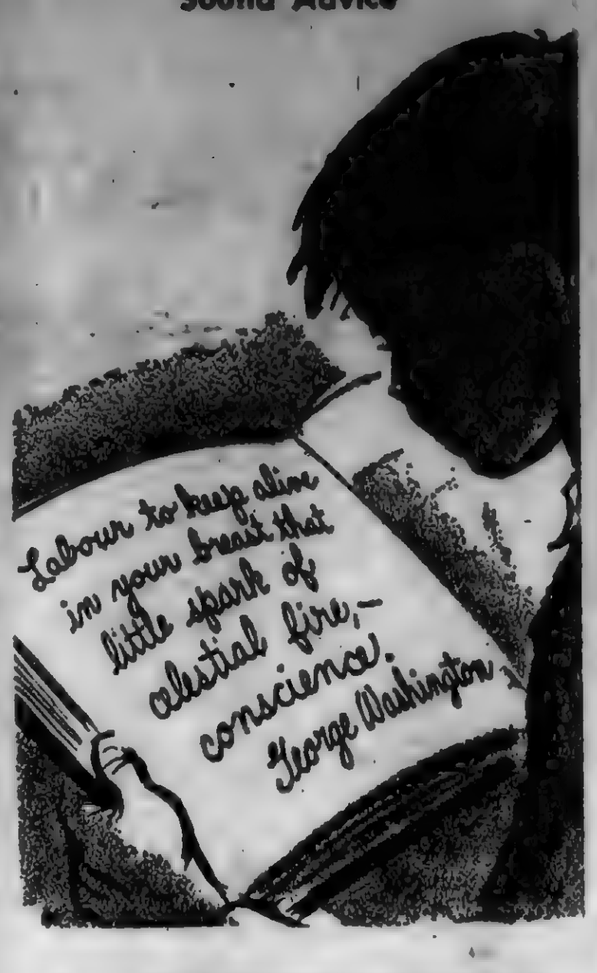
In short, the Freedoms Foundation message is this: If we do not fully appreciate what we have, we shall all too soon have cause to mourn what we have lost.

Junior Achievement: A Major Accomplishment

One of the better means of publication on the subject of free enterprise is a program known as Junior Achievement. This nation-wide project is a "learn-by-doing," practical, economic education. Participating high school students organize and manage their own small-scale businesses under the guidance of adult advisors from business and industry.

This extra-curricular activity does more than combine "book learning" with practical experience. It promotes the truth that all of us — employers, employes and consumers — are an integral part of the enterprise system.

There are about 1,000 active "achievers" in 36 public and parochial schools in Franklin County. More than 360 area corporations and individuals sponsor or support the 49 Junior Achievement companies currently in operation. The "achievers" guide their companies through all phases of business; organization, stock sale, production, marketing, etc. They even pay taxes scaled to the size of each business.



The success of the project can be seen in the fact that 75 to 80 percent of all Junior Achievement companies show a profit. But the "profit motive" of Junior Achievement is not counted in dollars and cents, but in the good, common sense it instills in those who will help shape the destiny of our free enterprise system.

Actions Speak Louder

Brotherhood Week (Feb. 21-28) is really no more than a simple program for complicated people. It is a refresher course for daily living, and the lesson taught is not conformity or singleness, but respect for the dignity of man as a creature of God.

Brotherhood concerns the masses, but will be achieved only to the extent that each individual accepts personal responsibility for its fulfillment. Those of us who "wish" for brotherhood might do well to remember that it is easier to "act" ourselves into right thinking than to "think" ourselves into right acting.

Sound Advice

Guest Pulpit . .

One of the most serious problems of those who work with youth is the school drop-out problem. But what about the more serious problem of adults who drop out of the school of life?

One cause of school drop-outs is poor performance on tests. But what about our poor performance on the tests that life and God bring to us?

Rev. Casto

Let's take a look for a moment at the tests of God, or what is better called the judgments of God.

It is a very unfortunate, yet quite widely accepted belief today, that God is some kind of wayward policeman just waiting to catch us doing something wrong. I think much of this twisted theology can be traced directly to the Church, but be that as it may, the problem we face today is with a large segment of our Church society which does not understand and does not accept the judgments of God within their lives.

It is not true that the judgment of God means only shame, failure, hell, punishment and damnation.

Jesus said, "I am come that they might have life and have it more abundantly." He also said, "Be of good cheer, thy sins are forgiven."

The purpose of the judgments of God is to provide us with checkpoints along our way to see how we are doing. Without these we go our merry way until a lifetime is wasted.

As a boy I had the pleasant task of cutting a beautiful stack of 12 inch pine lumber into shelves for a paint store. My friend's father who owned the store gave us two brand new saws and cut the first length for us to use as a measure for the pieces we sawed. We had a wonderful time that day until he returned. He was disappointed in what he found. Can you guess what we did? We used the board he gave us as a guide for the first board we cut, then tossed it aside, and used each succeeding piece we cut to measure the next piece. When we finished, only a few of the boards were the right length.

The judgments of God serve as guides or standards by which we can check what we do. God said to Amos: "I am setting a plumbline in the midst of my people."

Rather than God's judgments representing wrath, they represent love. God judges us because He loves us. If He did not love us He would not bother. (Our children know also that parental discipline means parental love.)

The human heart has a terrible tendency to laziness. God knows this. And He has provided His judgments to prod us, and to show us where we need to change. Do we not realize now that the teachers who did the most for us were the ones who kept prodding us to do more, the ones we disliked or even thought we hated? The teachings of Jesus have more to do with the sin of doing less than our capabilities than with any other factor of human life.

Adult immaturity is a far greater problem than juvenile delinquency. And I think the basic cause is from adult unwillingness to face into the wind of God's judgments, and straighten up, be judged, be changed, and eventually "to attain mature manhood, to the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ; so that we may no longer be children." (Ephesians 4:13, 14)

An Editor's Outlook . . . by Jenkin Lloyd Jones

America Afflicted By 'Poor Mouth' Syndrome

Like hogs grunting to the trough, congressmen are clamoring to get their districts declared "Appalachias."

The President's original Appalachia uplift plan has called for an initial expenditure of a billion dollars in 11 states along the Appalachian ridge.

Jones

Now Senator John McClellan has come up with an amendment to the Appalachia bill to include 36 Missouri counties and 21 Arkansas counties. Senator Fred Harris wants to add 19 Oklahoma counties. Senator Edward Kennedy says "We in New England must be ready to advise the President of our needs when this new legislation (Appalachia) becomes effective." Senator Joseph Montoya is insisting that the entire Four Corners country of New Mexico, Colorado, Arizona and Utah be Appalachianized. Who wants to bet that the Appalachians won't soon reach clear to Alaska?

In the old days it was the custom of American communities to boast of their wealth, or at least their bright prospects. The homestead dodgers glowed with promise. The railroad agents regaled immigrants with Utopian visions. The boom towns sent forth their bands and booster trains. And the chamber of commerce tradition, the think-big, can-do, talk-it-up brand of self-hypnotism started in America when Captain John Smith described the miasmic swamps of Jamestown Island as a "faire and prettye land."

But while Charles Dickens saw only America's mud, bad table manners and spittoons, and while Sinclair Lewis and H. L. Mencken hooted at our Babbittisms, this American habit of putting up a bold front and flashing a toothpaste smile paid fantastic dividends. The tent towns became shack towns and the shacks gave way to paint and trim. Your community was supposed to be a proud thing.

This pride made a great nation. The immigrant may have come from a Moldavian village that had drawn water from the same well for a thousand years, but five years after his arrival at a signpost along a Kansas railroad he was burning his fingers on skyrockets to celebrate the opening of the town waterworks.

But now we weep for Appalachia. A legend grows. Millions of Americans are allegedly held prisoners in accursed regions. They are, to use the euphemisms of the hour, "disadvantaged," "deprived," "underprivileged." They must be rescued by a vast and special outpouring of federal funds.

So appealing is this myth of the trapped and downtrodden Appalachian that just before Christmas, when the Columbia Broadcasting System put out a heart-rending documentary on eastern Kentucky, 150 tons of goods and $57,000 in cash were rushed to the region by distressed Americans.

Now, maybe we ought to knock off some of the sentimental sobbing and political hand-wringing about America's Appalachias and ask ourselves how come.

Some regions are in trouble because coal loaders have replaced bituminous miners. Some are in a jam because oil and gas are better and cheaper fuels than anthracite. The miner who was thrown out of work after 40 needs special consideration. He must either be retrained into a marketable skill or supported in some degree for the rest of his life.

But there is usually a good economic reason why an industry has not hurried into Appalachia. And there must be a limit to the sympathy productive Americans should lavish on the able-bodied man who sits on his cabin porch year-after-year, waiting for someone to bring him a job.

County Judge Willie Kirk of Martin County, Kentucky said last month: "You'll find about 80 percent of our people just looking for another handout." And he added that some local families have been unemployed for three generations.

If the roads through Appalachia are poor they are at least passable. A young man can get out. And in three generations someone else has built Houston, Phoenix, Los Angeles, Anchorage and Honolulu.

Appalachia is no stranger to the federal dollar. The entire TVA is in Appalachia. The gigantic $1.2 billion Arkansas River project will touch many of the counties which Senators McClellan and Harris would add to Appalachia. The Four Corners country is the home of some of our most expensive and most dubious reclamation schemes.

But worst of all is the Appalachia psychology. Is our famous local pride going to be replaced by poor-mouth contests? Are Americans going to put on their dirtiest shirts and raggedest fishing pants and go crying their deprivations and disadvantages to Washington?

That isn't the way this country was built and it will not be the formula for its preservation.

Frosting on the Cake

BY "UNCLE DOC" ROSS — U.S.A.

We are becoming more and more aware of a dangerous and amazing paradox now existing in this country.

Millions of confused and bewildered adults are living a half-world existence and seem incapable of coping with the ordinary problems of living. Nothing seems able to stir them out of a slough of despondency.

Compare this growing burden upon all of us who are oriented to some extent on the business of living—the tremendous number of ambitious young adults who are putting in day after day in thoughtful self-improvement.

Library reference rooms are crowded until "lights out." Night schools are attracting a growing number of men and women up to 35 years of age, sweating out a high school diploma. Business colleges are gaining in enrollment and their graduates are securing new positions and a vastly improved status in life, even up to 50 years of age.

In Washington, D.C., New York City, Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis, men and women up to age 45, are being graduated in law, medicine, engineering, RN diplomas, certified public accounting. For most of these self-propelling individuals, it is a long, tough haul. But they are doing it.

Many a household has been saved from utter disaster by the bread winner going into direct house-to-house selling, under constantly improving supervision and guidance. Widows and younger divorcees are regaining stability in life by taking service jobs training in beauty culture, retail clerking, etc.

There is no mystery in the way more and more individuals are re-building their lives, re-establishing their financial respectability and credit ratings. The great activitating force is for the individual to be touched intimately and deeply by someone who is an inspiring personality.

No one has ever repealed the eternal verities, and no form of governmental largesse will ever force lazy and shiftless and congenitally stupid people to get up off their "tired behind," and off the "everything-for-free" political pap of the last quarter century.

This country, now carrying almost universal tax confiscatory burdens, especially real estate, will never change the direction of professional indigency until someone has guts enough to "turn off the tap."

In Prose Disguise

In Viet Nam a coup happens every day or toup. Will we be able to keep it stable, changing horses like they doup?

So slowly LJ's reading goes, before he reaches "I propose," in Appalachia where they froze, the "masses" will turn up their toes.

Dusty

"Don't take in any wooden nickels," once we were urged to keep in mind. So scarce are nickels it really tickles us when we get the wooden kind.

About the cold in Lyndon's head, and cabineteers and Lady Bird, so much has been so loudly said, the "masses'" sneezing can't be heard.

Sail on, sail on, O Ship of State! Sail on, O Union strong and great! You're safe from darkness-hidden foes, so long as Dirksen's foghorn blows.

United Nations — Russia's in it, but won't pay dues, not for a minute. In Cuba and Viet Nam, and everywhere she can, she spends her rubles agin' it .

Thus spoke the TV weatherman quite bold: "There will be reintensification of the cold." . . . The meteorologistic style for "This cold spell's going to last a while."

First program that I see in The Great Society, is revvin' up the speeds of Lyndon when he reads.

STRICTLY FRESH

A gentleman is said to be a man who never strikes a woman without provocation.

Times were when parents would show a few snapshots of their baby. Now it's movies, color slides and recording of baby's first words.

If you can't think of any other way to flatter a woman, tell her she's the kind that can't be flattered.

More On The 'Bus Fuss'

To the Editor:

I'm fully convinced that busing parochial school students in public school buses will cause more problems than it can ever begin to solve.

It won't solve any financial problem. Education costs will continue to increase. Will supporting two school systems be an economy? It makes sense to put all the public tax money into the public school system where it is for the use of all, and not for religiously segregated school systems.

Busing, beyond a doubt, is the biggest single item on any school budget. What happens, when with this kind of help, every denomination begins its own school system? A fractured and fragmented school system would result as has resulted in Ontario. The National Association of Christian Schools received twice as many requests for advice in establishing schools in 1964 than in 1963. This is what is already happening. Then what becomes of the public school system which is so vital to a people who govern themselves?

There is an attempt today to foster understanding and mutual trust between the various denominations. A fragmented school system could only cause more suspicion than presently exists. It will certainly undo, and then some, all that has been accomplished toward mutual trust and understanding in the religious scene of today.

It would certainly be best to leave the situation as it is, and has been for so many years. It has enabled religion and learning to flourish like never before in history.

Richard C. Beard

To the Editor:

The Southside Ministers' Association of Columbus on Feb. 3 moved to register its opposition to the "Fair Bus Bill" now before the Legislature.

Harrison A. Gruenler, secretary

To the Publisher:

In reply to Mr. F. J. Wilamosky's letter in your Jan. 21 edition he said: "It seems to me that this organization (POAU) Protestants and Other Americans United for the Separation of Church and State, should tell what it stands FOR, and then tell what it stands AGAINST."

POAU is a national organization with more than 100,000 supporters whose primary object is the maintenance of separation of church and state as promulgated in the Constitution and interpreted by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Its objectives:

1. To mobilize public opinion in support of religious liberty, and to resist every attempt to break down the wall of separation of church and state.

2. To oppose the appointment of any United States diplomat to the Vatican.

3. To work against the enactment of, or for the repeal of, any law which sanctions the granting of aid to church schools from the public school or federal treasury.

4. To invoke the aid of the courts in maintaining the integrity of the Constitution with respect to the separation of church and state, and to give all possible aid to the citizens of any state who are seeking to protect their public schools from sectarian domination.

As for Mr. Wilamosky's reference to prayer in the public schools, I suggest the reading of the Supreme Court's decision for what it really said, namely no prescribed prayer.

Story Aided Attendance

To the Editor:

The space given in your newspaper to the Russell Hoban Exhibit in connection with The Ohio Mental Health Association Annual Meeting helped bring an additional number of persons to see this fine display of paintings. We found that the persons were interested either from the standpoint of the art itself or mental health.

Lauds Accurate News Story

To the Publisher:

We get detailed reports from all over the world whenever a disturbance occurs — not so locally. I think it is noteworthy that concerning the recent "Whitehall riot" your paper and your reporter were the only ones to take the time and effort to look into this affair. All others published only routine police reports — and the first was entirely false.

I hope the fact that my two sons were in this mess will not detract from the compliment I am paying you.

Praise For Safety Patrol

To the Editor:

During these days of zero and near-zero cold, I have become increasingly aware of the dependability and determination of the school safety patrols.

Although the cold has been extreme, the patrol officers have raised the American flag promptly at 8 a.m. and the other members of the patrol have marched from the school to take up their positions on assigned [illegible].

We parents can be a little less worried about our children's daily trek to school because the patrols are on duty four times a day in rain or cold. (Columbus has never had a school-child fatality at an intersection or street crossing guarded by the patrols.)

In most of the schools, arrangements have been made to provide hot chocolate for the patrols when their work in particularly unpleasant weather is finished. Sometimes the school principal, a teacher, or a member of the PTA organization attends to the "hot chocolate assignment." These people should be included in this general letter of appreciation.

(Mrs.) Ethel E. Zimmer

Words We Like To Hear

To the Editor:

Thought your recent edition about the growth in Columbus just excellent. Your staff is to be congratulated for the excellent way news is covered and interpreted; also, for the interesting and changing format and lack of article and picture repetition from one issue to another!

Rummage Store On Livingston Relocates North

Candlelight Chapter 888 of B'nai B'rith Women is announcing the relocation of its rummage store from 620 E. Livingston-av to 1360 Cleveland-av. The move was made necessary due to the removal of buildings in that area by the Urban Renewal Project.

The operation of the new storeroom will continue as it has in the past and it is available for rental by the day or week to church and service organizations. All fund-raising chairmen are invited to call Mrs. Charles Swerdlow, chairman, at BE. 7-6804, for information and to arrange dates for future sales. Mrs. Swerdlow will furnish suggestions and information to groups unfamiliar with this type of sale.

FIRST SPRING CHAPEAUX of the season traditionally make their appearance at the social event of the same name — the Champagne Chapeau luncheon held annually by the Soroptimist Club. Checking their own spring hats for Saturday's occasion are Soroptimists, from left, Mrs. Marjorie Hewitt, 1762 Jason-dr; Mrs. Roy H. Burton, 1020 Anthony-dr; Mrs. Fred A. Behmer, Sr., 7189 Linworth-rd, Worthington, and president, Mrs. T. Vaughn Bancroft, 88 S. State-st, Westerville.

'Champagne Chapeau' Is Signal Of Spring, Whatever The Weather

Regardless of calendar or robins' arrival, spring will officially arrive, for hundreds of Columbus women, on Saturday, Feb. 20, at the Athletic Club, ushered in by champagne at noon and followed by luncheon and a showing of original spring hat designs.

The 10th annual spring spectacular — Champagne Chapeau luncheon staged by the Soroptimist Club—has become spring's traditional spectacular in our town.

And this year the Athletic Club will be transformed for the event with huge, hand-fashioned spring flowers nestled in pastel poufs of netting, and hat boxes, also done in netting.

Proceeds from the international service club's project are used to finance its Junior Achievement scholarship and local civic projects.

The 1964 scholarship was awarded to Miss Dianna Parsons, 947 Kelton-av, attending Miami University, and a $500 reading machine was presented to Glenwood School.

Chapeau creations for the affair, designed by Mrs. Dorothy Hutton, will be modeled, and Miss Blythe Bethel, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Raymond Bethel, 3177 Dale-av, will feature little girs' fashions.

Guests' hats will also be judged, and prizes awarded to the winners.

Reservations may be made, by Friday, Feb. 19, with Mrs. Frank Cadwell, 263-9839.

Mrs. T. Vaughn Bancroft is Soroptimist president, Mrs. Raymond Bethel will be fashion coordinator, and Mrs. George O. Petrie, 2833 Brandon-rd, is general chairman.

COFFEE BREAK

Let Duncan Hines Pick Up The Tab

By ADELINE DALEY

Duncan Hines may have made himself a fortune recommending restaurants and inns, but it seems that every time I praise anything, all I ever receive are complaints.

Be it an eating place, movie, book, TV show or you name it, I can expect as many complaints as a department store the day after Christmas.

I have reached a point where I wouldn't recommend a water hole in the desert to thirsty travelers for fear they would tell me later that the water tasted terrible.

Heading the list of items on which I am no longer venturing even the timidist of opinions are, of course, restaurants. Let Duncan Hines take the blame. Too often I have heard: "They must have changed chefs in that place you raved about because George and I never tasted such poorly prepared food in our lives."

"Did you try the Veal Scallopini?" I will ask, trying to ease out.

"What do you think gave George indigestion for three days?" will be the irate reply.

They can twist my arm but you will never again hear me pass judgment on a movie—good or bad. Recently, for instance, I lavished praise on a film only to have a friend tell me later that she walked out on it. I guess the least I should have done is refund the admission price.

My opinions of television shows must be relayed directly to the networks, because every show I enjoy and mention aloud eventually loses its sponsor. My seal of approval is beginning to compare with the whammy of appearing on the cover of Time magazine.

I don't have much luck with making recommendations to my family. If I consider a particular young man to be fine, uostanding and sincere, he is dropped as "Dullsville" by my daughters. And the ones I would just as soon never see again are "dolls."

The last straw, however, was reached when I suggested to my husband that on his next trip to Chicago he look up a former classmate of mine and her husband.

"They're a terrific couple, friendly, warm-hearted. She and I were the best of friends," I rhapsodized.

I could hardly wait until my husband's return to get a full report, "Did you call her?" I asked.

"I sure did."

"What happened?"

"Nothing. We didn't progress much beyond her first question when I telephoned her. Which was, 'Adeline who?' "

SOME WINTER!
It's been cold...
Old Man Winter's icy breath has sent temperatures throughout Ohio down . . . down . . . down.
But in hundreds of thousands of homes heated with convenient, dependable natural gas, families are enjoying warmth and comfort.
Of course, the colder it gets the more warmth you need . . . and the more natural gas you will use. As a result, your gas bills may be higher during these cold months.
However, the cost of heating your home with natural gas is still far less than with any other modern fuel.
Ohioans today enjoy unmatched heating efficiency, comfort, convenience and economy with gas — no matter how cold the weather.

Local Resident Wins Money In News Survey

MRS. ROBERT M. YOCOM, 3487 Westway-dr, accepts her $10 check from Hartley Newspapers' business manager Dick Rogers as one of 20 winners in a national readership survey conducted by the Suburban Press Foundation.

Mrs. Robert M. Yocom, 3487 Westway-dr, was one of 20 winners of $10 in the Suburban Press Foundation's national readership survey.

Topic of her essay was, "Why I believe our suburban community newspaper is important to our family."

Mrs. Yocom's statement was:

"I think our suburban community newspaper is important to our family because its main interest is in people like us: the homemaker, the church worker, the youth leader. A large metropolitan newspaper is made of mind and muscle, but a suburban paper has a heart. In an emergency the heart beats faster, and the suburban newspaper grows to meet the challenge; but when the crisis is past, the heart beat returns to normal, to the steady pulse of a community of living, breathing people — people like those in your family and mine."

The statement was made in conjunction with a national readership survey concerning reading and buying habits which appeared last fall in foundation member newspapers across the country.

More than one million readers were given an opportunity to express their opinions.

Although readership surveys by individual newspapers are often done, so far as is known, The Suburban Press Foundation Readership Survey represented the first time that newspaper readers have been surveyed on a national basis.

Winners of the three top prizes, as announced by the foundation, were: Ellis D. Roberts of South Euclid, Ohio, $500; Mrs. William B. Smith, Evanston, Ill, $200; and Marilyn J. Hornfeld of Dearborn, Mich., $100.

In releasing the names of prize winners, Chester K. Hayes, executive director, Suburban Press Foundation, said, "Returns clearly indicated the changing patterns of living which are evolving as a result of our increasing decentralization of population to the suburbs."

"The survey further confirmed that the suburban newspaper's first and primary function is to keep its readers informed on local governmental affairs.

A majority of the survey returns specifically underscored the fact that the suburban newspaper is, almost invariably, the only source by which suburban citizens can inform themselves regarding their local government. The first prize winning statement said, in part, "The Suburban newspaper is one of the few lifelines — heart-lines, if you please — that is left to those of us living in metropolitan areas."

Although material on homemaking, cooking, fashions, child care, home furnishings, etc. is available to women in a variety of national media, survey returns showed a high readership interest in these subjects as covered by their suburban newspapers.

HEART SUNDAY

February 21, 1965

His heart takes wings as seven-year-old Jimmy Shaefer, of Gahanna, thinks about his favorite subject — flying. And what a healthy heart Jimmy has. That is since last June 9. On that day he underwent open heart surgery to have a hole in his heart corrected. Now he can match his heart with the heart of any other healthy person. What's more Jimmy is now strong, bright-eyed and alert.

Jimmy, Little Mr. Heart for the 1965 Heart Fund campaign, is just one of thousands of children in the country who have received the benefits of modern heart research — research supported by Heart Fund dollars.

It's a story with a happy ending for Jimmy and many others like him.

There are still many answers to be found to help everyone with heart disease. Your contribution will enable research scientists to continue their fight against this Number 1 Killer.

On February 21, Heart Sunday, a volunteer will call at your door. Remember, your Heart Fund fights them all — heart attack, stroke, high blood pressure, rheumatic fever, inborn heart defects. More will live the more you give!

Climate Control Is As Easy As Picking Up The 'Phone

By CHARLES McDERMOTT
Spectator Business Editor

Back about the year 1890 in Connecticut, Charles Dudley Warner, editor of the Hartford Courant, made a classic remark which has often been attributed to Mark Twain Warner said:

"Everybody complains about the weather but no one does anything about it."

Fisticuffs, near-duels and lesser contests of verbal violence once erupted over the classical remark as normally benign citizens argued over the authorship.

Davis

Of course, none of this could happen today, the classic comment on the weather wouldn't have been written, if weather combatants were acquainted with Donald L. Davis.

Today — as well as for the past several years — Davis and Sons Heating and Air Conditioning Company, at 2170 McKinley-av, is doing a lot about the weather. Inside, at least.

Whether you're having a tooth filled today in the Hamilton Dental Building, or having a tooth-filling morsel for dinner at the Jong Mea Restaurant, relax a moment and notice the interior weather of the place.

It was custom conditioned When speaking of interior by Davis.

weather — heating and air conditioning, humidity and dehumidity — Davis specializes in removing the unpredictable element.

It is no secret how Davis accomplishes this. First of all there is a well-tooled shop manned by college - trained specialists. No package jobs of ill-fitting or ill-conceived ductwork and accessories here. Each installation is custom created.

Secondly, Davis adheres to products with a proven maintenance record.

Thirdly, he emphasizes service. Electronically fast service.

"Regardless of warranties or guarantees," Davis points out, "mechanical equipment is no respecter of time, person or place. That is why our business is built on service."

And indeed it is. Davis features a fleet of radio dispatched service trucks. This week we watched it work. A call came from northside. It was a cold day and a furnace was producing only partial heat.

Thelma Lou Johnson, Davis' secretary and radio dispatcher assured the caller a truck would be on location in minutes. It was. She flicked a transmitter switch, called a radio truck by its code, reported location and complaint. Thirty-five minutes later the driver came back on radio.

"Furnace functioning," was his terse report.

It is a comforting feeling to know there is service like this available. More comforting to know that more often than not it will never be needed because of the high reliability of the installation and its components.

In commercial and residential areas, many clients in Columbus and surrounding communities have a remarkable confidence in Davis and Sons.

It was this company which installed the "hydronic" heating and cooling system in the Tremont Professional Building. They installed the commercial rooftop unit at Arlington Plaza. The new Celina Insurance Building is marked with Davis' craftmanship.

Many realtors, too, depend on Davis. Well-known names like West Side Realty, Rucker Realty, Hegenberger, Creth Irwin, Northwest Homes, Diversified Development Corporation, Riverside Incorporated and Duret Rentals.

One unusual installation in this area was the heat pump installed in the residence of Dr. William Schmeizer. Here, a reversible-cycle unit heats in the winter, cools in the summer, and electronically cleans, humidifies or dehumidifies the air at the same time.

In addition to commercial and residential installations, Davis and Sons also specialize in unit or system replacements.

Every installation is backed not only by warranty, but by Davis' fleet of radio controlled service trucks.

This service is available to anyone. And it is as convenient and quick as calling a taxicab. The number is BR. 9-8881.

HAVE A HEART!

JIMMY SHAFFER of Gahanna, Little Mr. Heart for 1965 Heart Fund campaign, has the undivided attention of his good friend, Tuffy, as he tells him it's good to give to the Heart Fund. The drive is currently under way and will come to a climax on Heart Sunday, Feb. 21. Funds are used to continue the fight against heart disease and the Heart Association's program of research, education and community service. Jimmy underwent open heart surgery June 9 of last year. He was the youngest child undergoing this particular operation at University Hospital last year.

KEN SCORES A FIRST!

KEN MACK McCreary (right), who pens the popular "Under Buckeye Skies" column for The Spectator, knows his way around with a camera, too. He won first place award this week in Ohio Writers of Ohio competition for his color transparency, a backlighted scene of a boat on Lake Erie. Here he shows his prize, an original wildlife painting by nationally known artist Bob Hines, to Spectator Managing Editor Marcus Orr. During the OWO convention Saturday, McCreary was elected secretary-treasurer of the organization. He was toastmaster at the OWO banquet Saturday night. — Photo by Harlan Hoover.

Engineers Week Proclaimed; Responsibility To Youth Noted

Governor Rhodes by official proclamation has designated Feb. 21 through 27 as Engineers Week throughout Ohio.

In honoring the professional engineers, the Governor said, in part, "The services of professional engineers in devising and placing into being improved and new engineering developments, are relied upon to shape the framework of our future technology and general way of life."

He also noted that the engineering profession, in helping to bring to the nation's young people the realization of the importance of preparation for competent service, seeks to qualify them as the leaders of tomorrow.

In Washington, President Johnson also took official notice of National Engineers' Week. In a statement he said, "New horizons beckon to us beneath the sea, in space, and in the interior of the earth."

He added that the greatest of the challenges presented will be related to improving the life of man. "Better housing, modernization of transportation, freedom from the hazards of air and water pollution, greater control over the destructive forces of nature and the establishment of a new and attractive urban environment must all be realized as we advance toward the Great Society."

The President asked engineers to assist in meeting these challenges by dedicating themselves to an even more active interest in our young people who will bear the engineering responsibilities of the future.

JOSEPH A. COHEN, P.E., president-elect, receives the gavel from Tom L. Underwood, P.E. president, of the Franklin County Chapter of the Ohio Society of Professional Engineers. Cohen's term as president begins in July. He is employed by the J. T. Edwards Co. and resides at 2673 Floribunda-dr. Underwood is with A. E. Stilson & Associates, Ltd., and lives in Upper Arlington at 1900 Elmwood av.

FOOD MARKETS THIS WEEK

It's A Big Year For Cherry Pie

THIS WEEK LOOK FOR:

Fruit — Grapefruit, oranges (Temple and California), bananas, apples.

Vegetables — Lettuce, celery, green peppers, new cabbage, carrots.

Meat, Poultry—Eggs (large Grade A), beef "specials," fryers, ground beef, pork roasts.

Other Foods — Red tart cherries, cherry products, dairy foods.

This is a banner year for cherry pie lovers. For one thing processors have put up the biggest red tart cherry pack on record.

Mrs. Franks

A record-setting harvest of more than 240,000 tons of tart cherries was produced last year — 72 percent above average. As a result, supplies of this fruit in cans and frozen styles are plentiful in food stores.

Actually, frozen cherries are the more plentiful. As of Jan. 1, supplies of frozen cherries were twice as large as a year ago. Canned cherries moved fast this winter, so while stocks are not burdensome, they are adequate.

You can reap the benefit of this bountiful harvest by plucking several cans or frozen containers of cherries from grocers' shelves this week for future use. Processors' prices are considerably lower than two years ago, which makes it possible for retailers to feature cherries at attractive prices.

Pie With Fewer Pits

Your cherry pie this year will also have fewer pits. Revised U.S. Standards for red, tart, pitted cherries, issued last spring by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Marketing Service, cut in half the number of pits allowed. Grade A cherries now are allowed only one pit in two and one-half pounds of fruit. Actually, in many cases there is less than one pit per eight pounds of fruit.

To make sure of what was happening, the cherry processing industry and the U.S.D.A. Marketing Service made a study to see just how many pits actually got past the pitters. Although this study showed the number was far below the allowance, processors made improvements which cut down even further the number of pits missed.

So, enjoy your cherry pie this year. Red tart cherries are plentiful — and there will be fewer pits.

Mercator Aids Speech, Hearing Clinic By Drive

The annual fertilizer sale of Mercator, the down-town civic club, will end next Thursday, Feb. 25.

The funds from the sale provide pre-school therapy for children with speech and hearing difficulties and contributes to scholarship for those doing graduate work in speech and hearing at OSU.

Mercator is offering fertilizer suitable for greens and fairways, a second for general garden use and a third that not only nourishes lawns but is combined with weed killer. The club is also including crab grass killer in the line.

Delivery will be made Saturday, Mar. 13, and the customer will be billed after that time.

Dale Cochran is serving as chairman of the drive, assisted by co-chairman Donald A. Kloss and William B. Jones.

ELECTED

MRS. SAMUEL L. Black, 273 Noe-Bixby-rd, has been elected president of the Columbus Cancer Clinic for 1965. Mrs. Black's mother-in-law, Mrs. Samuel L. Black, Sr., organized the clinic in 1931 with the assistance of the late Dr. Andre Crotti. The Wonderful World of ANIMALS

By Frank Miller, D.V.M.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I was walking down the street one night with my girl friend and my eight-year-old German Shepherd when my dog was suddenly attacked by a cat. The cat chased my dog (who was very startled) around in circles while we watched.

Do you think this cat was bluffing, or would he have hurt my dog? Do you think that most dogs would act in the same manner, or do I have a cowardly dog? — J. P.

P.S. My friend wants to know if this cat was demented.

DEAR J. P.: Any cat who attacks a large dog may be a little crazy at the time. (This technique may backfire.) Dogs are used to doing the chasing and when a very determined cat shows up with the idea of reversing the process, the element of surprise aids the aggressor. Your German Shepherd hardly had time to gather himself for a counterattack. He wasn't being cowardly at the time — merely puzzled and prudent.

* * *

DEAR DR. MILLER: When we visited my sister I was amazed at her cat's coat. It was sleek and shining and just beautiful. Our cats never have anything but a dull coat which I thought was normal. Her veterinarian told her to mix corn oil with the cat's food, and ever since it has looked good. Is this all right for any cat? —V. F.

DEAR V. F.: Corn oil supplies fatty acids which may prove beneficial to the skin of most cats. If the skin were already greasy or scaly, or if the cat were overweight, any fat product may do more harm than good. Occasionally a cat may develop a bowel disturbance when given any oil.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I have run out of insects for my birds, and recall you recommended supplementing their diet with mealworms. Where do I get these worms and how do I raise them? Thank you. —R. W.

DEAR R. W.: Larvae or adult beetles of the family tenebrionidae can be purchased from many pet shops or from a biological supply house. There are many ways of raising the larvae. One simple method is to lay a one inch layer of chicken laying mash in the bottom of a covered container. A moistened wad of cotton may occasionally be placed in a corner, but keep the mash dry so the larvae can be sifted out when desired.

Avoid too thick a layer of mash as it has a tendency to sour. Feed only the young, tender mealworms unless you have larger birds. Full grown larvae are about an inch long and come equipped with a rather tough hide.

* * *

DEAR DR. MILLER: Before we moved here, our vet told us our dog should have a booster shot for distemper. Is there any best season for this or does it make any difference? —E. E.

DEAR E. E.: Distemper is a "year-round" disease so it is necessary that a dog's immunity be maintained at all times. However, the incidence of distemper cases does rise during the winter and spring months, so that if your dog needs a booster injection it should be given without delay.

* * *

DEAR DR. MILLER: I don't have an aquarium but just a big bowl. I want to raise some tropical fish and have been told I better stick to live bearers. Which is the easiest to raise, the guppy, platy or swordtail? —K. D.

DEAR K. D.: Better stick with the guppy. Unless you get into the extra fancy varieties, it is by far the toughest of the trio.

ASSIGNMENT TELEVISION

By Terrence O'Flaherty

I am convinced that the funniest situation comedy on the air is "Shindig" — and that the situation is getting more comic every week.

"Shindig" is, of course, the American Broadcasting Company's inspirational hour for America's young music lovers —a combination of "Alice in Wonderland" and "The Last Days of Pompei" with incidental native music. And, believe me, these natives are restless!

"Shindig" should be reviewed exclusively in Mad Magazine, but I am sure the editors would reject it as competition in the field of parody. Unfortunately these humorless young people do not realize that they are engaged in a monstrously successful burlesque of themselves.

One can laugh at "Shindig," but it is no laughing matter to learn that NBC has a copy titled "Hullabaloo."

One recent seance featured several numbers all of which sounded exactly alike. According to my notes they were "It's All Right," "I Feel Fine," "Can't You See?" and "Out of My Head." To get the full humor of this program it is important to keep in mind that originality is not encouraged and a change of pace is forbidden.

Hair To Spare

What the participants lack in imagination they make up in hair. In this generation failure is equated with baldness. What a disaster it must be to be young today and losing your hair!

The star was a blond with the name — brace yourself — Adam Faith! No manufactured moniker in recent times has reverberated with such Biblical determination. Under any normal conditions I would say that Faith showed little hope and is deserving of no charity. But these are strange times and this is a kiddie show.

The biggest laugh getters in my house are the "Shindig Dancers," a corps de ballet that is the antithesis of any chorus line in the history of the world because it revels in non-coordination.

There is some evidence that they have rehearsed the same routine but not necessarily at the same moment in the score. This is assuming, of course, that the music on the show has actually been placed on paper somewhere.

Evidence is strong to support my theory that the music is indeed extemporaneous. Written notes are not needed because it is doubtful if anyone involved with this effort reads music anyway. If you listen closely you will discover that almost no one agrees when some songs are supposed to end. They don't conclude; they simply run out.

"Shindig" is sponsored by a pimple-preventative. Nothing short of a mortuary sponsoring "Green Pastures" could be so appropriate. There must be enough blackheads in the studio audience alone to keep the manufacturer solvent for a year.

If "Shindig" is ABC's answer to CBS's "Concerts for Young People" I suppose emcee Jimmy O'Neill is its Leonard Bernstein. This poor, nasal Irishman is a joy to watch because his bewilderment is almost total — even when he is demonstrating how much grease his pimple pads can remove from a teenager's nose.

The idea for "Shindig" came from England where its producer was successful in creating a similar show for young British intellectuals. There has been some talk of raising funds to export him in exchange for Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.

One thing is certain: they had better stamp him out soon before he runs for Congress from the Los Angeles area. Some of his "teen-agers" look almost old enough to vote.

Street Cleaning Assessments Due Friday, Apr. 30

Checks should be made payable to the City Treasurer. Bills may also be paid at the City Treasurer's Office.

All unpaid street cleaning assessments will be certified and given to the County Treasurer for addition to real estate taxes with an additional 10 percent penalty if the assessments are not paid before Apr. 30.

Town Meeting To Give Views On Ohio Courts

Milligan, attorney from Sidney, who was chairman of the study committee on Judicial Administration of the Legislative Service Commission, and Roger Smith of Toledo, president of the Ohio State Bar Association. Charles Klenzie will moderate.

Questions may be telephoned to the panel during the hour broadcast by calling CA. 8-3881.

He is also a past president of the Men's Brotherhood of University Methodist Church, area chairman and member of the audit committee of United Appeal and a district commissioner with the Olentangy District of Boy Scouts.

The lumber used in the United States in an average year would build a board walk 30 feet wide and one inch thick all the way to the moon.

The Spectator Says:

By C. C. Hartley

A Careful Look

Anything that might be said in opposition to the Medicare bill could be construed by some elements of older people to mean that a person making the expression is not concerned about the welfare of older folks.

However, we find ourselves in the difficult position today of the Congress discussing a Medicare bill which could easily be enacted and become a permanent fixture in our society. However, like some other supposedly permanent fixtures, dissatisfaction might be the result.

It would seem that there is real wisdom in the American people making careful study and comparison of the plan known as Medicare and the plan known as Eldercare.

Medicare has been the dream of some politicians who readily see the vote-getting possibilities. It is highly questionable whether the end results have been weighed to the extent that the American people can accept this proposal and say "This is it."

It would appear there is much merit in the proposal known as Eldercare. At this stage our only thought is to try to impress upon our readers that our congressmen should look before they leap. If voters, after making a careful study, feel there is more to be offered for stability in the long run American picture with the adoption of Eldercare, they should contact their congressmen and senators immediately expressing their views.

Direct Route To Success

Herb Evans of Peoples Broadcasting wrote the foreword for a new book just published yesterday by Vantage Press and available soon from Christian Book Store.

Author of the book, Lloyd W. Benney, is also a Columbus man and is employed in a management capacity with Nationwide Insurance.

Herb, in his foreword, has this to say to the young people to whom the book is directed, "The foresight to build a solid and successful future on tried and tested traits of character and personality and improvement of the mind is important to the utilization of your talents. Yet there is no secret about this information for it has been used by successful people of past generations and will be used by them in the future. For wise people realize that this is a direct route to where they want to go. That's the theme of 'Here Is Tomorrow,' a book which every young person should read and study with care."

EASTMOOR HIGH Concert Band will appear in formal dress at the concert Friday and Saturday evenings, featuring the eminent artist Vincent J. Abato, on the saxophone, clarinet and bass clarinet. Tickets are available for $1.25 in advance by contacting the school music office, or for $1.50 at the door at concert time, 8 p.m. At a dress rehearsal are, from left, Linda Topson, Herschel Denner and Cheryl Erickson. Abato is inset, upper right.

Eastmoor High School To Present Abato In Concert This Weekend

Vincent J. Abato, featured artist of concert, records and television, will appear in concert with the Eastmoor Senior High Concert Band the evenings of Friday, Feb. 26, and Saturday, Feb. 27, 8 p.m.

Ranked among the foremost reed instrument virtuosos of his generation, Abato is one of the few artists to achieve a reputation of eminence on three major instruments — saxophone, clarinet and bass clarinet.

Eastmoor's band will accompany Abato in a varied program of mostly pops selections, ranging from Porgy and Bess to Flight of the Bumblebee.

The Eastmoor band will present two numbers and the school's 17-member dance band will also play, but the program will be mainly by Abato.

Eastmoor High's Concert Band, conducted by the school's instrumental music instructor, Jerry Kaye, is known in the state's music education circles as one of the best in Ohio

The school's music department annually presents a noted guest artist in concert for the community and, as has been the case in previous years with the Rafael Mendez and Carl "Doc" Severinsen concerts, a sell-out is anticipated.

Members of the concert band will appear in formal evening dress, with the girls wearing long formals and the boys wearing white dinner jackets. Parents, serving as ushers, will also wear formal dress.

Tickets are available by calling the high school music office, BE. 1-0605. Advance ticket prices are $1.25. Tickets will also be sold at the door for $1.50.

BEXLEY COUNCIL

Gas Pact Is Pondered

Legislation approving Bexley's new contract with Columbia Gas Co. had its first reading at Tuesday night's council session, but failed to muster enough votes for passage as an emergency measure.

Council had protested, when the contract was explained last month, a rate that was .83 of a cent per thousand cubic feet higher than Columbus' cost.

Bexley's current contract expires on Mar. 16.

Columbus' lower rate was explained as being due to expected future growth of the city and a resulting increased sales volume, and such cost factors as percentage of customers for each gas main.

Bexley's rate is still lowest, next to Columbus, in Columbia Gas Co's area.

Council took under advisement a proposal by Capital University's student governing body that signs reading "Welcome to Bexley, home of Capital University," be placed at the six main corporation lines of the city.

The signs would be supplied and maintained by the student group.

A report was also heard that the Recreation Committee would meet on Saturday to interview applicants for the job of city recreation director.

Bill Bernlohr, who has served in that post for many year, has announced that he would retire.

IN WHITEHALL

Mayor Vetoes Measures

Two pieces of legislation passed by Whitehall Council at its Feb. 16 meeting, one raising salaries of elected officials and another abolishing the office of deputy auditor, were vetoed by Mayor William Holzhause Tuesday.

Reasons for the vetoes were, according to the mayor, that the ordinances were not clearly defined and embodied assumptions.

In the salary ordinance, the city solicitor's salary was raised from $7800 to $12,500 and was based on the assumption that the post of assistant solicitor would be abolished. The ordinance, however, did not clearly state this.

The mayor continued that he had not been consulted on the $2500 annual raise for his job, and that he felt the pay hike was not needed.

In the case of abolishing the office of deputy auditor, the ordinance was justified by the fact that duties of deputy auditor would be assumed by the auditor, whose job would become full time. However, the ordinance does not clearly state, the mayor continued, that the offices shall become one and the same.

Auditor's pay was raised to $10,000 annually.

Disturbing Peace Charge Dropped In Riot Incident

Charges against Richard DeVore, stemming from the brawl in a Whitehall tavern parking lot the first of January, were dropped at the hearing last week in Columbus Municipal Court.

He had been charged with disturbing the peace.

Paul Haytcher, Whitehall city solicitor acting as prosecutor in the case, dropped the charges because he felt the evidence was not conclusive.

Hearings for the other four involved in the brawl that reached near riot proportions are scheduled at a later date.

Polzer To Open Campaign Headquarters For Primary

If Whitehall GOP mayor candidate Jim Polzer kept some fellow Republicans waiting for his decision to file for the May Primary, he won't keep them guessing whether or not he is in the race to win. Polzer will score a political "first" in Whitehall by opening up a campaign headquarters on Mar. 1.

"Polzer's Palace of Politics" will be located in a second floor office at 3540 E. Main-st, and the peppery former city service director will be on hand daily to promote his candidacy. Polzer's campaign was given a boost with announcement by Donald G. Waddell, former city safety director, that he will work as campaign secretary.

Waddell and Polzer were prime supporters of present mayor William H. Holzhause when he won election in 1963. Holzhause ran as an Independent candidate with heavy Democratic support in his 49-vote upset for four-term mayor Walter B. Moling. Holzhause and Moling are the other two candidates in this year's three-way race for the Republican mayor's nomination.

The Republican primary will also feature contests in the Third Ward, Fourth Ward and at-large council race. Whitehall Democrats have filed a full slate, but have no primary contests.

In announcing opening of his campaign headquarters, Polzer said that he will campaign on the theme "Protect Your Tax Dollar." He said he will use the campaign office to distribute campaign cards, bumper stickers and signs, and that he would "keep the coffee pot hot for those who want to discuss the issues."

DCSC FIRE CHIEF TO RETIRE

Chief Closes Career With Fire-Free Tally

Fire Chief John W. Enzor, 120 Mayfair-blvd, will bring to a close a fire-fighting career spanning nearly half a century of service to his community and his government with his retirement in March as chief of the Defense Construction Supply Center Fire Department.

In addition to more than 21 years in Federal Civil Service, first as fire prevention engineer at Fort Hayes and, since 1946, fire chief at DCSC, he served for 25 years with the Columbus Fire Department.

His knowledge, based on long years of experience and constantly keeping abreast of latest developments in the fire-fighting field, is reflected in Chief Enzor's enviable record — no reportable fires at DCSC during the past eight years.

Such a record is no accident, but is the result of painstaking planning and foresight, following the modern trend of emphasis on fire prevention. Preventive measures recommended by Chief Enzor have been adopted by the DCSC engineer and fire marshal Col. Joseph T. McQuaide.

He also has had plenty of "front-line" experience during his years with the Columbus Fire Department, from 1920 to 1944, when he retired as acting fire chief.

He was with Engine House 9, Buttles at Delaware-av, first fire fighting company to reach the fire at the Ohio State Penitentiary in 1931. More than 300 lives were lost in the tragedy.

And the chief recalls other destructive blazes he helped to battle. The fire at the southwest corner of Long and High-st which destroyed several buildings and the blaze at the IOOF Building on S. High that claimed the lives of five firefighters are unforgettable.

He went to Fort Hayes after his 1944 retirement from the Columbus Fire Department, where he served as fire prevention engineer with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, 5th Service Command, until his transfer to the former Columbus General Depot two years later. Name of the facility was changed in recent years to DCSC.

A native of Hazelhurst, Ga., he worked in his father's general store until World War I. After enlisting, he attended Georgia Tech for electrical study courses by the U.S. Army Signal Corps, and then served as an instructor.

Following his discharge as a sergeant he joined the Columbus Fire Department.

Since he assumed his present duties at DCSC, he has attended the Arson Detection and Instructor Course at Purdue University, the Fire Control Course at Oklahoma State University, and courses at Ohio State. He has worked closely through the years with Columbus' Fire Chief Walter Strickfaden, now in his 49th year of service.

Chief Enzor's friend and close associate for many years is Chief Cecil F. Kendrick, his first assistant since 1947. "I left the Columbus Department in '47," Kendrick said, "and came to DCSC the same day."

Chief Enzor, a widower since December, 1963, is a member of York Lodge F&AM, the Shrine and Scottish Rite. Reflecting on three successful careers — with the military, Columbus Fire Department and Federal Civil Service, he speculates on maybe a fourth.

His associates wouldn't be surprised if his "retirement" in March is for the official records only.

Whitehall Sewers To Be Cleaned

STOP — DANDRUFF
Are you tired of dandruff on your shoulders? Don't put up with it, you don't have to! Everyone does not have it . . . especially those with professional scalp care. Dandruff is dead scalp cells. Everyone has those . . . even bald men. Often, after-shampoo towelling takes it away. When dandruff reaches your shoulders, see us!

DANDRUFF TWINS
The two most common types of dandruff aren't twins except that they're both annoying. Dry dandruff is itchy and dusty. Oily dandruff is cream-colored and flaky. These two types don't get twin treatments. Bathroom-sink first-aid may irritate, rather than remove dandruff but we have several types of professional treatments to fit each category.

BRUSH OFF "BRUSH OFF"
Come in and have a scalp analysis. Your hair can't gleam unless a dust-coat and you won't glow unless your hair does. Our pre-shampoo analysis can stop serious scalp troubles before they start. It's important that you keep your hair and scalp in tip-top shape. See us, we'll get you started, right from the top.

FROM UNDER THE DRYER
There are millions of scalps in America. Scratch up time for a date with us and we'll cause you to be a head-turner!

Sign Of The Times--Pets No Longer Lead 'Dogs Life'

By BOB KIEBEL

Some say that America has gone "pet happy." The old picture of "Rover" lying peacefully at the feet of his master is no longer with us. Now pets take their rightful place in the family picture with their own lounging pajamas, just one step below junior in the chain of command. Pets come in various sizes and shapes. Whether you get a thrill out of feeling like a "godfather" to a litter of tiny guppies or plunking out a $1,000 bill for a jumping chimp, they still become one of the family.

And pets haven't done anything to hurt the nation's economy. Numerous pet shops have cropped up in every neighborhood and now even beauty solons for pets' good grooming. Food handlers also found that 71 percent of the grocery dollars come from families with children. They soon realized children mean pets. A survey found that dogs and cats comprised most of the nations common pets.

One food handler, Fred Laderer, a representative of the O. G. Sandbo Company, 1365 King-av, said that one of every three homes now has a dog and one in five owns a cat. Pet food sales have increased 98 percent in a 10-year span. In 1954 pet foods grossed $271 million and in 1964 over $357 million.

Dogs have sprung forward in popularity over the years, from the old pictured "Yale Bulldogs" through the Airedale, German Shepherd, Collie, Spaniels and Boxers. Now Beagles and Poodles are topping the list with Schnauzers coming up fast, particularly in the New York area. Schnauzer owners claim they are more hardy than the poodle and not as susceptible to colds.

Mrs. Ruth Everhart, Columbus Humane Society Animal Shelter, 2770 Groveport-pk, said the beagles are the most quickly-adopted of their annual 4,000 animal turnover. the main reasons being that they are kind and gentle with children, make good sport dogs, adopt rapidly to hunting and that their short hair makes mom's work around the house a lot easier.

Poodles are also becoming so popular that breeders say it is difficult to keep up with the demand. Poodles are generally thought of as a "lady's dog," but they are also very good with children and are friendly and gentle if well-bred.

Speaking of poodles, if you think "leading a dog's life" is something bad you must visit Mrs. Jeanne De Pourquery's Poodle and Pooch Grooming Salon, 3724 E. Town and Country-rd. Mrs. De Pourquery said poodles are easily trained but are proud of their appearance and don't like being neglected. Poodles originated in Russia but the French made them popular and dressed them up.

To make sure that "Fifi" is well cared-for here are some of the needed accessories:

FOR GROOMING: him and her cologne, Arf Pitte perfume, deodorants, nail polish in various colors, colored shampoo, happy breath, electric hair dryers and clippers, eye brite (for dogs and cats), earn rite, grooming shears, combs and nail trimmers.

FOR DRESS: mink, velvet, wool and nylon coats and hats to match. Graduation and general's hats, berrettas, pup caps and booties.

SPORTSWEAR: swimming suits, life preservers and car seats for traveling.

FORMAL WEAR: Tuxedos and doggie britches for the gentlemen, blond wigs and black lace panties and other colors for his lady friend. They also have special place mats for under dishes while dining and originals in genuine gold-plated collars with rhinestones and other jewelled collars and leashes.

FOR PUPS: "Nip" pet nurser for baby pups.

FOR SLEEP: Lounging pajamas (originals), bath robes, circus tent and other fancy "lounging" beds.

Also featured are (according to size), hair dying from $5 to $15, a rinse $2-$3, dip $4-$5. Puppy trims from $7 to $10, country club, royal Dutch or trist Parisian $10-$15, show trim $15-$30. According to Mrs. De Pourquery, poodles and schnauzers should be clipped at six weeks old and once every month afterwards.

In the Town and Country Pet Shop, 3986 E. Broad-st, manager Dale Puckett, said he can furnish any unusual pet from a lion for about $600 to a chimpanze at $1,000. On hand they have four different types of lizards from $3 to $20 but deal mostly in tropical fish and small animals.

Although lacking in intelligence, tropical fish have become the third leading hobby in the U.S. They range from 25 cent gupples to $25 Piranha (man-eaters from South America) but Dale admits he keeps the latter for display mostly and sells very few.

Puckett claims cats are overtaking dogs in popularity because they do not require a license, are easily trained and require little care. He said the most popular are Persian, Siamese, Abyssinians, Burmese and Mynx, a cat with no tail which hops like a rabbit. The Siamese are the most popular with the men because they are more like dogs in their personality.

Puckett said parakeets and canaries are on the decline and don't enjoy the popularity they once had. He does carry talking Myna(h) Birds for about $125. They are originally from India but now flourish in the Hawaiian Islands and are as common there now as our sparrows. He also said he has been selling a lot of snakes lately which are more docile than most people think. His sales are mostly in non-poisonous boa constrictors from South America, selling for $9 to $10. His pet food products are mostly for his hamsters (grain-eaters at 25 cents a pound), guinea pigs and rabbits (vegetable matter pellets, five pounds for 45 cents), bird seed (39 cents a pound) and meal worms at 30 cents for a can of 30, and various fish foods.

Mrs. Patricia Milburn, of the Aqua Pet Shop, 3739 E. Broad-st, also majors in tropical fish but handles a large supply of dogs and cats. She said among her fish, guppies are the most popular, but goldfish are still the children's favorite. She also handles monkeys at $39.50 and up, which are becoming more popular.

She said the trend is for hamsters (brown $1, long hair $4.98). Children also purchase a great many rabbits and mice for school science projects. Mrs. Milburn's pet food sales are also limited to these animals and meal worms.

As for cats, Mrs. Milburn said she sells more Siamese than others but that children go for what she calls the old "alley cats."

ALL DRESSED UP to greet clients of the Poodle and Pooch Grooming Salon, 3724 E. Town and Country-rd, are: Mrs. Jeanne De Pourquery, and her miniature poodles, "Brigette" and "Kandy."

JEFF TOY STANDOUT AS . . .

Columbus Quarter-Midgets Shine On Fairground Oval

Despite the cold weather last Saturday, 37 quarter-midget owners and drivers from Ohio, Michigan and Indiana rolled into the Junior Fair Building at the Ohio Expositions Center to enter the competition in the races sponsored by the local Buckeye Quarter Midget Racing Association.

Charlie Workman, 11-year-old driver from Newark, repeated as the fastest quarter-midget driver when he posted a 7.27 second turn on the one-twentieth mile track in the AA Open Class. Other fast drivers in the various classes were Jeff Witchey, 12, Akron, with 8.38 in Stock and Columbusite Jeff Toy, 13, in both Stock Modified and B Modified with a 8.26 and 7.97 respectively.

IN THE Novice class, Rocky Robinson of Columbus, had the fastest trial with 8.57. Bill Taylor, 11, Columbus, took both the heat and semi-final races in this class. There was quite a bit of excitement in the Novice semi race as Craig McCord, 8, of Columbus tangled with the hay bales surrounding the track as a cushion. However, after a quick repair job on the quarter midget, Craig came back to win the Feature.

The Stock class was forced to run a double event because of the number of entries. Greg Gerhard, 9, Columbus, took the first heat with 10-year-old Mike Sharpe of Parma Heights winning the second heat.

In the semi-final races Bobby Bower, 10, and Billy Cunningham, 9, both of Columbus, were the winners. Bower then led the field across the finish line in the feature.

JEFF TOY made a grand slam in the Stock Modified class, winning the heat, semi and feature. John Bailey, 10, of Columbus, won the semi in this class.

14-year-old Jim Hettinger of Ypsilanti, Mich., captured the heat and feature in the AA Open class while Jeff Toy led the semi.

The BQMRA will hold its next race at the Junior Fair Building on the fairgrounds on Mar. 6. Time trials start at 6 p.m. and races at 8 p.m. There is no admission and the public is invited to view the excitement.

Ungraded primary units will be standard in Detroit elementary schools by next fall.

Heroic Act Wins Recognition For Eastern Jaycee Director

A first award for heroism was presented to Randall E. "Ron" Dickey, 1263 Marble-dr, at the annual awards banquet held earlier this month by the Jaycees of Eastern Columbus.

Dickey, director of Eastern Jaycees, was cited for personal heroism displayed on the afternoon of Dec. 19 when he saved the lives of three children and circumvented a traffic accident which might have resulted in other injuries or deaths.

From a sales room window Dickey spotted a car, unattended by the driver and containing three small children, as it started to roll from a used car lot into fast moving traffic on E. Main-st.

With disregard for his own safety, Dickey ran in front of the moving car, managed to enter it and bring it to a halt.

The near-tragedy occurred at Dickey's place of employment, Kent Motor Sales.

Dickey, an air force veteran, served nearly three years in the 50th Fighter Bomber Wing stationed in Europe. He is 27, married, and has a son, Mark Emerson, age three.

CONGRATULATIONS by Mayor William Holzhause of Whitehall, left, followed presentation of the heroism award to Dickey. Television's popular "Spook" Beckman, master of ceremony at the awards banquet, toasted Dickey's alertness and unselfish courage.

Jeff Wohlstein and Bob Zieve scored 15 and 13 points respectively and carried Castors to a 42-29 triumph over a fighting Capital squad, Joe Oser had 12 points for Capital.

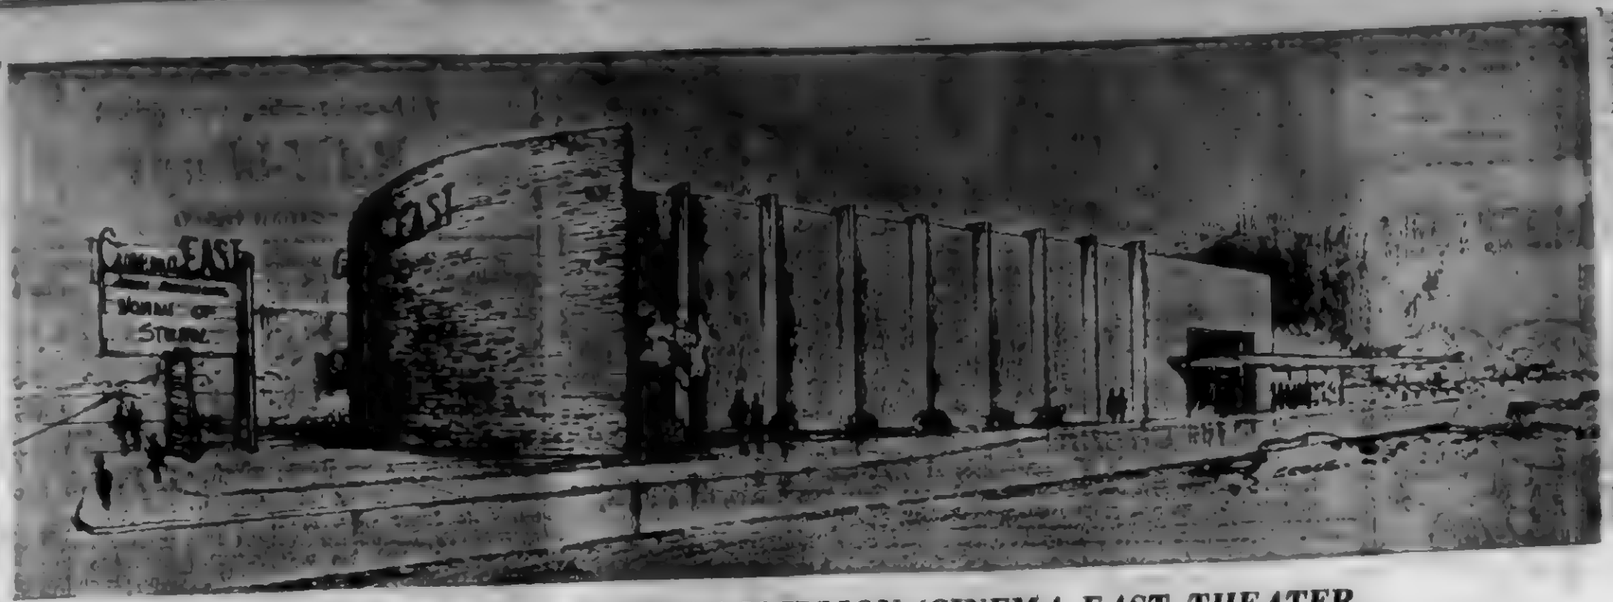
Temple Israel Cites 'Outstanding' Rabbi

The designation, "Franklin County's Outstanding Example of Human Brotherhood" for the past year, was conferred upon Rabbi Harry Kaplan, director of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation at Ohio State University.

The Board of Trustees of Temple Israel made its selection upon the recommendation of its Honors Committee.

The committee consists of Marvin Glassman and William Kahn, co-chairmen, Daniel Cohen, William Glick, Mrs. Robert Greene, Mrs. Allen Gundersheimer, Sr., Louis Krakoff, Robert Levy, Ben Lurie, Joseph Summer, Rudolph Stern, Sol Zell, Mrs. Ben Zuckerman, and Dr. Jerome D. Folkman and Rabbi Stephen A. Arnold, ex-officio.

Each February, as part of its observance of National Brotherhood Month, Temple Israel makes such a selection on the assumption that the power of human example is greater than any sermon or preachment.



Rabbi Kaplan is celebrating his 30th anniversary at the OSU Hillel Foundation. It is one of the largest in the country serving a Jewsh constituency of over 2800. He is a past president of the University Religious Council of OSU, a member of the board of the Ohio Citizens' Council, past president of the Columbus Torch Club, and one of the founders of Columbus Town Meeting. He is a frequent speaker before college and university groups.

In addition to his duties as Hillel Director, Rabbi Kaplan is Mid-West regional director for the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundations, and a member of the National Hillel Cabinet. His articles have appeared in "Religious Education," "The National Jewish Monthly," and "The Commentator."

In 1953, Rabbi Kaplan was honored with the degree of Doctor of Divinity by the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion, Cincinnati. Two years later, OSU gave him the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. He will receive the citation of Temple Israel at the 8 p.m. Sabbath service Friday, Feb. 26. Dr. Jerome D. Folkman will preach on "The Wise-Hearted Man and the Willing-Hearted."

Rabbi Kaplan came to Columbus after a ministry of nine years in Pittsfield, Mass., and from a background of Jewish student work in the colleges of New England. He is a graduate of the Jewish Institute of Religion, 1927, and the University of Wisconsin., Ohio State University, and the Geneva, Switzerland Institute of International Studies.

During the summer of 1934, Rabbi Kaplan was a member of the Sherwood Eddy Traveling Seminar of International Affairs, visiting England, France, and Switzerland and traveling also to Italy and Palestine. In 1955, he visited Israel, Italy and Greece. In 1960, Rabbi Kaplan was a member of the B'nai B'rith Mission to West Germany.

CONSTRUCTION STARTS ON $.5 M ILLION 'CINEMA EAST THEATER

GROUNDBREAKING FOR CINEMA EAST, the new luxury movie house at 4177 E. Broad-st, in Whitehall, was held Monday afternoon, and construction will start immediately with an August target date for completion. The $.5 million theater will have seating for 1000, with 850 on the main floor and an additional 150 in the "VIP" mezzanine section. The interior decor will repeat the warm earth tones of the specially woven carpeting of browns, gold, orange and red. Features include comfortable chairs with padded arms, a lobby counter for ticket sales replacing the cage type box office, a smoking lounge and thermostatically controlled air conditioning and heating. Broad-st is at the left in the photo, and the side drive leading to parking for 300 cars is in the foreground. Main entrance will be at the south end of the building, at right, close to the parking area. First run films of the "My Fair Lady" type will be shown. Participating in Monday's groundbreaking were Whitehall Mayor William Holshause, Leon Seligson, architect, and Charles Sugarman, owner, who will also serve as manager of the theater. Leon Schottenstein, owner of the land, will construct the building, and Sugarman will finish, furnish and equip it to show every film process on the market, including cinerama.

SHOWING WOUNDS inflicted by an acid thrower, this ward at the Cat Welfare Association appears to be pondering whether there is a dividing line in his attacker's streak of cruelty. Having demonstrated an obvious lack of restraint, will the acid tosser's next outburst of brutality be directed at another cat, or . . .?

Cats Don't Have Nine Lives; Most Have Less Than One!

By CHARLES McDERMOTT

Three hundred years before the birth of Christ an Indian sage named Bidpai unwittingly set the stage for a play of savagery and cruelty that, even in this civilized day, doesn't go begging for characters to fill the leading roles.

Bidpai, in a moment of originality, wrote, "It has been the providence of nature to give this creature (the cat) nine lives instead of one."

Now, in those days apparently no one believed anyone, especially Bidpai. So quite a few sadistically inclined individuals set out to determine if the furry feline really possessed this multiple mortality. For a time, the cat was in danger of extinction.

Probably the breed would have been better off, considering the cruelty that is practiced upon it today.

In Franklin County, a fairly urbane area of civilization, the cat is known to some hunters (I use the word reservedly) as a "short-eared bunny with no bag limit." Still others have used the cat as a short-lived training prey for their bloodthirsty young rabbit hounds.

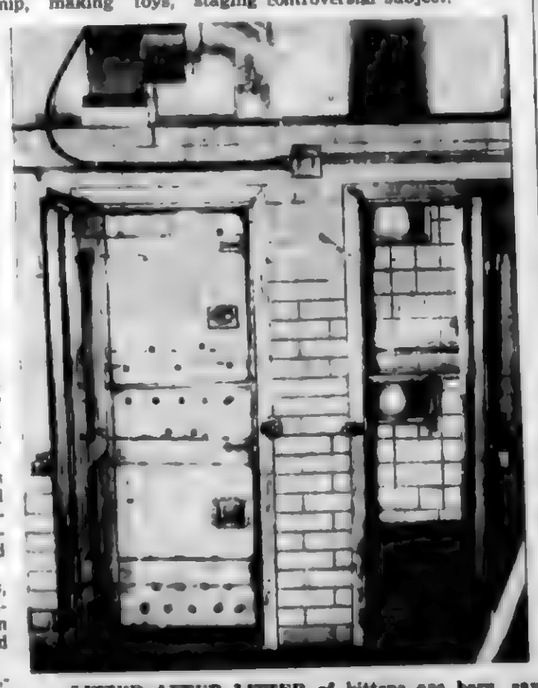
In Westerville, two 15-year-old high school youths dunked a hapless cat in kerosene and set it afire. The Columbus Humane Society willingly paid a $100 reward for their apprehension and conviction.

Three kittens were found in an alley ash can, tied up like garbage with no hope of escape. Others have been found hanged in fiendish fashion.

According to authorities cats die of disease, injury and starvation. They freeze, agonize in thirst, are shot, poisoned, killed in traffic, trapped and unspeakably tortured.

Aside from deliberate acts, the greatest single cruelty imposed upon the hapless cat in every community can be found in statistics.

In the United States, 50,000,000 kittens are born annually. This is about 5,700 each hour. It averages out to about 12½ kittens for each child born during the same period. Obviously, even if everyone were a cat lover this would still be a lop-sided surplus.



The local Cat Welfare Association, as well as the U.S. Humane Society, places the blame for this overbreeding on the indifferent attitude of many cat owners.

The Cat Welfare Association is a private, non-profit organization founded some years ago by a group of women who are dedicated to promoting a fair shake for the much-maligned feline.

The association raises funds by gathering and selling catnip, making toys, staging membership drives, selling flowers and related activities. With funds from such projects they have built a small but modern cat shelter at 736 Wetmore-rd where they devote around-the-clock attention to stray cats and others which have suffered cruelties.

Both this private group, and the public Humane Society, point out that much of the cruelty which man imposes upon the cat can be eliminated by spaying or neutering, thus reducing the surplus to a point where every cat would have a home. This would not only give the cat a better shake, but also cat lovers and cat haters.

There is one hitch. Birth control, even in the world of cats, turns out to be a highly controversial subject.

LITTER AFTER LITTER of kittens are born, say authorities, in the belief that "a good home can be found for every one." This is a fallacy supported by public indifference. Last year 7,962 were executed in this gas chamber at the Columbus Humane Society Animal Shelter at 2770 Groveport-pk. In comparison, the agency was able to find homes for only 1,797. Carbon monoxide from an automobile engine is pumped into the four-compartment "sleep box." Fifteen minutes later the surplus of cats has been reduced. But are gas chambers the answer to over-population?

Mathias

WHITEHALL LIONS AID PILOT DOGS' WORK

In the Lions' continuing program of aid to sight-saving projects and assistance to the blind, members of the Whitehall Club visited the Pilot Dogs Center in February, to observe the training procedure and contributed a check to its support.

Blind persons, seeking a guide dog, spend several weeks at the center, 625 W. Town-st, where they, along with a trained dog especially selected for them, are schooled in their new roles of mutual dependance.

Whitehall Lions observed dogs being put through their training paces, toured the center and its facilities, and had dinner with staff members and some of the trainees.

'HEAR, SPEAK, SEE NO EVIL' PAYS OFF IN VICTORY

ALTHOUGH THERE'S no biological identity between this trio and the fabled threesome who could neither see, speak or hear no evil, the same moods seem to be reflected here by these three spectators at Saturday's CCL wrestling meet at DeSales. From left are Hartley mat coach Jeff Cardoal, a tight-lipped Paul Burkey and Hawk assistant coach Jim Keanedy. The trio is watching Paul's brother Pat (picture at right) ready a pin on Waterson's Bill Ruth in a 154-lb. prelim match. Both Burkey boys went on to cop final wins but Hartley bowed to the host Stallions. (Wrestling photos by Jack Wittenmeier and Tom Shipe).

Few Surprises As F-H, DeSales, Groveport, Cards, 'Cats Cop Titles

There was wrestling galore on five loop fronts over the weekend but surprises were few and far between as favored Brookhaven (City), Franklin Heights (SSL), DeSales (CCL) and Worthington (CBL) racked up titles.

Only Groveport (Mid-Eight) pulled a mild upset with a convincing win over '64 champ Westerville.

Central Catholic

DeSALES WON four of six 'face-off' finals matches with expected top challenger Hartley to pile up with a 104-86 point advantage for the CCL laurels.

The Stallions copped their second straight loop mat crown by winning six of eight finals effort.

Sparkling with finals wins for Hartley were Paul (148) and Pat (157) Burkey and unbeaten heavyweight John Bayly. Pat Gentile, Joe Weldon, Mike Newton, Jim Carpenter and Bill Astley copped runnerup nods.

Bill Paxton (130) and Jim Rough (123) got second place for Bishop Ready. DeSales Dave Kauder (141) got Casey Frederick's trophy as the tourney's 'outstanding' wrestler.

City League

BROOKHAVEN took a "runnerup route" to displace East as City mat kings. The Bearcats got only two final wins but accumulated six second spots to easily outpoint runnerup Eastmoor, 97-61.

West and Central with six and seven semi-final slots respectively were hottest in pursuit of Brookhaven at the first day break but the Pirates got cut down in the semi-finals (no wins).

The Cowboys (Benny King and Ed Smith) entered and won both finals slots.

EASTMOOR duplicated its '64 City Meet surprise by winning all four of its finals matches (Roy Leonard, Benson Rutledge, Pete Johnson and Mike Sullivan).

East, which could send only three into the finals, got but one win—Roland Martin's in the heavyweight slot.

Walnut Ridge's lone final win was by Steve Roberts (127).

South Suburban

FRANKLIN HEIGHTS piled up the widest point spread (47) of the five new champs, taking nine of 11 finals spots to overpower runnerup Pleasant View and Hamilton Township.

The Falcons had a representative in every finals slot, losing only two to P-V's Rick Erbe (120) and Jerry Reibel (165). Reibel was named the tourney's 'outstanding' wrestler.

Falcon finals' win went to: Vic Vance (103), Dick Grambo (112), Dick Kesserling (127), Jim O'Hara (133), Don Morris (138), Charlie Hall (145), Fred Scolieri (154), Mike Long (175) and Bill Berry (hwt).

Joe George and Sam Blankenship gots seconds.

P-V'S RUNNER-UP spots went to Chuck Driesbach, Roger Bauer and Steve Barton.

Hamilton's runnerup spots went to Jim Britton, Ken Cornwall, Steve Beggrow, Ralph Morgan, Greg Sherrill and Jim Schumacher.

Next high mat action is slated Saturday when sectional competition gets under way (1 p.m.) at Franklin Heights, Whitehall, Brookhaven and Whetstone.

Central Buckeye

SPARKED by back-to-back wins at 127 and 133 (Paul and Alan Mitchell) Worthington (98) started a drive that subdued challenges by defending champion Arlington (58) and upset runnerup Whitehall (65).

The Cards whipped through with wins in six of seven finals berths to cop the title.

Whitehall, although it could gain only two finals wins (Steve Beery at 120 and Wes Seymour at 145), managed three additional runnerup slots (Mike Decker, Spike Ludwig and Randy Catalina).

Bexley's only bright spot came at 175 where Larry Miller got a second.

SPIKE'S STRIFE—The going wasn't easy here for Whitehall's Spike Ludwig as Bexley's Steve Sloan (front) secures a firm leg hold in this 127-lb CBL meet prelim match Saturday at Grandview. Ludwig fared better later, decisioning Sloan, 5-1, and later nabbing a runnerup spot.

PROMENADE ALL!—It wasn't exactly country and western style in Friday's City League prelims at Eastmoor but this takedown pursuit by the Warriors' Dan Goldberg after Linden's Don Keaton in a 165-lb prelim match almost resembles a promenade all. Goldberg took the decision.

MR. ROBERTS—was a bright spot at Saturday's City League wrestling meet finals for Walnut Ridge as the 127-lb. Scottie entry nabbed W-R's lone finals win. Above Steve, (dark jersey) seeks reversal on Central's Tom Terry en route to a semi-finals victory.

Sun 'Shines' As Ross Wrecks Tech At Center

Stan Ross's basket with one second remaining maintained Sun T.V.'s perfect record and undisputed first place in round two.

Ross led the visitors with 19 in T.V.'s 49-47 win over Ohio Technical. Ron Golden added 13. Mark Topy and Wes Rosenthal led Ohio Technical with 16 and 15 respectively.

Berwick Manor won its first game of the year, 54-46, over American Supply and Builders. Stan Robins had high point honors with 23 points.

John Weptner and Bernie Weston hit for 10 each. Barry Zacks had 17 for the losers while Jack Alexander added 12.

Rob Benjamin's 19 and Al Kass's 18 carried Robert Builders to a 61-46 victory over a cold-shooting Raybe Vending. Bob Hepps chipped in with 11 for the winners.

Fred Davidorf led Raybo with 19. Harold Post hit for 12 and Preston Gurwin added 10.

TEEN A

The Epsilons, pre-season favorites, showed winning form as they topped the stubborn aggregate of Pegasus, 43-36. Eddie Weston was the outstanding player of the game, swishing 15 for Epsilons with seven points netted on seven straight foul shots in the final quarter.

Kaplan and Worly had nine each for the losers.

The Independent five finally jelled and won its first game by overpowering a game Capital group, 48-36. Simpson, Wood and Fontanelle put together 12, 10 and 10 respectively.

For the losers, Oser boosted his league leading total to 90 with an evening's high of 21.

Heart of Ohio smothered the gallant crew of Pops Dworkin, 34-15, but only did so after a first half tie of 9-9. Brownstein again was the big man for Heart of Ohio as he racked for 14.

PONIES

A 29-point second half led Richfield Construction to 34-29 victory over Jetcoat. The winners trailed 13-5 at intermission. Brian Friedman had 17 points for Richfield, 15 in the second half.

Mike Goodman and Shaun Hirschl led Jetcoat with eight apiece.

Green Cabs nabbed a 44-29 victory over Nationwide. Barry Rosen and Rick Newpoff had 16 and 14 respectively for the Cabbers. Mike Ballen's 11 was toos for Nationwide.

Cagers Open District Play

Hartley High gained a share of its first major sporting crown last Friday night although the Hawk cagers dropped a heart-breaking 56-51 nod to CCL co-champ Watterson on the Eagles' floor.

The loss left both clubs with identical 9-1 CCL slates and gave the Hawks their best-ever season mark of 15-3. Watterson sauntered off to an 11-6 first-period advantage but slender Frank Tafoya pumped in four fielders and Doug Parker eight points to give the visitors a slim 26-24 intermission edge.

THE THIRD stanza was Hartley's downfall however as the Hawks hit only three of 18 field shots, offsetting Doug Parker's 19, Frank Tafoya's 14 and fine board work by Tom Schlager and Dave Thomas.

The Hawks hit the 'AA' Tourney trail Saturday night (6:30) at the Coliseum against Gahanna (8-10), led by 6'3 Mike Shaffer (16.3).

Eastmoor suffered an 83-64 setback at South on Friday night as the host Rebs pumped through 24 big points in the second period to take a commanding 47-31 halftime edge.

JERRY GROVES, harassed constantly by the Reb guards, hit 12 free throws en route to an 18-point effort while Steve Howell had 19, Gary Cochran 12 and Ron Bollie 11 in the loss, that gave E-M a 10-6 season slate.

The Warriors open District action tomorrow night at the Coliseum (6 p.m.) against North (7-9), a team E-M defeated earlier in the season, 77-61.

East nicked home-court toughie Walnut Ridge, 50-44, on Friday after overcoming a two-point Scottie lead gong into the final quarter (36-34).

JOHN LEWIS looped in 16 markers and carried off 15 caroms to aid East aces Vance Carr (13) and Gil Mathews (11) while Walnut got 16 'outsiders' from Mike Tanner and 12 'insiders' from Rick Houchen.

The Tigers (7-4 in the City, 11-5 overall) hit the Bexley District action Saturday (8:30) against Whitehall (7-11) while Walnut Ridge (2-14) starts out against feared Pleasant Vnew (16-2) on the same night at Arlington (8:30).

Bexley pulled off a 64-61 shocker over CBL runnerup Mt. Vernon last week, staying even at the first quarter (15-all), taking a 39-34 lead into the dressing room and finishing with a 25-point second half.

BIG DAVE Johnston rattled off 22 markers to go along with Captain Bill Salt's 16 and Rob Wells' 12. The win gave the Blue Lions a 5-9 CBL ticket and 7-10 overall log.

The Gene Millard-coached club visits Arlington's gym tomorrow night (8:30) in 'AA' District action where Marysville (13-5) and aces Jack Mackan (16.6) and John Warden (15.7) await.

Delaware Hayes dished out a 62-53 shiner to Whitehall on Friday, with the Rams trailing all the way after a 13-all opening chukker. Leading scorer and rebounder Gary Beckley banged in 16 counters and hard-driving Mark Blackstone 10 for the Rams.

Phil Allen's fighting five journeys to Bexley to enter District play Saturday (8:30) against fast-improving East (11-5).

ST. CHARLES bowed in its last seasonal contest ever, as Ready eked out the CCL verdict by outscoring the Cards 20-9 in the third quarter.

Reliable Tim Rooney rammed in 17 digits to pace the Carolians (6-10) who also had 13 from Denny Craft and nine each by Joe Van Baien and Joe DiCesare.

The Dick Geyer-coached Cards finished 2-8 in their final CCL title bid and open 'A' District warefare Saturday at Teays Valley (8:30 p.m.) against tough Aquinas (5-11).

A Good Haircut Inspires A Man Much As M'Lady's New Bonnet

By CHARLES McDERMOTT
Spectator Business Editor

Tired of rising prices? I am. And I thought it would be a bit refreshing as well as newsworthy this week to zero in on a shop where quality has risen and prices have been appreciably reduced.

Best of all, this shop provides a service used by nearly everyone.

If you want to check me out on this, and have a few minutes to spare, drop in and meet Dick Bergman at the Broad-Kellner Barber Shop at 14 S. Kellner.

Here is a shop with modern perspective.

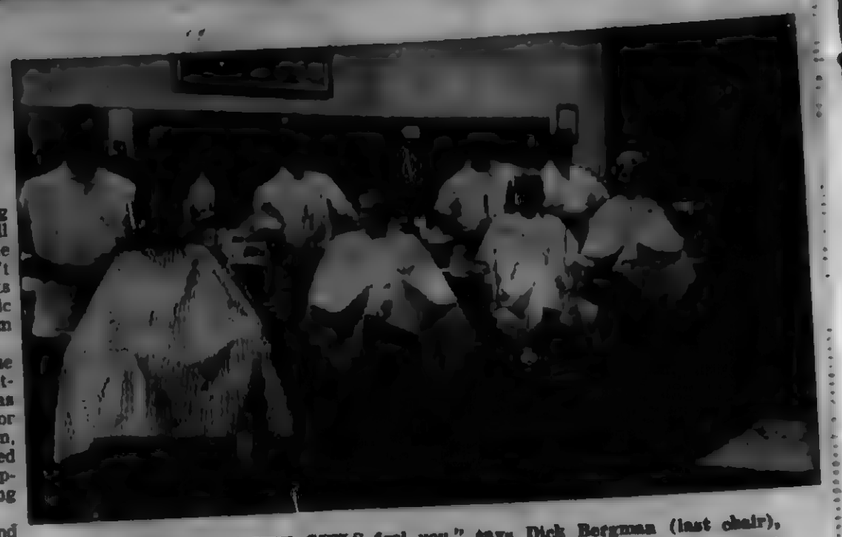
It's relatively new to the East Side, and offers more features than any shop I've been in since a Hollywood junket.

Five barbers, and five chairs—modern and luxurious as only Koch can make them. There is a telephone to check with headquarters for last minute shopping items. A coke machine for the thirsty. A cigarette machine. A trip to the rest room reveals a modern innovation for today's tonsorial parlors—a pool table.

The shop is so clean and spanking new the christening champagne stains are still fresh on the sidewalk. While you're waiting — which isn't long with five hirsute artists on duty — selective music from a Fisher stereo system soothes the ear.

Soothing to the eye are the prints and original oil paintings which Dick Bergman has fitted into the tonsorial decor —a restful mountain stream, the Old Red Mill, a covered wagon train camped for supper on the trail by L. Young Hunter.

Pleasing to the eye, too, and the ego as well, is the artistry being performed on the customers in the chairs.



Besides Dick, the barbers are George A. Norman and Larry Osborn, familiar to customers of the Star Plaza Barber Shop at 1599 W. Fifth-av, and Eldon Hunt and Roger Tague of the Georgian Heights Shop at 572 Georgesville-rd.

Dick has been in the business for 20 years. A Columbus native, he attended Central and West high schools, and is married to the former Betty Payne, a South High graduate.

Their daughter Diane, 16, attends Central High and wants to be a teacher. Dick, r., 17, was appointed to West Point by Congressman Samuel L. Devine, but instead has passed exams for Annapolis and will attend the naval academy when he gradutes from Central.

If you are a chess fan — there is a table and pieces in this modern shop—or a gun collection interested in modern or foreign weapons, or a stereo fan . . . or if you just want a fine haircut, drop in and see Dick.

You'll save some money and have a fine time.

"DON'T LET THE GIRLS fool you," says Dick Bergman (last chair), owner of the smart new Broad-Kellner Barber Shop, "most of our customers are men." In the foreground, barber Eldon Hunt treats his fiancee to a demonstration of scissor artistry. The other girls are beauticians from the Kellner Hair Fashion Salon next door where m'lady may stop while Dick or one of his artists is grooming [redacted] husband.

IGA's Supplier Plans Expansion

More than $750,000 will be spent by Super Food Services, Inc., on expansion of the firm's largest division at Bellefontaine, according to an announcement by William H. Tegtmeyer, chairman.

The wholesale food firm, affiliated with IGA (Independent Grocer's Alliance), plans to double their present office facilities and space for dairy and frozen food products. The expansion plan also calls for a substantial increase in warehousing for dry grocery products.

Tegtmeyer said some 14 new retail stores, operated by independent grocers, will join the chain. These are being established, in some cases financed, by Super Food's development department.

In a move to step up the establishing and financing of new retail stores, Jack Mayfield was moved from vice-president to the executive-vice-presidency post recently created.

With an annual volume of approximately $200 million, Super Food Services currently supplies 1,000 stores in Ohio, Michigan, New York and Florida.

Zayre Gets New District Manager

Hank Kaizerman has been named district manager for Zayre department stores in Kentucky and Cincinnati and Columbus, according to Stanley H. Feldberg, president of the 69-store chain.

Kaizerman joined Zayre in 1959 and has served in managerial capacities in Massachusetts, South Carolina and Illinois.

1st State Bank Opens March 1 At 88 E. Broad

Members of local news media will gather in the Taft Room of the Columbus Plaza, Feb. 26 at 8:30 a.m. for the breakfast party, first of a series of receptions being hosted by 1st State Bank to acquaint the public with the city's newest banking facilities.

Later, Friday, customers of 1st State Bank (formerly Brunson Bank and Trust) will be shown through the new bank at 88 E. Broad and see the many innovations in banking being introduced by 1st State.

1st State will open for complete banking service at its new location Monday, Mar. 1, according to Robert K. Landrum, president.

Since its beginning in 1948, the International Farm Youth Exchange has sent 1,660 American rural youth to all parts of the world. Ohio has sent 90 of these.

ELDERCARE

...better care than Medicare

Here's why the Herlong-Curtis Eldercare Bill, HR 3727, is the best answer to the health care needs of people over 65

MORE BENEFITS FOR THE ELDERLY

Eldercare would provide a wide range of hospital and medical services for the elderly—much more than Medicare.

	ELDERCARE	MEDICARE
Physicians' Care	YES	NO
Surgical Costs	YES	NO
Drugs — In and out of Hospital	YES	NO
Hospital & Nursing Home Charges	YES	YES

LESS COST TO THE TAXPAYERS

Eldercare offers more care for the elderly who need help, but would cost less because it does not provide benefits for the wealthy and well-to-do. Eldercare would not require a new payroll tax. It would be financed by federal-state funds through a program that already exists.

By contrast, the Medicare tax plan would increase payroll taxes to provide benefits for everyone over 65, the wealthy included. Furthermore, the Medicare tax would hit hardest those least able to pay. The $5,600-a-year worker would pay as much tax as the $56,000 executive.

Your doctors, who care for the elderly, support Eldercare because it also assures free choice of physician and hospital . . . provides for protection through Blue Cross, Blue Shield and health insurance policies . . . and lets people over 65 qualify for benefits before illness strikes — without a welfare type investigation.

WHO'S SOLVING THE MASS TRANSIT PROBLEM?

Politicians Are Trying--Very Trying

By FRANK RYAN

There is a lesson to be learned from the present transit dilemma facing the City of Columbus. It is this: If you have a problem that must be solved by politicians, don't ever tell them to keep politics out of their decision.

A backward glance at the transit problem (which is in keeping with the line of march) reveals what happens when some politicians pretend to be what they "ain't" — statesmen.

Here are the high points:

Two years ago, Harry Miller, president of Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co., proposed to city council that Columbus swap its electric utility for the Columbus Transit Co., wholly owned by C&SOE. Miller said that the electric company would divest itself of transit company ownership when the current franchise with the city expires in June, 1966—if not by swapping with the city, then by shopping for a buyer.

The "Swap" proposal didn't appeal to then-Mayor W. Ralston Westlake, and certainly was not to the liking of Howard Stemm, superintendent of the city's Division of Electricity. As a body, city council declined to take a stand either way, but did agree to let an outside consultant evaluate the offer in relation to the potential of the city's electric utility operation (C&SOE suggested such a report and paid for its preparation.)

Consultant's Letter Quoted

The consultant's report showed a preponderance of evidence in favor of continuing the city's Division of Electricity as a publicly-owned utility. But perhaps this should not have come as a surprise to those who read the letter of transmittal that accompanied a draft of the final report. Addressed to Council President William R. Fornof, the letter said in part:

"I am not sure that Mr. Stemm will approve of everything which we have said and, of course, we are obliged to discuss this report with him before submitting it to you. I think, however, that you will find that he is in substantial agreement and that the figures which he has can be relied upon."

All this transpired between April, 1963, and May, 1964. The 1963 General Election changed the political complexion of the administrative branch of City Hall. Early in 1964, the new mayor, M. E. Sensenbrenner, lent his support to a study of the transit problem undertaken by the Citizens Transit Study Committee (CTSC).

The CTSC included representation from 32 area civic, service and neighborhood groups. It considered the future of mass transit in relation to the decision by C&SOE to divest itself of transit ownership, and long-range mass transportation needs. The Development Committee for Greater Columbus (DCGC) sponsor of the CTSC, paid for a consultant's report which dealt with the mass transportation picture in general and the Columbus problem in particular.

In November, 1964, the CTSC made its recommendation to the city administration and council. Included were these main points:

1. While locally-based private ownership of a transit operation would be the most desirable "short term" solution to the mass transit problem, diligent efforts by the committee failed to uncover any local interest.

2. A public transit authority would constitute the best long-term solution, even assuming the availability of the "short term" or stop-gap measure.

3. The city should prepare for submission at the May, 1965, primary election a city charter amendment to permit creation of a Columbus Transit Authority (CTA).

4. The city should notify the C&SOE that it would exercise its option to purchase the transit company.

As a body, city council declined to take a stand, but agreed with the administration that a "governmental" Mass Transit Study Committee (MTSC) should be formed to advise council as to the "feasibility" of such action.

Now the MTSC was composed mostly of members of the administrative branch of government. They were given the "problem" in mid-January and had a Feb. 15 deadline for reporting back to council if they hoped to get any question on the May ballot. They also inherited an additional problem in the form of a request from a local resident who said he would like to negotiate with C&SOE for purchase of the Columbus Transit Company (CTC).

Just How Do They Stand?

As a matter of honest fact, the majority of the MTSC members favor not only the creation of a CTA but also the purchase of the CTC by the city. But, as a matter of political tact, they would rather some other group take the "credit" for official sponsorship of such a plan. So, in effect, the MTSC declined to take a stand, but agreed to send council a set of recommendations which said one thing but meant quite the opposite.

Here, in essence, is what they said —and (in parenthesis) what it meant:

1. Don't put the Columbus transit Authority question on the May ballot. (Really, we're all for it, but there isn't enough time for the electorate to know what it's all about.)

2. Tell the C&SOE to go ahead and negotiate with anyone who wants to talk with them. (If they do, it will just prove the point that there is no bona-fide local offer, and will probably prove that no outside firm will be able to get the type of franchise it wants from the city.)

3. Tell C&SOE that the city has no present intent to purchase the transit company, but remind the parent firm that the city cannot waive its right to take over the operation at any time it chooses. (How's that for a firm decision?)

4. Ask City Attorney John Young to draft a legally acceptable CTA model. (We will love it in November even more than in May.)

5. Make all proceedings of the MTSC available to the citizens' committee which made the original recommendations. (Let's hope they'll re-state their recommendations so emphatically that we can take the credit for implementing them, instead of the blame for originating them.)

Council On Fence

City council, in turn, proved that there is a difference between motion and movement. The legislative body passed a meaningless resolution saying the city has no intention of purchasing the transit company "at this time." Legally, they could have passed another resolution five minutes later saying they had changed their collective mind.

Council agreed with the MTSC that the electric company should be permitted to negotiate with any prospective purchasers of the transit company, and went along with the suggestion that the Citizens Transit Study Committee be apprised of all developments subsequent to its original recommendations. Council balked at having Young prepare a transit authority model for stand-by use in case C&SOE fails to find a private enterprise buyer for the transit company.

In all fairness to council, it should be recorded that most members really don't want anything to do with city ownership of the transit company or, for that matter, creation of a CTA. Actually, their stated preferences for private transit ownership ring more true than statements from some administrative members.

But, so far, council has stayed "officially on the fence" — but in "jump" position.

Meanwhile, representatives of the Development Committee for Greater Columbus and the Citizens Transit Study Committee met this week to plan re-activation of the latter group.

Their purpose will be to determine if the CTSC, with the backing of the DCGC, can prevail upon the MTSC to push for creation of a CTA and the sale of the CTC by the C&SOE to the CITY.

If the whole business had been made a political football in the first place, the game might be over by now and we'd all know the score.

All Or Nothing On Bus Bill

Ohio legislators will not have an easy choice in deciding the fate of various bills dealing with school bus transportation for children in state-accredited non-public schools.

Apparently, there is substantial support among legislators for a "permissive bus bill." This would give each local board of education the authority to provide or deny bus transportation to children in parochial and private schools. Passage of such a bill would be a universal disservice to all Ohioans, and an abdication of legislative responsibility.

A "local option" bus law would actually mean the creation of innumerable area pressure groups to fight for and against such service. The local policy could change as local boards of education change membership. School bond issues and levies would be needlessly jeopardized.

And two years hence, the legislature certainly would be faced with the same problem it has in this area today.

We have seen enough bitterness on this question. It should not be pushed off to fester at the neighborhood levels between legislative sessions.

If the legislature decides in favor of a "bus bill," it should be made to apply equally in all sections of the state.

Claims Court Needed

A "small claims court" for Franklin County has been proposed by Reynoldsburg Mayor George W. Twyford who feels that people who suffer losses under $100 should have proper redress of their grievance.

Twyford points out that such claims are seldom pressed because the cost of legal services is usually greater than the claimed loss. Cases in a small claims court could be filed at a total cost of about $2.50. Hearings could be conducted in the evenings and avoid, for most people, the problem of lost wages and time from work.

Support is growing for Twyford's proposal, which, if enacted, would protect most businessmen from the stigma of those few who are not above bilking the public in small doses. A small claims court, we think, would be a "Better Business Bureau" with teeth.

Terminate 'Temporary' Telephone Tax

The current edition of the monthly Ohio Bell bulletin carries a message well worth repeating, and points up a tax inequity of long standing. Here's what the leaflet "Hello" had to say:

"Have you ever heard of anything as permanent as a 'temporary tax'? We haven't and we're a bit sensitive on the subject. We keep wondering why your telephone service is still subject to the 10 percent federal excise tax that was imposed as a temporary wartime measure nearly a quarter of a century ago.

"Making business calls, keeping in touch with family and friends, calling the doctor, the plumber, the auto repair man certainly cannot be classified under the 'luxury' category. Your telephone is the only household utility still being taxed. Repealing this particular excise tax would seem to be a most reasonable consideration for your congressman to work on."

It should be remembered that Ohio Bell is urging a tax reduction for telephone subscribers—not for Ohio Bell. And if the company saves the expense of administering this tax collection, it will be one less cost factor to consider in setting rates for telephone service.

'THE GRIST'

Ground Out by Dusty Miller

PATRIOTS—(Time, place and names in this tale can be documented). A pretentious church in a city that I have haunted for five decades decided to hold a special service, honoring the country's February-born heroes. The pastor, in his prayer, said, and I quote: "We are grateful for such patriotic statesmen as Washington and Lincoln, and Roosevelt —I mean Theodore."

The explanation was to set the Elysian record straight.

The murmured "amens" were from visiting Methodist brethren.

DREAMS — The learned lecturer, who begins where Joseph left off interpreting Pharaoh's dreams, finds deep religious significance in midnight muddled melanges. Sometime, when he has a day off — a bit farther than usual — I want to ask him the religious significance of my being with Sheridan, 20 miles away, clad only in my undies, with the plane revvin' up . . . and where are my script, purse, traveling bag, and all that stuff?

• • •

CHALK — The spade of the old-time local minstrel show having been trumped by a king, the endman can no longer get the biggest joke of his repertoire off on the local minister.

On his demise, he said, he was given a piece of chalk, told to climb the celestial ladder and write his sins on the wall as he went. Half way up he met the preacher coming down. To his whafur the vicar sighed: "I'm comin' down after more chalk."

The more popular the parson, the louder the yokel yowl.

Urges Driving Age Hike

To the Editor:

A constant refrain one hears from parents and educators is, "Our children are growing up too fast!" Yet when an opportunity presents itself to reverse the trend —few step forward to help pull in the reins.

State Representative Harry McIlwain of Cincinnati has introduced a bill in the Ohio legislature which, if passed, would defer the driving age from 16 to 18. Little publicity and still less interest has been evidenced since its introduction.

Where are the parents, educators and social workers who should be writing, phoning and urging the passage of this bill? Each group could testify to the serious consequences that follow the sixteen year old's urgent need to drive.

Let teachers tell how school grades fall, interest dwindles, when young minds reach the driving age.

Let parents tell how their children's social life depends upon the freedom and independence the family car brings. Let them tell how they now stay home and wonder where their young may roam. Let them tell the pang of fear an ambulance siren or a late phone call now brings to them.

Let the social workers tell the psychological effects this pressure brings to bear and how a car brings grown up freedoms and pleasures for many too young to handle them.

And please — don't forestall my arguments by saying a change in the driving age will not cure all of our teenage problems. Of course it won't! But because it can't cure all our ills, are we right to do nothing—start nowhere?

Sooner or later, your teenager will be asking for your car keys. You have the opportunity now — to make it later.

Write, phone — make your wishes known to your state representative and ask your friends and neighbors to do the same.

An Editor's Outlook . . . by Jenkin Lloyd Jones

This 'Candy' Causes Moral Decay

The other evening in an airplane over Tennessee a furtive man hunched against the window reading a paper-back book, the title of which he was concealing. The man was me. The book was a thing called "Candy." The furtiveness was to prevent the gabby stewardess from finding out what was absorbing me.

Jenkin

"Candy" had arrived in the pristine envelope of the local power company together with a note from a friend who had bought the book in a supermarket and couldn't believe his eyes. Since then my secretary has been in with word about "an unbelievably dirty book called 'Candy'." Several copies have arrived at the office with notes from irate readers, including one missive from an outraged lady who says she only "skimmed it," which I doubt.

Anyway, the time has come to confess that I am a "Candy" expert. And the time has also come to advise my adult readers to push the teenagers aside at the book rack in the corner drug store, pick up a copy, and read it word-for-word.

The reason why it is necessary for informed Americans to become au courant with "Candy" is because the book takes the matter of artless pornography and raw filth out of the realm of abstract discussion and provides a concrete example. "Candy" is the end result of bubble-headed court decisions that have broadened the definition of "art" to the point where most judges can't tell the difference between a privy and the Parthenon.

"Candy" also has another use. Its apologists (or promoters) have argued that it is a satire on the worst of our current literature. This is a lofty way of peddling putrescence for a profit. It is also a gutty way. The publishers miss no trick, however. They point out on the cover that the book was banned in Paris. Hey, fellas, looks here!

A lot of very decent, sincere and cultured Americans suffer from a horrible nightmare, and that is that any form of censorship is the death of art and the end of criticism. They still live in those ancient days when Boston's Watch and Ward society was denouncing Emile Zola and carting off the works of Elinor Glyn.

There is the persistent suspicion in American intellectual circles — a suspicion carefully nurtured by buck-hungry publishers — that those who raise the whither-are-we-drifting yowl would pin a brassiere on the Venus Milo and must be dead-ringers for the tight-lipped ladies in Grant Wood's painting, "Daughters of Revolution."

Every scatalogical scribbler identifies himself with Chaucer and Rabelais. He is an apostle of freedom, experimenting, probing, pricking with his sharp scalpel the follies of his age. And the kids who slavver over his four-lettered vocabulary and his clinical couplings are being released from Victorian repressions and led into broader fields of expression. It is time to take the primly-draped Goddess of Liberty down from her Victorian pedestal on Bedloe's Island and erect in her place the image of the Playboy Bunny.

Well, it's all so familiar.

But one can afford to be a little philosophical. Eventually, the dirtmongers always overplay their hands. Every time the courts back up a yard the French postcard peddlers of stage and literature move forward four feet. And down the road somewhere there is the point of national nausea.

We may be very close to that point. Ralph Ginsburg, the publisher of Eros, drew a substantial fine and sentence last summer from a Philadelphia judge, who was no longer amused. A few weeks later a Grand Rapids, Mich., federal jury convicted a group of California publishers for a series of "novels" that were not worse than "Candy."

The yell is going up, not from prissy old maids, but from many thousands of sophisticated citizens who are not easily shocked. But they love their country and their children, and they have sense enough to know that in a nation of 193 million people there are always going to be some creeps who would put on a peep show in Yankee Stadium if they thought they could get away with it.

Censorship is the greatest puzzlement in the field of human expression. Its beginnings and endings are most difficult to define. It is most easily subject to abuse. More than any other field of legal restraint, censorship depends most desperately on the element of common sense.

But the difficulty of censorship has nothing to do with its desirability. Censorship is vital. It is inconceivable that a society can remain strong and reasonably disciplined if anything—absolutely anything — may be published or displayed.

Do you want to know how far we've gone?

Read "Candy."

If you don't know where to buy it, ask your kid.

These two excerpts are quoted with permission from Capital University's campus magazine "Spectator," edited and written by students with facuty advice. We cite them as outstanding examples of work being done by college youth today. The old can learn from the young.

The verse is from the poem "Vigil," by Rebecca Tobin. We wish we had space for all of it. She has some striking phrases in the proper places. The entire piece shows almost faultless, imaginative techniques in concept and construction.

The prose is from Brent Nelson's essay "Against The Grain." It is a scholarly discussion of the modern human condition, with references indicating an extensive knowledge of man's mistakes and triumphs in his long and tortuous trek from ancient, bone-strewn caves to the nuclear age. Here, too, we wish we could quote more.

It says here . . .

Some of our youth may make a few serious mistakes, but most, we think, will become worthy trustees of their heritage.

Frosting on the Cake

BY "UNCLE DOC" ROSS — U.S.A.

Twenty-seven million of us lost a battle last November 3, but we have not lost the war by any means.

The "mail box" columns of Columbus papers are publishing more challenging letters than ever.

Came the President's State of the Union message to a joint meeting of the new congress. The repercussions have been amazing. That speech was the finest dose of "apple sauce" ever presented with such carte blanc authority. The gratifying fact this moment is that millions who listened most respectfully, because of the prestige and dignity of the office, didn't buy it.

It is, however, part of the American system and no one can find fault with the President's right to make a "tailor-made heaven" speech. It sounded sweet to the parasites and the opportunistic politicians of both major parties. It was almost manna from heaven to the doctrinaire Socialists.

There is just now a lot of double-talk and burnt-crow chomping in the Republican high command and among all of the lunatic fringes of both parties. Republican party workers can well afford to take heed to the real facts. They can find a real Constitutionalist, if they really wish for one, as their next candidate for President. But, it won't be any of the has-wassers or sharp-shooters now so prominent. Senator Goldwater made every possible psychological fumble, to be sure, but he also made a definite contribution to a larger understanding of what the real issue is.

In 1968 more of us than ever before will take up the battle and perhaps the people will pick the man next time.

Guest Pulpit . .

"Being asked by the Pharisees when the kingdom of God was coming, Jesus answered them, 'The kingdom of God is not coming with signs to be observed; nor will they say, 'Lo, here it is!' or 'There!' for behold, the kingdom of God is within you." Luke: 17:20 and 21

Jesus spent his years of ministry telling people about the Kingdom of God. It was not a kingdom that was limited to a certain group of people who said the right combination of magical words, or to those who wore the same kind of bifocals, or to those who met together the second Tuesday after the first full moon. No, Jesus' concept of the Kingdom of God was much more basic than most of us take time to realize.

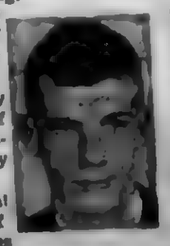
Rev. Dickey

The Kingdom of God is certainly not limited to one group of people, for Jesus tells the Pharisees that the Kingdom is within them, and many times Jesus saw Pharasaic practices as ones that were not helping to establish God's kingdom. We must assume then that the Kingdom of God is within every individual. Some people live their lives in such a way that God's purposes are readily seen —others live in such a way that God's purposes are pushed into the background.

How will the Kingdom of God be established? Most of us are familiar with the statement that God is love, and if this is true, the Kingdom of God will be established through love—through deep concern for every individual and all people. The Christian, then, is the sinful human being who recognizes the concern that Jesus Christ has for him, and with a grateful heart tries to acknowledge this fact through his concern for mankind.

". . . for he who loves his neighbor has fulfilled the law. The commandments, 'You shall not commit adultery, You shall not kill, You shall not steal, You shall not covet,' and any other commandment, are summed up in this sentence, 'You shall love your neighbor as yourself.' Love does no wrong to a neighbor; therefore love is the fulfilling of the law." Romans 13:8-10

You and I are all too often the Pharisees of today. We become bogged down with schedules and details and try to become the person who has accomplished the most in the shortest number of days. Jesus would speak to us in the midst of a complex and changing world in words similar to these. "It is not what you accomplish but what is your attitude toward the people with whom you contact as you go about accomplishing things, that is most important."



Do you merely fulfill the laws of life, or do you, through your basic concern for individuals fulfill the Kingdom of God within you?

Though we are well into the year 1965, the last of Christmas 1964 has yet to be heard from.

When the ground begins to thaw and the thermometer rises, it is then we shall feel the awful results of a deadly bit of advertising, and we shall witness the emergence of a new phase in the fine American art of cannon-fodder breeding.

Brumley

During the last months of 1964, TV screens were ablaze with ads which promised indestructibility to lucky recipients of various types of junior-sized military weaponry.

When I was that age, the Saturday afternoon war games were almost entirely without the support of imaginative toy manufacturers. A few of the kids with bigger allowances picked up stuff from the local war surplus store, but not enough to cause a noticable shift in the balance of power. My squad had the upper hand for the better part of a whole summer with a machine gun made from a discarded Christmas tree stand, a block of wood and a piece of broom handle.

Today's "Junior G. I." is fully equipped and armed to the teeth. For tricky situations he carries grenades which explode with a loud "Bang!" when thrown into the foxhole of a horrified playmate.

But this season the inadequacy of standard weapons in real warfare evidently rang a bell in the minds of toy dreamer-uppers.

The arms race has come to the playground. The young soldier with vinyl carbine is obsolete.

The new models launch and guide missiles, lob grenades and, when it gets to the man-to-man stage, serve as machine guns.

I can see it next Christmas . . .

"Hey kids--don't be the one to suffer defeat this year — ask Mom and Dad to get you an "Annihilator Junior" . . . the little red telephone rings . . . Johnny's troops have violated your sector . . . you pull the lever to activate the 'Annihilator Junior' control panel . . . you push the red button marked 'Johnny's Apartment Building' . . . and presto! . . . the video screen shows a crater where an enemy used to be."

One of the stories told in my family about my rather short-spoken grandfather concerns his objection to my father's joining the Boy Scouts.

"Just gettin' 'em ready to march off to war," he used to say.

I think if he were alive today he might have a legitimate complaint.

Wit 'N' Wisdom

By JACK WITTENMEIER

Leprechaun . . .

Erin O'Parseghian is a leprechaun.

And a safe one at that. Nobody's ever gonna' catch him.

YOU GOT THAT impression anyway while spending some 60 minutes listening to this Armenian charmer.

Erin (formerly Ara until ND got hold of him) hopped into town last week to appear, with '64 Irish grid highlights, et al, for a St. Anthony's benefit at DeSales High School.

The personable Irish mentor, who might crowd Danny Thomas if he ever decided to forego football for TV, delivered the mail effectively in case there were any ND nonbelievers in the audience.

Wittenmeier

"I've been through Columbus many times," he grinned, "only once did I regret it." (Only poker faces in the audience belonged to OSU fans).

Pointing out the fact that he is the first non-Irish alumnus ever appointed head gridmaster, Parseghian reported that he had gotten the Catholic routine down pat in the past 14 months.

"They're the greatest fund-raisers in the world."

Quizzed as to whether he ever participated in prayer in a ND huddle by an Irish backer, Ara replied, "My mother didn't raise an idiot. I learned the Hail Mary real quick."

"YOU KNOW Rockne came in as a Protestant. They've been wondering 'how long before we get Parseghian.' Hughie Devore (Ara's predecessor at ND) told an alumni group 'the way things are going, we better join him.'"

"We were a hungry football team last fall. Those boys played with pride and heart. They were embarrassed the year before and they had a great desire to win."

Asked why ND doesn't compete in bowl games, Ara replied, "Every game we play is a bowl game. Everybody wants to beat Notre Dame because it is the cradle of great collegiate football."

QUESTIONED ABOUT '65, Parseghian commented, "Our big job is finding a quarterback to replace John Huarte. It's hard to say until we see what happens in spring practice.

"Last year we had great diversification of skills — speed, power and passing. I'll take this any day.

"I don't make predictions or guarantees but I will promise you this — we'll be fundamentally sound, well conditioned and play with a full heart."

COMMENTING on the Ill-fated Southern Cal game, Ara said, "We were only 1:33 away from a national championship and an unbeaten season. But maybe it gave us a knowledge of understanding, an incentive to work harder this year."

Looking out at some of his younger audience, the enthusiastic Irish coach asked, "How do you achieve success?"

"You do it by selling the lowest scrub on his importance to the total effort. Just look at John Huarte, a discouraged non-letter winner who went all the way from no chance of playing to the Heisman Trophy. John earned the right by working and getting better than the competition.

"JOHN'S fantastic achievement didn't just happen. He decided 'I'm going to do it.'

"And a good coach doesn't make it easy. A boy only appreciates what he has when he understands how it comes.

"At Notre Dame, you can't help but feel the spirit. Why, Knute Rockne is more alive today than many of the people I see walking.

"IF YOU didn't see that spirit in those game films, you're blind. It was there after every successful play, every score."

It was also there, we observed, on the sidelines in the form of a pat on the back from an Armenian leprechaun.

"Coaching football is salesmanship. You've got to believe it," Parseghian concluded. "I'd like to recruit the whole nation."

BEFORE leaving the podium, Parseghian drew for the door prizes and then passed the football prizes to winners in the audience. (First toss right on target, second, ricocheted off the ceiling).

But behind the pleasant smile and bubbling enthusiasm, lies a man growing in the reputation of magician.

In 1954 at Miami of Ohio, Parseghian encouraged Indiana (Miami's opponent) in its misconception about a gap in the caliber of the two teams.

COMPLETING a psychological "snow job," Ara sent his players out for a Friday workout in Indiana's stadium in tattered practice uniforms, making them look more like a pack of alley urchins than a college football team.

The next day, Miami — suddenly neat, trim and purposeful — stunned Indiana, 6-0.

At Notre Dame, Parseghian probably won't have to call on such tricks to help win ball games.

NEVERTHELESS, when listening to this leprechaun, you can't help feeling that a man with the same abilities turned bad could probably commit the perfect crime.

Under Buckeye Skies

By KEN MACK McCREARY

There's not a doubt about it—February in Spectatorland is the busiest "indoor" month of the year for outdoorsmen. With conventions, conferences and awards banquets covering almost every day of the month, many of us haven't even had time to realize how close spring fishing weather is to being here.

Another pair of events of interest are on the agenda for this coming weekend.

Ken McCreary

ON Saturday night one of the Buckeye state's most outstanding sportsmen's organizations presents one of the most unusual banquets around these parts. It's the Annual Farmer Sportsmen Awards Dinner hosted by the Southeast Conservation Club of Columbus.

Each winter the SCC members take an evening to entertain and honor the many farmers who participate in the club's controlled hunting program.

In this outstanding program (which has become a model for many conservation groups across the midwest) farm owners across Franklin and nearby counties make their lands available each fall to thousands of hunters, both members of the club and non-members.

OVER THE past several years the controlled hunting plan has become so successful that there are now tens of thousands of acres of prime hunting territory made available in the heart of Ohio.

Recognizing the generous contributions of these hundreds of farmers, the Southeast boys honor them with a memorable evening of fellowship, entertainment and some of the most delicious home cooking ever to be heaped on a plate.

Guest speaker for this Saturday night's dinner will be Jack F. Kamman, assistant chief of the Ohio Wildlife Division. The festivities begin about 6 p.m. at the SCC Clubhouse on Hart-rd.

ALSO SLATED for this weekend is the seventh annual award dinner of the Buckeye Big Bucks Club on Saturday evening at 6:30 in the Coshocton American Legion Hall.

Topping the list of the "deer-slayers" to be honored for their trophy-sized deer of 1964 is Franklin Countian Hugh Cox, 6493 Broad-st, in Alton.

His 17-point buck scored right up with the best in the nation in the "non-typical" rack ratings of the Boone and Crockett Club, at 198 1/8 points.

OF THE 24 whitetails to qualify for "Big Bucks" honors the closest to Cox's huge trophy was one measuring 190 1/8 points taken in Perry County by Paul Helser of Glenford. You'll recall that Hugh Cox bagged his brute of a deer, in story-book fashion (last Oct. 9) the first day of the season with bow and arrow.

Two other local hunters qualified for the select Big Buck membership — Bob Dean, 1686 Oakwood-av, Columbus, ranked tenth in the "typical" class with a buck taken in Hocking County that measured 152 7/8 points.

Jim Palsgrove, 105 Ziegler-rd, Columbus, pulled down the 13th spot in the typical rankings with a Hocking County whitetail whose rack rated 147 6/8 points.

IT'S UNUSUAL to note that all three of these fine deer taken by Spectatorland hunters were taken in Hocking County . . . and, these were the ONLY Hocking County deer to win Big Buck honors.

A sweeping tip of the hat and heartiest congratulations to this trio of outstanding outdoorsmen!

A wrap-up note from the recent Outdoor Writers of Ohio convention: Governor Rhodes in addressing the scribes, revealed that the favorite magazine reading material for many Ohio sportsmen, "The Conservation Bulletin," published monthly by the Naturall Resources people, is going out of existence, as of June.

It will be replaced by a new, full-color effort called "The Wonderful World of Ohio," which will feature stories and pictures on a variety of topics, in addition to recreation and conservation.

MR. RHODES says the new magazine is expected to be one of the best in its field . . . with such colorful publications as "Arizona Highways" on the market, that's going to be going some.

COFFEE BREAK

Stay Fit, Look Trim - - - Just Take In Washing

By ADELINE DALEY

Much as I try to avoid reading those overly cheery articles which stress the numerous health benefits a woman can gain from doing housework, someone (like my husband) will point one out to me, obviously to bolster my spirits.

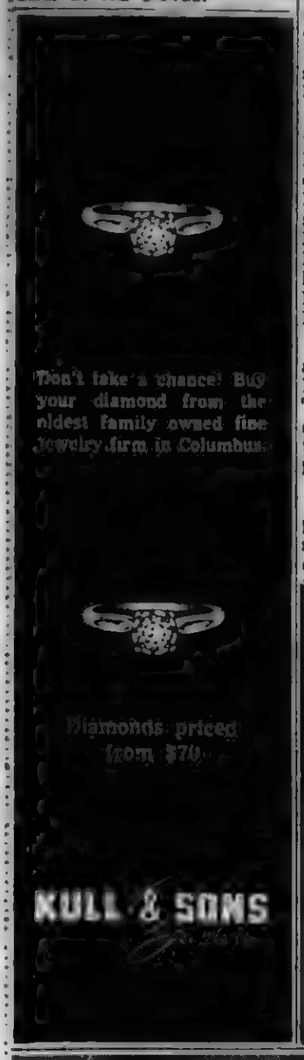
But I cannot say that I am especially enamoured with "I Vacuumed My Way Back to Health" or "The Housework Method of Staying Fit" or "Lose Weight — Take' in Washing."

The articles always start out by recommending that all household chores be thought of as a series of fun-loving calisthenics. Hanging out the wash, for instance is a wonderful limbering-up exercise.

Stooping to pick up toys and everybody else's clothes scattered about the house should be a delight because it's supposedly better than a weekend spent skiing. But tell me, why haven't I ended up with an 18-inch waistline?

I don't fancy those calorie charts, either, which show how you can burn up 280 calories by waxing the kitchen floor and another 375 by beating the rugs for an hour. Unfortunately, the pursuits I enjoy, such as watching television, burn up no more than 7½ calories an hour, providing you don't eat.

Not only does housework of the more animated variety improve your muscle tone, the reports add, but also inhaling those steamy vapors from the scrub bucket and dishpan are great—simply great — for clearing up the sinuses and bringing a nice, healthy glow to the cheeks.



The authors of these self-help articles probably mean well, but when I'm doing the housework, I, at least, want the privilege of being miserable about it. I don't want my family to start referring to the laundry room as "Mom's Health Spa"—anymore than I want my kids to compliment me for "breaking par" when I iron more than my quota in an hour.

What nettles me most, however, is that I seldom see an article which describes these same health rewarding benefits to a husband for pushing a lawnmower or washing windows.

In fact, the last article my husband cut out for me was entitled, "Don't Overwork Your Spouse in the House." It emphasized the importance of weekend rest and relaxation — for husbands. There was only one thing wrong with the article — it neglected to state how many calories I could burn up that afternoon when I pruned the pyracantha bush.

The Spectator Says:

By C. C. Hartley

A Visitor

We had a very interesting overnight guest last Tuesday, a young man from Costa Rica, Mr. Luis Pacheco.

Luis came to the United States last fall under the American Field Service program and his American "mother and father" are Mr. and Mrs. Ashley Molk, 7684 Dalglen-dr, Reynoldsburg.

He is regularly enrolled in Reynoldsburg High School and on his return to his native land next summer he hopes to start his studies toward becoming an attorney.

Luis, along with Christine Murray from England, Olle Murbeck from Sweden and Klaus-Peter Schroeder of Germany, appeared on the assembly program at Hilliard High School Tuesday morning.

Costa Rica, once a land of revolution and fighting, no longer has that problem, according to Luis, for they have demobilized their army and nobody takes it on himself to try to garner enough strength to conduct a revolution.

Presence of these young people from abroad is gaining many friends for their countries.

Some Figures —

State Department of Education folks claim that in the period from 1960-1970 the percentage of changes in employment in Ohio calls for an additional 55 percent in the professions, 25 percent in management, 30 percent in clerical, 28 percent in sales, 22 percent in craftsmen, 25 percent in service, 28 percent in non-farm agriculture and a decline of 12 percent in farmers and farm workers.

No additional laborers are needed in Ohio during this period!

These figures point to one obvious need — direction and a training program for young men and women of high school age so that upon graduation the 73 youngsters out of every 100 who do not go on to college can find gainful employment.

These are figures that need to be impressed on young people beginning in their junior high years. Tomorrow's good jobs may not come easy!

Welcome, 1st State!

PARENTS INVITED

Whitehall Teachers Evaluate School In Two-Day Session

All Whitehall Schools' students will have a two-day holiday Thursday and Friday, Mar. 4 and 5 while their teachers and administrators meet in workshop sessions in the high school to evaluate "What we are now teaching in kindergarten through 12th grade."

All subjects in the Whitehall curriculum will be critically examined, with an eye to topics that might be eliminated, as well as study areas that should be enlarged.

The workshop was arranged by the curriculum advisory council, with Mrs. Jeanne McElwee, fifth grade teacher at Beechwood Elementary, as chairman.

All interested parents are invited to attend, and may pick up an agenda at Whitehall-Yearling High School office.

The workshop will be comprised of sessions on departmental levels, representing language arts, social studies, mathematics, general sciences, music, health and physical education and the various arts.

Each meeting will examine the subject at all grade levels.

Four areas of study will report their findings back to the group. Language arts will report to the other three areas Thursday afternoon, and on Friday, Mar. 5, social studies from 9 to 10:30 a.m.; mathematics from 10:30 to noon and sciences, 1:30 to 3 p.m.

A summary of the four will close the session, from 3 to 4 p.m.

Departments of music, health and physical education, and the arts will spend the entire two days in individual sessions, and will not share their findings with other areas at that time.

'STICK TO REPORTS,' SIEMER TELLS ALL

Council, Mayor Feud Over Collingwood Job

By FRANK RYAN

The proposed Collingwood-av sewer project was the subject of two prepared speeches but no official action as Whitehall councilmen disposed of a relatively light agenda, Tuesday night.

Marvin H. Levine, council finance committee chairman, leveled charges of "playing politics" against Mayor William H. Holzhause. He challeged the mayor's stand advocating that both sewer installation and street resurfacing be scheduled as a single project.

Levine asked Holzhause to tell council what planned projects should be delayed to permit both Collingwood-av projects to be done at the same time. Said Levine:

"I challenge the mayor to come forth with a fiscal budget proving that it can all be done this year, or even next year."

Holzhause took up the challenge by quoting statistics he said showed that the city could finance the Collingwood-av projects this year, through normal bonding procedures, without delaying any other planned projects. "If council will cooperate, we can get these jobs done," Holzhause said.

The mayor's figures were disputed by Levine, City Auditor Walter Helber and City Solicitor Paul J. Haytcher.

Helber reported that if the city "bonded itself to the hilt," it would still be $70,000 short of meeting anticipated expenses for all currently listed capital improvement projects.

When the political oratory subsided, Council President Walter Siemer delivered a stern, extemporaneous reprimand to both sides for using their council "report" time to hurl political brickbats at each other.

"It appears," Siemer told the opposing factions, "that we are going to have a lot of arguing about facts. There is no reason why you can't sit down together and figure out what can be done, if you all begin at the same starting point."

Siemer concluded by telling his fellow elected officials: "When we are in reports, stick to reports."

A delegation of Collingwood-av residents attended the council session to back up a petition reportedly signed by 90 percent of the residents affected by the two proposed projects, and requesting that both jobs be done simultaneously. Councilmen Levine and Loren F. Mason, service committee chairman, assured the residents that their petition would get careful condisederation and study.

In other action, Council:

Approved an ordinance levying special assessments for water line installation in E. Main-st between Country Club-rd and Fairway-blvd, and a sanitary sewer project north of E. Main-st from Big Walnut Creek to a point 1,600 feet east of Country Club-rd.

Passed ordinance appointing a three-member Assessments Equalization Board to hear protests from residents affected by a Westphal-av storm sewer project.

Tabled until the Apr. 5 council meeting an ordinance to contract for erection of overhead traffic signs and re-session.

lated equipment at nine intersections.

Council also heard the reading of the mayor's two veto messages on ordinances to set new salary scales for all elected officials, except members of council, and abolishing the posts of tax commissioner and deputy auditor in favor of a full time auditor.

It is expected that council will attempt to override the vetoes at the Mar. 16 regular

Unique Book Shoppe Features Americana

By BETTY DAFT

The shared interest of 57 men and women in the story of America, as recorded in the country's literature and in today's history-in-the-making, is the cause of a brand new, unique business venture in Bexley.

Unique, indeed! The project is operated in serene disregard for all the established rules.

The shop is non-profit, and managed by volunteers who are not only unsalaried but actually pay for the privilege of working there. They are not members of an organization.

Their only common interest is a sincere desire to make available to the community a center specializing in literature to further our American heritage through books, pamphlets, prints, documents, congressional records and copies of bills, currently pending in Congress.

And if their progress in just three weeks of operation is a weathervane, the forecast spells success.

Everyone, adult and student alike, is invited to visit the shop, browse through the books and records, pick up free literature or borrow a book, as well as purchase a paperback or hardbound volume.

The entire stock emphasizes Americana, from a selection of parchment reproductions of documents at fifty cents, through colorful prints ranging from $1.50 to $3, and books for children as well as adults.

"We are operating on a pay-as-we-go plan," explained Mrs. Ted Brown, "buying books from all proceeds of the book sales, so we are building up our stock slowly—20 books from the Landmark series, for children in grades six through 10, are currently on order, as well as paperbacks for adults.

The project was launched by 57 interested men and women, mostly from the community, who made a cash contribution to pay for decorating the storeroom, furnishings and an initial stock.

They continue to contribute, money as well as time, to keep the store in operation.

"And everyone had a hand in the painting—we used gallons and gallons," Mrs. Brown explained laughingly, "and it seemed everything needed two coats."

Bright red carpeting, white paint for the walls and ceilings and unpainted furniture, finished by the group in black and bright blue with American eagle gold decals set the stage for the patriotic theme of the shop.

Other furnishings and decorative, period accents were added from contributions and through trading stamps donated for the purpose.

Contributions of books, new and used, hardbound and paperback, for children and adults, on the subject of Americana are being gratefully accepted to build up the shop's lending library.

The dedicated group envisions a center that will eventually become a center for the study of Americana.

"We have subscribed to the Congressional Record and it will be available every week that Congress is in session. And we would like to develop a reading area, where students may research a study project."

It was study of American history that finally triggered the group into action in establishing the book store.

"So many of us have children now studying the Revolutionary Period," Mrs. Brown explained, "and we wanted to make literature available to them, as well as to everyone in the community interested in the subject."

YE OLDE BOOK SHOPPE, in its third week of operation at 543 S. Drexel-av, is open to everyone in the community interested in American heritage works. The non-profit operation, staffed by volunteers, is open Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and features a lending library as well as books for sale. Browsers are welcome at the shop, located just north of E. Main-st.

'Y' Citizenship Project To Climax On Mar. 4

Thomas J. Quick, superintendent of County Schools and Elmer G. Lambert, chairman of the Franklin County Branch YMCA have announced that the YMCA Citizenship program which started the second week in February will continue until Mar. 4, when the elected student officers will participate in helping to run the government of the county for a day.

Students will be picked to fill county offices.

The project is planned to develop an interest in the processes of local government and to study the county as a functional unit in the governmental structure.

It is being sponsored by the citizenship committee of the Franklin County Branch YMCA.

The Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y Clubs of the county will have a major responsibility in carrying on this program as a service project in the 14 high schools in cooperation with the school administrators.

On Thursday, Mar. 4, some 30 student officials will meet with their respective county officials at a noon luncheon at the Downtown YMCA. Myron G. Gassaman, Judge of Court of Common Pleas, will be the speaker on state government.

The project is being directed by Dick Wilson, executive of the Franklin County Branch YMCA. The other members of the Citizenship Hi-Y/Tri-Hi-Y Committee are Earl W. Lane of Worthington School District, David Rathbone of Grove City High School, Mrs. Marian Smith of Mifflin High School and Rev. Merrill Mellott of the YMCA board of management.

SYMPHONY TRUSTEES AID FUND DRIVE

BOARD OF TRUSTEES of the Columbus Symphony receive pledge cards for the maintenance fund campaign, at the Conductor's Club meeting Feb. 19, from Miss Marianne Mathews. From left are, A. F. The orchestra, in expanding its functions for the 1965-66 season, increases the cost of maintenance. The maintenance fund drive must raise $110,000 in order to meet the demands placed on the orchestra.

Debate Team Is Capital U's Most Traveled Inter-College Squad

Ever hear of a coach who wanted to be hanged in effigy?

Try Tom Ludlum, Capital University debate mentor.

He has yet to be baptized with this traditional "status symbol." But, as he humorously points out: "Maybe such an event would help to create more of an interest on the part of the student body, as well as the public, to take in a debate once in a while."

For 15 years — seven at Capital—Tom has been plying his trade within the confines of forensic leagues, but he has yet to reach the dubious plateau of seeing himself lopsidedly hanging from the branch of a tree in the form of a grotesque dummy with some such nonsensical phrase as "Ludlum Must Go," or "Down With Debate" attached.

"It could make you think that others don't care," he mused.

But there is one person who does care about the debate team, and that is Ludlum. An old debater (he met his wife—she was on the negative side, he the positive—in a high school forensic match), Tom is always anxious to see his proteges improve and perform in the manner to which debating has become accustomed.

Here are some little-known facts concerning those who enjoy a verbal bout:

Capital's debate team almost every year travels farther than any other squad competing in intercollegiate activities.

The debaters also travel to more diverse areas, such as Illinois, Indiana, North Carolina and Massachusetts. Here they talk and argue against such "major school" powers as University of Chicago, Purdue, Wake Forest and Harvard.

Overall, the Capital debaters have won 60 to 67 percent of their matches, a better than average won - lost ratio.

Neither does the coach have to worry about how his team does on "the road" versus the "home" argument, since most of Cap's debates are "away" from the friendly confines of Spielman Hall. (Even Tom has mentioned that it is a "poor host who wins his own tournament.")

In addition, Ludlum is just as likely to go with his "second stringers" as with his "big guns" in certain events.

"That has to be clarified to some extent," Ludlum explains. "Whatever it come to the big events, tournaments such as a state or national championship, I use the debaters with the most experience, skill and know-how."

But he also admits that students on the sophomore level have a good chance to participate in numerous debates (six this year have seen plenty of argumentative action). "They have to get the experience somehow, and they surely can't get it sitting on the bench, so to speak," he reasons.

Technique Counts

In referring to the won-lost record, Ludlum notes in order to receive invitations to top caliber tournaments, it's not whether you win or not, but how you debate.

Furthermore, the size of the school is not a factor, whether a team comes from a small college category or from a major university. The difference is in what type of debaters you have — how good they are in affirming or negating a particular question.

Since the large tournaments are usually invitational, "If you don't debate well, you aren't invited back," Ludlum has found.

He also feels that Capital is in an excellent proximity to where the bigger debate tournaments are held.

Also, that other biological species, the female, is not barred from participating on the squad.

As a consequence, Tom has noted certain geographical peculiarities concerning the winning side of a debate — something in which logic does not enter: "Whenever we go South, and if we use girls, we usually win. In the Midwest, the boys usually end up the victor."

But despite his involvement with the debate teams and as head of the Capital University speech department, Tom still finds time to stroll through the campus, especially in the morning after a particularly close loss the evening before, gazing up into the trees and searching, hopefully, to see an unaccustomed form dangling from a tree. "Some day . . . maybe, some day . . ."

Belva Wise Becomes Mrs. Krumm During Ceremony At Faith Lutheran

Vases of white and pink carnations and snapdragons decorated the altar of Faith Lutheran Church, Whitehall, for the ceremony that united Miss Belva Jean Wise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Wise of 4174 Powell-av and Mr. Robert Lee Krumm, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Krumm, 4608 Belfast-dr.

Rev. David R. Risch read the Jan. 30 afternoon vows.

The bride chose a floor-length bouffant gown of chantilly lace featuring a fitted bodice, below elbow-length sleeves and empire waistline. A narrow insert at the waist emphasized the full chapel train at the back.

A circlet of pearlized orange blossoms with a high rise tiara held her double veil of illusion and she carried a cascade of pink roses and trailing ivy.

The bride's cousin, Miss Becky Hunkins, honor attendant, wore a floor-length gown of emerald green chiffon over satin. Her gown was enhanced with a gently circled neckline and below elbow-length sleeves. The skirt was attached to a waistline band of matching satin.

The headpiece of emerald stylized flowerettes held her bouffant jet veil and she carried pink and white carnations.

Miss Lora Wise, sister of the bride, served as junior bridesmaid. She chose a long dress of nylon sheer in rose. The waistline was defined by a ribbon insert and finished in back with a double Dior bow. She also carried pink and white carnations.

Mr. Kenneth Squires was best man and Mr. Don Krumm ushered the guests.

MRS. ROBERT LEE KRUMM

Mrs. Krumm is a graduate of Whitehall Yearling High School and is employed at Western Electric. Mr. Krumm is employed at Big Bear Stores Inc.

Twyford Takes Tax Fight To State Level

A city income tax "reform bill" calling for a tax-sharing plan could be introduced into the present session of the Ohio General Assembly as early as next Monday, it has been revealed by Reynoldsburg Mayor George W. Twyford.

Twyford confirmed a meeting with an unidentified state legislator, "from outside Franklin County," who has tentatively agreed to sponsor legislation along the lines advocated by the suburban mayor. Twyford said the measure he discussed with the state lawmaker would call for a return of 25 percent of taxes collected from non-residents to the "home" community.

Under terms of the proposed legislation, the "resident" community would not be required to have an income tax in effect to become eligible for the refund. The law, Twyford explained, would not prohibit taxing of non-residents, nor would it force reciprocity agreements.

Twyford explained that he is not attempting to by-pass the Franklin County Mayors Council in working for presentation of a specific bill. He said:

"I appreciate the fact that the Mayors Council has agreed to the formation of a committee to consider drafting of a law change. But I think they will also appreciate my concern that legislation be introduced in time to be acted upon by the current session of the legislature.

"While my primary concern is for the people of Reynoldsburg, what I am asking will also benefit virtually all areas represented by the members of the council. I will keep the Mayors Council study committee apprised of my actions, and I certainly want — in its final draft — a bill to which they can add their wholehearted support."

In agreeing to consider Twyford's request for support, Mayors Council President William Schneider (Bexley) appointed a five-member committee to bring back for consideration a specific plan. The committee is expected to report back at the Apr. 7 meeting of the council.

The lone negative vote on the action by the Mayors Council came from Paul J. Haytcher, Whitehall city solicitor. Haytcher said that the problem should be worked out on the local level.

Whitehall has a city income tax lay similar to that in Columbus. But, because the Columbus General Depot is located in both Columbus and Whitehall, the suburban city gains more tax money from Columbus residents than what Whitehall residents pay to Columbus.

Twyford explained that he is "working both sides of the street" because any hope for legislative action during the current session will vanish if a bill is not introduced well in advance of the scheduled May quitting time set by the legislators.

He said that the first immediate problem is to determine the constitutionality of the tax-sharing formula he is now inclined to support. The proposal will be referred to the Legislative Service Commission. If deemed consistent with the Ohio Constitution, it will be introduced in the legislature.

Bishop Elected To Whitehall's Recreation Post

John Bishop, 4482 Chandler-dr, chairman Whitehall Recreation Board, was re-elected to his fourth one-year term in the post Feb. 24.

Bishop is a candidate for councilman in the city's primary election to be held in May.

Also re-elected for his fourth term as vice-president was Harold Fleck, 4486 St. Ann-ln.

About 300 questionnaires, circulated by the recreation board to determine citizens' opinions on a new recreation center for the city, have not been returned and are needed to complete the study.

Those having the forms are asked to return them to city hall, or call John La Corte, recreation director.

New 'Tween' Activity Set At Center

Krupnick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart M. Krupnick, is musician and folk singer. He has appeared with Gallery Players, Gallery Stagecrafters, and Gallery teens.

Last spring he made an appearance as piano soloist with the Jewish Center Orchestra.

'Showcase' Features Art 'All Around Town'

Symphony orchestra concerts, art exhibits, lectures, dramatic presentations and band concerts, taking place "all around the town," are especially spotlighted in Columbus during the Winter Showcase Of The Arts, Feb. 24 through Mar. 6.

The Showcase, planned by the Arts Council, was devised to acquaint the public in 10 days with the wide scope of cultural events and exhibits available throughout the year, as typified. Mrs. Frank Bentley is chairman.

Although most activities were scheduled months ago, a few were especially arranged, including a showing of the works of 21 local artists, opening on the 24th at the Columbus Gallery of Fine Arts. A showing of award-winning architecture by the AIA is also on exhibit at the gallery.

Purpose of the "Showcase" is to encourage people to attend an artistic event, an art exhibit or a concert.

Airline Airs Air Traffic

High-rise apartments and new downtown buildings indicate everything's going up in Columbus. Evidently, this includes the airlines.

Lake Central reports 7,862 passengers boarded or deplaned here in January this year compared to 7,085 for the same month last year.

The firm also reported 74,689 units of air mail, air express and air freight were handled in January compared to only 46,797 units for the same month a year ago. Air freight showed the greatest increase, up 40.4 percent.

School's Second Winner

W-Y Junior Is Named Top Science Student

For the second consecutive year a Whitehall - Yearling High student has earned honors for himself and distinguished his school by earning Columbus Technical Council's "Science Student Of The Year" award.

Kendall Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Lewis of 418 S. Yearling-rd, received the award at the council's annual banquet meeting held at the Neil House Feb. 24.

Gary Stein won the award during his senior year at Whitehall last year. He is now studying at Case Institute on a scholarship.

Kendall, a junior, is a product of Whitehall school system, attending the city's schools since the first grade.

Described by his principal, Austin Peel as "an unusually gifted student — one of his kind comes along once in about 30 years," Kendall is especially interested in mathematics and the sciences.

Following high school he plans to study for a career in engineering, probably electrical, and hopes to achieve a doctor's degree in the field.

Accompanying the Science Student of the Year award was $250 for Kendall, and a $100 gift to his school. Kendall and his teacher, James E. Ackley, will also be the guests of Western Electric Co., Inc., on a three-day tour of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, Murray Hill, N. J.

Peel credits Kendall's teachers, Ackley and James L. Davis, for their leadership and help in channeling his abilities.

The son of an architect, Kendall's younger brother and sisters are also excellent students. Stuart, eight, and 11-year-old Karen are pupils at Etna Road Elementary, and Kathy, 13, is studying in advanced classes at Rosemore Junior High.

Kendall also enjoys music and plays guitar in his own combo.

A SERIES OF LENTEN forums will be conducted for Catholic high school young people and their guests at St. Catharine's parish auditorium on the six Sundays of Lent, 7 p.m. The parish CYC is sponsoring the forums. Planners include, from left, Patty Casson, Vicki Altman and Cyndie Gardner.

CYC Conducts Lenten Forums For Community Young People

St. Catharine's Church for the next six Sundays will be the scene of a series of Lenten discussions sponsored by the Catholic Youth Council.

On each of the Sundays of Lent, beginning Mar. 7, 7 p.m., a special program will be presented on the problems and decisions which face today's teenagers. All Catholic students of high school age, and their guests, are invited to attend the forums.

In charge of arrangements are Fr. Carl Drake, assistant pastor of St. Catharine's and parish moderator; Patty Casson, program chairman and emcee for the forums; Jan Mirvis, publicity chairman; Jim Coffman, St. Catharine's council president.

The schedule of forum discussions includes:

Mar. 7—"Death Rides With You." The State Highway Patrol presents a film record of traffic mayhem and discusses the proposed change in the legal driving age and the driving curfew for teenagers.

March 14 — "Front Page Kids." Representatives from the Juvenile Bureau of Columbus and the Ohio Youth Commissions discuss juvenile delinquency and the approaches in dealing with delinquents.

Mar. 21 — "Booze and Pot." A representative from Alcoholics Anonymous will discuss the problem of teenage drinking, family problems caused by parental drinking and the related question of narcotics and teenagers.

Mar. 28 — "Youth Does Care" will present the Peace Corps and lay missionary organizations through the words of young people who have recently returned from serving with these groups.

Apr. 4 — "We Shall Overcome . . .", a discussion of the problem of race relations here in Columbus and the progress being made by those involved in interracial work here.

Apr. 11 — "How Far Can I Go?" Parents and priest give their side to the question of dating: How soon? How often? Can parents and teenagers agree on the rules?

Drivers Set Own Rates

Auto insurance rate hikes expected this year can be attributed to increases in frequency and severity of traffic accidents and the rising costs of repairing bodies, both human and automobiles, according to insurance underwriters.

"It is literally true that auto insurance rates are determined on the streets and highways by the way we drive," said J. Robert Oelberg, executive director of Ohio Insurance Information Service, Inc. "There'll be no respite from this vicious cycle as long as people keep maiming and killing each other at an ever increasing rate."

DeSales, Worthington, Share District Mat 'Driver's Seat'

Those in the know pick either DeSales or Worthington (with the former by an eyelash) as new District wrestling champ when the final points are tallied late Saturday at Franklin Heights.

Jack Harold's Stallions, fresh from a Central Catholic crowning two weekends ago, placed eight grapplers in the District lineup after sectional warfare last weekend.

WORTHINGTON, tutored by Bob McCann and featuring the area's most potent one-two punch in brothers Paul and Alan Mitchell, nabbed seven District slots and are sporting their loop (CBL) laurels also.

Only other area team with such representation are the recent South Suburban kings — Bob Twiss's Franklin Heights Falcons (also seven entries).

Deadlocked at six berths apiece are West (who scored big in the middle and heavier weights) and defending District champion East.

ONLY OTHER area team to muster more than four berths was Groveport who claimed five. The Cruisers are currently garbed with the Mid-Eight crown.

Biggest shocker of the sectionals was Brookhaven's inability to nab berths (only three). The Bearcats copped the City League crown two weeks ago.

Pairings for the District competition were conducted Tuesday evening at Franklin Heights (too late for deadline).

THREE DEFENDING '64 champs — Pleasant View's Chuck Driesback (112), Whitehall's Steve Berry (120) and Worthington's Paul Mitchell (127) — are the only entries to get the "automatic" top seeding.

The District fare will get under way on the Falcon mats Friday at 7 p.m. with action resuming Saturday at 2 p.m.

Admission charge is $1 for adults and 50 cents for students Friday with everyone putting up a single bill for Saturday's finals.

Finalists and runnerups in to the state competition leve, scheduled Friday and Saturday, Mar. 12-13 at OSU.

HERE ARE participants in the Friday-Saturday District Meet: 103 — Tom Hartman (UA), Sam Graham (Whetstone), Andy Moss (Granville), Bill Alspach (Groveport), Vic Vance (Franklin Hgts.), Dave Sherman (Central), Gary Rapp (Brookhaven) and Ralph Cox (East).

112 — Steve Cheeks (Jonathan Alder), Nathan Nietz (UA), Roy Leonard (Eastmoor), Jeff Nelle (GP), Chuck Driesbach (Pleasant View), Dick Grambo (F-H), Charles Bartee (Blind School) and Steve Arnold (DeSales).

120 — Dick Freeman (University), Gary O'Keefe (Grandview), Steve Beery (Whitehall), Tim Wolf (GP), Rick Erbe (PV), Tim Miles (West), Brad Burbacher (BH) and Ted Robinson (Blind School).

127 — Paul Mitchell (Worthington), Bob Hartman (UA), John Jordan (GP), Spike Ludwig (Wh), Bill Paxton (Ready), Charles Martin (Circeville), Jake Holloway (East) and Brian McNamara (Watterson).

133 — Alan Mitchell (Wo), Terry O'Keefe (Grandvw), Steve Roberts (Walnut Ridge), Randy Catalina (Wh), Jim O'Harra (F-H), John Holley (West), Mike Mahoney (DeS) and Marshall Evaline (Linden).

138 — Roger Ramey (Wo), Darrell Young (Alder), Wes Seymour (Wh), Pete Johnson (EM), Don Morris (F-H), Clay Clark (West), Dave Kauder (DeS) and Clarence Bennett (East).

145—Rod Block (Grandvw), Rod Fisher (Wo), Paul Burkey (Hartley), Mike Sullivan (E-M), Darnell Thomas (West), Alan McGath (Grove City), Tilton Reed (East) and Wayne Hiles (DeS).

154—Mike Saunders (UA), John Chrystal (Wo), Pat Burkey (Hartley), Jay Collins (EM), Benny King (West), Fred Scolieri (F-H), Gary Rispress (East) and Rick Claprood (DeS).

165—Jerry Wright (Whet), Ron Thomas (Alder), Brian White (GP), Jack Brown (W-R), Jerry Reibel (PV), Sam Blankenship (F-H), Mike DeAscentis (DeS) and Fritz Goss (BH).

175—Frank Lowery (Wo), Bill Wilson (Whet), John Cruse (W-R), Tom Karseman (Granville), Mike Long (F-H), Ed Smith (West), Bill Owen (Westerville) and Ray Dordinger (DeS).

HWT — Mark Foster (University), Mark Folk (Wo), John Bayly (Hartley), Dave Walter (W-R), Jim Starkey (Circleville), John Cooley (G-C), Perry Evans (DeS) and Roland Martin (East).

MAC INTRUDES — Gahanna's Mike McGuire just won't let well enough alone as far as Hartley's Dave Thomas (left) was concerned Saturday at the Coliseum, barging in to take a hunk of this rebound. Hawks' Frank Tafoya employs "hands off" policy in rear.

THE HARD WAY — Eastmoor's Gary Cochran (42) takes a pass from a Warrior teammate the hard way Friday in AA District cage play at the Coliseum. E-M made things tougher on opponent North, advancing in tourney play with a 78-54 verdict over the Bears. (Tourney photos by Wittenmeier and O'Harra)

DOUG 'PARKED' — Hartley's Doug Parker (right) put the brakes on any scoring ideas Gahanna's Mike Shaffer might have had here during Saturday AA District play at the Coliseum by parking between Shaffer and the basket. Hartley scrambled from behind to topple the Lions, 57-56.

TOURNEY PLOT THICKENS AS . . .

Lions, East, Hawks, Warriors Stay Alive

Four area quintets remained 'alive' in the Central District 'AA' firing after last week's action that saw Bexley, Eastmoor, Hartley and East pull through with first-round triumphs.

Hartley narrowly escaped Gahanna, 57-56, as the Hawks rallied from a six-point deficit (44-38) to outscore the Lions 19-12 in the last stanza.

SHARP-SHOOTING Frank Tafoya always hit the clutch bucket for the Hawks while Doug Parker's tip-in with 37 seconds set up Tafoya's winning 21-footer with just seven seconds to go.

The Hawks (16-3) now face Reynoldsburg (10-8) tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in the Coliseum. The Raiders are riding a three-game win streak and feature Jon Heischman (18.2) and 6'3 Craig Shade (13.3).

East eliminated Whitehall, 65-37, after compiling a convincing 20-11 first period cushion. In the third period, John (31-point) Lewis really opened up and helped the Tigers (12-5) to a 50-27 lead that made 13 by Ram John McQuaid go down the drain.

THE RAMS closed out with a 7-12 slate for the year.

The Bob Hart Bengals will test Brookhaven (8-9) tomorrow at 6:30 in the Coliseum.

Eastmoor romped to a convincing 78-54 win over North after erupting for a 30-13 lead that dwindled to 11 at halftime.

All five Warrior starters hit the twin digits with Steve Howell's 26 leading spark-plug Jerry Groves (14), Doug Cromer, Gary Cochman and Ron Bollie (12 each).

BILL COURTNEY'S Warriors (11-6) face Hamilton Twp. (10-7) tonight at the Coliseum (8:30) and must stop All-leaguers Dale Russell (17.7) and Rog Ellis (14.3).

If the Weyant-av five triumphs, they'll meet the West-Worthington winner Saturday night at the same place (9:30). A crack at the former is what E-M wants most.

Gene Millard 'tigered' his Lions up against favored Marysville last week and the Big Blue bounced the Monarchs, 58-50, after nursing a two-bucket edge all the way through.

DAVE JOHNSTON, Dave Frasch and Rob Wells all threw in 13 and received 10-point support from captain Bill Salt. The Lions (8-10) trek to Arlington tonight to meet Whetstone (3-14) and aces Jud Boley (17.6) and Dick Rahn (17.5). If Bexley wins, South (16-1) will be Saturday's 5 p.m. Coliseum foe.

Pleasant View held Walnut Ridge to a pair of field goals in the first half but still only held an 18-13 lead at halftime enroute to a 49-47 victory over the Scots (2-15).

Tony McHale's two charities with 16 seconds left offset a Zeke Barber bucket for W-R who received 17 from versatile Pat Beveridge and 10 from forward Rick Houchen.

ST. CHARLES dropped its last game ever, a tight 28-25 verdict to arch-rival Aquinas at Ashville. Dick Geyer's stalling tactics backfired late in the game after the Cards (6-11) pulled even at 24-all.

Joe Van Balen's nine, Tim Rooney's six, Joe DiCesare's five and two each by Buzz Hummer, Mike Dietlin and Jack Ryan rounded out the final Card cage scoring column.

Academy closed out an 11-8 John Fulford completed the campaign after falling to St. Mary, 53-50. Big Pete Bigelow's 15, 10 each by Joe Lanman, Terry Larrimer and Viking scoring.

SILLS Plans Tenpin Event

The Southern Independent Little League is planning for its first annual Headpin Tournament at Rainbow Lanes, on Mar. 13, 14, 20, 21, 27, 28, from noon till 6 p.m. each Saturday and Sunday, and from 9 p.m. till midnight on Saturdays.

Prize lists for men are $75, $25 and $15. For the women $50 first prize, $15 for second prize and $10 for third prize. This is the first attempt for the Little League in running a headpin tournament, and they hope every one possible will attempt to take their chance at hitting the magic pin, and taking home the prize money.

At a recent meeting of the club members, the opening date for the season is May 24. The boys will participate in 18 regular season games, to be played at the J and K Motors Sales Park on Lockbourne-rd, just south of Refugee-rd. Plans are for an All-Star game and a Sponsors Day Program, as well as an end of the season tournament, with the dates yet to be announced.

Under the leadership of their president, Jim Malloy, the SILL is getting an early start showing what can be done with leadership and full cooperation of the league's membership.

RESORT LAKE IS READY AND WAITING

LAKE CHOCTAW IS FULL — The spillway at Lake Choctaw is getting an early workout. Recent rains and snow have filed the new resort lake to capacity and water began flowing over and through the spillway for the first time last week. Over half the lots bordering the two-mile lake are sold and American Realty Corporation, developers, anticipate all lots will be sold at the end of the upcoming summer season.

Local Savings And Loan's Among Ohio's Largest

Buckeye Federal is the largest in the county with assets of $128 million and savings of $115 million. It ranks 13th in the state. First Federal ranks 23rd with assets of $80 million and savings of $72 million.

Other Franklin County associations in the top 100 are: Ohio Federal (35th) with assets of $65 million and savings of $57 million; Dollar Federal (39th) with assets of $56 million and savings of $49 million; Franklin Federal (46th) with assets of $46 million and savings of $41 million; State Savings (47th) with assets of $46 million and savings of $41 million.

Park Federal (53rd) with assets of $41 million and savings of $35 million; Ohio State Federal (74th) with assets of $31 million and savings of $28 million; Main Federal (83rd) with assets of $29 million and savings of $26 million.

Ohio Bankers Approve Issues

Unanimous endorsement of the four state issues to be presented to Ohio voters on the May ballot was announced today by the Ohio Bankers Association.

If passed, the measures will provide financial assistance for the state's young people for higher education — provide $290,000,000 for education and capital improvements for the state of Ohio, provide for reapportionment of the state legislature to fulfill the requirements of the United States Supreme Court ruling on this question and provide means of financing new industry and expansion of present industry in the state.

BLIND TEACHER HONORED

WITH PRIDE, Mrs. W. Raymond Niday watched as her husband received the Charles W. Medick Award for "his example of courage, faith and triumph over many obstacles," and was named Franklin County's outstanding blind citizen for 1964. The award was presented by Dwight Swepston, right, who served on the selection committee appointed by the Columbus Association for the Blind. Niday and his dog, Heidi, are well known throughout the state, and at the Ohio State School for the Blind from which he retired last year after 42 years of teaching.

Easter Seal Drive Opens

Ninety-thousand sheets of Easter Seals were in the mail last week to local city and county residents signaling the start of the 1965 Easter Seal campaign for the Franklin County Society for Crippled Children on Mar. 1.

"This year's appeal, which continues through Easter Sunday, Apr. 18, is one of the most important in the 44-year history of the Easter Seal Society," said Dr. Jimmy Hull, honorary chairman of the campaign.

"The reason is as simple as this—the number of crippled children and adults increases every year and, in direct ratio, so does the need for more money to give them care and treatment," he added.

Ohio Bell reports that the continuing strong demand for its services raised revenues last year by 5.9 percent to $357,208,000, while operating expenses climbed 8.3 percent.

Construction expenditures for the year topped $100 million for the first time as the company's total plant investment went over the billion dollar mark.

Western Electric Reduces Prices As Costs Soar

Despite increases of 88 percent in wages and 36 percent in raw materials costs since 1950, Western Electric Company continues to effect reduction of prices for products it manufactures for Bell Telephone Companies.

Newest reduction, effective Mar. 1, will result in an aggregate decrease of $33 million a year at current business levels, and brings the price level of production for Bell Telephone to 16 percent below the 1950 level.

Western Electric President Paul A. Gorman attributes the price reductions to increases in volume deriving from Bell Telephone's expanded construction programs, and to WE's continuing program of cost reduction engineering.

ELDERCARE
...better care than Medicare

Here's why the Herlong-Curtis Eldercare Bill, HR 3727, is the best answer to the health care needs of people over 65

MORE BENEFITS FOR THE ELDERLY

Eldercare would provide a wide range of hospital and medical services for the elderly—much more than Medicare.

	ELDERCARE	MEDICARE
Physicians' Care	YES	NO
Surgical Costs	YES	NO
Drugs — In and out of Hospital	YES	NO
Hospital & Nursing Home Charges	YES	YES

LESS COST TO THE TAXPAYERS

Eldercare offers more care for the elderly who need help, but would cost less because it does not provide benefits for the wealthy and well-to-do. Eldercare would not require a new payroll tax. It would be financed by federal-state funds through a program that already exists.

By contrast, the Medicare tax plan would increase payroll taxes to provide benefits for everyone over 65, the wealthy included. Furthermore, the Medicare tax would hit hardest those least able to pay. The $5,600-a-year worker would pay as much tax as the $56,000 executive.

Your doctors, who care for the elderly, support Eldercare because it also assures free choice of physician and hospital . . . provides for protection through Blue Cross, Blue Shield and health insurance policies . . . and lets people over 65 qualify for benefits before illness strikes — without a welfare type investigation.

Whatever Became Of Two Plus Two?

By ADELINE DALEY

I don't know what the official PTA stand on the matter is, but I'm against helping children with homework, particularly the older ones. Furthermore, the accelerated teaching program being what it is, I think the second grade is none too soon for the breaking-off point.

Otherwise, as an adult, you feel mighty ridiculous struggling with the forms of algebra, geometry and calculus being palmed off as arithmetic or the "New Math," as it is more popularly known.

Of course, there was a peaceful although short period when the "New Math" was introduced in the schools, in which you could use as an excuse to your kids, "Honey, I'd love to help you, but I learned arithmetic the old way, so I would only confuse you."

But what happens? The school districts began offering special night classes to adults on the new form. Some visenheimer, even sent me a handbook entitled, "How Parents Can Learn the New Math Concept." Once I master it, I intend to hire myself out teaching Einstein's Theory of Relativity.

Then there is also "New Science" to contend with. At least, it's "new" to me, because I can't remember studying atoms, electrons and protons in junior high school. In fact, all I know about that subject I picked up from seeing Greer Garson play the title role in "Madame Curie" in which she, Paul Muni and M-G-M discovered radium.

So you can see that I'm handicapped when Patrice asks me to explain the principle behind the cathode ray tube, or is it the cathode ray tube behind the principal? It would be nice if I could refer some of the science questions to the father of my children. Unfortunately, I am not married to Dr. Robert Oppenheimer.

At least there's nothing too new in astronomy, which Brian is now studying in grade six, for I can still recognize such constellations as the Big Dipper and the Great Bear. That is, I can find them in the textbook. My problem is locating them in the heavens since there are no connecting dots to guide you.

Our kids for some reason think of me as a storehouse of information — especially about ten minutes before they are due to leave for school.

"Tell me everything you know about Benjamin Franklin," I will be asked breathlessly, because obviously a report is due that morning. Now I know why I'm called a "walking encyclopedia," because I walked all over the house that morning, reading aloud the facts about Franklin's life. It was the day I vowed that from then on they were on their own.

Of course, that was some eight years and six kids ago.

Let's End Transit Stalemate

Columbus city officials—and particularly members of council—have done it again! They have chosen the route of "stalemate" in another matter of vital interest to the Central Ohio Community. This time it involves the future of mass transit.

The pattern is similar to that followed in establishing a "stop-gap" water rate hike two years ago — an action that is beginning to look like one of those "temporary" federal tax laws.

In each instance, responsible community leadership made an honest attempt to take the city politicians "off the hook" by making recommendations free of political partisanship. In each instance, the "city fathers" had the benefit of qualified, proven ability. In each instance the politicians responded with incoherent mumblings which said neither yes nor no.

Time is growing ever more important in the matter of the mass transit future for Greater Columbus. Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. announced two years ago that it will divest itself of the Columbus Transit Co. when the current franchise with the city expires June 30, 1966.

The city must adopt one of two main courses of action; negotiate a new franchise with a new transit company owner, or establish a transit authority and put the city into the transit business. And while the current 10-year franchise has 16 months to run, a decision must be reached well in advance if there is to be an orderly transition.

The last two city administrations have been less than courageous in their approaches to the transit problem. But the main decision (indecision to date) is a function of councilmen. It is council which must approve the course of action to be taken.

The Citizens Transit Study Committee has been re-activated. In cooperation with the Development Committee for Greater Columbus, this group of responsible community leaders will review what has happened since they made original recommendations to council. The plan is to make a clear-cut recommendation on the question of private-versus-public ownership of a mass transit operation.

We hope that the DCGC and the CTSC will demand that city council give a clear-cut yes or no answer to their recommendations — and then act accordingly.

And while we're on the subject of inaction at City Hall, maybe councilmen and/or the administration will tell us soon what progress, if any, is being made on the much-talked-about cost-of-service study within the city's water division.

Ballot Issues Merit Thoughtful Study

The public will become ever more aware during the next few weeks that there are four statewide issues to be voted upon at the May primaries. Following is a listing of the issues in order of their appearance on the ballot.

1. Would permit students to borrow for college education from banks and various other lending agencies, with most of the loans being backed up by the faith and credit of the state. The students would be responsible for repaying the loans.

2. Authorizes a $290 million bond issue for industrial development, higher education, mental hygiene and correction, public school facilities, parks and recreation and other projects. Up to $20 million a year would be taken from general revenue funds for interest and principal charges. Borrowing authority would terminate in 1970.

3. Provides for apportionment of the Ohio House of Representatives in accordance with the United States Supreme Court decision of June 15, 1964, and on order by a District Court, directing submission of such a proposal to a vote of the people in 1965.

4. Permits the state and local governments to make and guarantee loans for industrial development.

These are issues of vital interest to all Ohioans. They command thoughtful study by all voters. It should also be remembered that those who do not wish to cast a partisan ballot may request an "issues only" ballot when they vote on May 4.

An Editor's Outlook . . .

by Jenkin Lloyd Jones

JARVIS LAKE, Alberta — Underneath the wings of the Royal Canadian Air Force slip millions of square miles on which no human beings live.

In the summer the Arctic tundra is clouded with mosquitoes and black flies, sprinkled with pools and muskeg bogs. In the winter the land is dead under the howling polar winds and even a well-dressed man has only a few hours to make himself a house.

Jones

Below the Arctic lies "the bush," first a sparse band of stunted trees and shrubs, then the beginnings of fir and spruce, and finally Canada's glory, the great conifer forests which come down to the city limits of Montreal and Vancouver.

Men who are dismayed by this wilderness die easily. In winter they flounder in the snow. Their wet clothing robs their bodies of its heat, and in dumb misery they lose the will to resist and sink into a sleep. In summer they beat their way down the watercourses, spurred by panic, until their tins of food are gone and starvation overcomes them.

Yet the great North is friendly to men who are wise in its ways. And to impart this wisdom to its own men, as well as to invited guests from the U.S. Air Force and Navy, is the function of the RCAF Survival Training Center based at Namao, a few miles north of Edmonton.

Few students in the world are more strongly motivated, for the penalty for bad grades is hunger.

The school commander is 39-year-old Squadron Leader Richard G. Connick, a former Mountie who speaks Eskimo and who knows how to bring in a murderer by dogsled. Connick is not the pampering kind. Last summer in order to find out how rubber dinghies would behave in mountain streams he led 22 volunteers, including three U.S. Navy men, on a six-day expedition down the boiling Fraser River. Each man had one-day's ration. The hungry conclusion: a half-filled dinghy rides better than a dry one.

The Jarvis Lake camp lies 210 miles west of Edmonton on the shoulder of the Rockies and at the edge of Jasper National Park. The snow is two feet deep — temperature minus five. Eighteen men are on their seventh day of a two-week course. Their beards are growing impressive. Their lean-to's, fashioned of pine branches and parachute cloth are neatly-made.

But there is still work to be done on snares. Old Mike Kelly, who runs a trap line with his Indian wife when he is not instructing, appraises a series of wire loops on top of a branch slanted against a tree.

"This wire has kinks in it," says Mike.

"It will never catch squirrels."

A rabbit snare pleases him no better.

"The boy thought of everything except the crosspiece that forces the rabbit to duck his head into the noose. As the thing stands it's worthless."

Down on the lake young Tom Roycroft, another woods expert, chops through thick ice and pulls out a tangled net, set the day before by students.

"No fish," he mourns, "and the net is bloody awful —twisted like a dancer's skirt."

The mistakes must be cured quickly, for in the next three days the men are to be turned loose in the woods to fend for themselves separately. Their rations will provide only 500 calories a day. The chow hall and the PX are only memories.

And worse is to come. From Jarvis Lake they will be flown to Resolute Bay on Cornwallis Island in the Arctic Ocean. They will be met by Eskimo instructors and half-finished igloos. In a few hours the students are supposed to have them finished, and the next morning in the Arctic darkness they begin to build their own. Then the desperate business of seal-stalking and ice-fishing gets under way.

"Civilized man dies where primitive man thrives," says Flight Lt. Kenneth R. Stacey, in charge of the Jarvis camp.

"Sir John Franklin's 129 men vanished back in 1848 in an area where the Eskimos were fat. Our job is to make pilots and crewmen half as smart as the natives until rescue planes can find them."

And Mike Kelly says:

"You get a porcupine with two wallops of a stick —one on the back to straighten him out and the second on the nose which kills him deader than a mackerel. Foxes are supposed to be clever but they'll fall into a beehive trap made of piled-up stones if you put any bait in it. Labrador tea makes a great drink if you recognize the bush. Wild cranberries are fine, but baneberries, which can also be red, will kill you. Grubs, worms, any big insects make good meals. You must work, but you must work lazy. Sweat turns into ice, and ice will be your death."

High over Jarvis Lake a white contrail spins out toward the Pole. It is a jet plane on the polar route from California to Europe. It is filled with people and the people are full of steak and champagne and are watching a movie.

Thirty-five thousand feet below a hungry man who will be hungrier is fumbling with numb fingers at a parachute cord, trying to make a gill net. This is practice, and the man curses with cheerful exasperation.

A month from now it may be for real.

Frosting on the Cake

BY "UNCLE DOC" ROSS — U.S.A.

A recent news story out of Washington is almost too great a shock for rational people to absorb.

Some sub-committee in Congress has just announced that it's "looking into" the oceans of paper work now required by the insufferable bureaucracy currently in power.

Every business of any size or importance has been so dogged by this madness that one is forced to wonder if most of this triplicate-or-worse stuff is nothing except "made work" for thousands now feeding at the public trough.

Executives who have some balance sheet understanding of what really makes business go, are likely to have a relapse from this 20-year-too-late revelation.

Men in business hire capable bookkeepers and accountants and know at the end of every day or week's business exactly what the score is. Then certified information is furnished in wholly adequate form to all units of government entitled to such current information.

There is no good or sensible reason under heaven why this basic and fiscal reporting has to be duplicated in reams and reams of copies for some bureaucrat to shuffle about on his desk for an actual seven hours of "putting in his time" after making allowances for "coffee breaks" and other hanky-panky.

The astonishing report of this sub-committee about "paper-work" is seeing the light of day, as though it were news.

If our people who really work for a living have good sense, they will rise up and demand that the sub-committee report mean something more than just so much more "paper work." Every bureaucracy grows upon itself until there comes an almost cyclonic house-cleaning in Washington.

COUSIN — The man at the door said to the boy who answered the bell: "I'm your cousin on your father's side." The kid grinned: "I'll tell you right now, mister, you're on the wrong side!"

At a funeral service on a sub-zero morning the minister failed to arrive. A local preacher was asked to conduct the service. Reading from the ritual, he came to the phrase: "This dear brother (or sister)." Not knowing which to say, he turned to a man, crying more than anybody else, and whispered: "Brother, or sister?" The fellow sobbed: "Cousin."

ACCIDENT — "I never wore 'em down since the accident," Sandy MacPherson told a friend at the Hoot Mon Pub who had asked why he was wearing his earbobs up on the zero morning. The friend hadn't heard about Sandy's accident, so Sandy explained: "One morning I was wearin' my earbobs down, and McTavish asked me to have a drink, and I didn't hear him!"

Guest Pulpit . . .

Text, St. Mark 10:33, 34: "Behold, we go up to Jerusalem; and the Son of Man shall be delivered unto the chief priests, and unto the scribes; and they shall condemn Him to death, and shall deliver Him to the Gentiles, and they shall mock Him, and shall scourge Him, and shall spit upon Him, and shall kill Him, and the third day He shall rise again."

One of the greatest, if not the greatest period in the life of Jesus is before us. In spite of what He knew to be the outcome of His choice He faced what He considered His duty.

Rev. Banks

As we enter upon this Lenten season we may say as it was said to Moses: "Put off thy shoes from off thy feet, for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground." Ex. 2:5. We stand on the border of this holy season representing the sufferings of Jesus by commemorating the 40-day fast of our Lord.

Lent is truly that significant season in the calendar of the Christian Church which lays its claims plainly upon the heart of the Christian believer. During these meaningful days our Lord makes a personal appeal to each of us.

We shall go with Him to Jerusalem where He faces His most critical antagonists. We shall go with Him to the Upper Room where He prepares Himself for the trials of Gethsemane. We shall see Him as He is tried, mocked, scourged, bound and led away to Golgotha. We shall hear His immortal words from the Cross. Shall we walk with Him thus and not share His burden who gave Himself for us? Lent calls us to look deeply into our own hearts. It is a time for self-examination, self-discovery, self-mastery.

Our Lenten pilgrimage with our Lord should lead to definite results: Quiet meditation with our Lord; public worship in the house of God; giving generously for the rehabilitation of suffering humanity around the world.

If we consecrate our lives and possessions to His service, we will be led to the triumphant joy of the Easter victory.

ONE MAN'S Opinion . . .

Our Secretary of State, Mr. Dean Rusk, warned our free-loading friends around the world recently that if our embassies didn't quit getting splashed with ink, this country would begin taking "a hard look" at our assistance to such nasty governments.

Apparently what Mr. Rusk means is: "If you don't smash our glass, we'll keep the dollars rolling in."

Witteameier

Perhaps someone better start taking a "hard look" at our so-called foreign aid program. Nobody gives something for nothing — not even us.

Some of our cross-ocean orphans have turned foreign aid into professional blackmail and guess who's paying the bill?

U.S. dollars have been trying to buy popularity for decades now and the return on our investment apparently is ink — red ink.

Why is it too much different than the neighborhood supermarket? Let's take inventory and clean out the deadheads. Who needs 'em?

We suggest the Great Society get its nose out of "How to Win Friends and Influence People" and start counting noses — for and against — with simple grade one math.

On the total balance sheet, our world neighbors are far more impressed by the missile silos than some of our ridiculous handouts.

In this great big alley fight called world politics, the guy with the biggest muscles is still king of the block when the chips are down.

Who then picks up the tab when we pull out with our soup kitchens? The Russians? Let them "spend themselves to death" for awhile. — JACK WITTENMEIER

Why Go To The Moon?

To the Editor:

Why should science extend its research to the moon?

This question arises in the minds of many when we are striving to give financial aid to scientific research in our own planet, and we feel thankful for the real happiness and harmony granted us by our creator and nature's lawn.

Dominating irreconcilable and conflicting ideas reap dissension in our life and in many other parts of the world. They must come from discontented minds which seem to crave discord.

The high ideals of morality and friendliness among people of all nations would bring peace and contentment, making us more and more appreciative of our good planet —the earth.

Calls U.N. Sabotage Base

To the Editor:

Communism strikes — or almost strikes again within our shores!

The slogan "Don't worry, they're still 90 miles away" became a hollow echo in 1963 when Communists in the U.S.A. plotted and killed our President. The liberal left desperately tried to tie the assassination to the right wing extremists, to no avail.

Now who will be blamed in the vile attempt to bomb three of our cherished national shrines? The would-be bombers boldly boasted, "We do not care how many innocent men, women and children would be killed" in the planned simultaneous destruction. This plot was to have been only the first of a series in a nationwide campaign designed to strike terror into Americans.

A frequent foreign visitor to the U.N. brought in the dynamite and the plans were formulated when Cuba's red-arm Che Guevara was in New York for a speech at the U.N., receiving full red-carpet diplomatic treatment. Yet there are those, including many clergymen, who along with our State Department, promote and wish to preserve this sabotage base within our shores. This very week a highly respected member of the New York police force was bumped from the U.N. area to a rough and tough area in Harlem because he dared ask a diplomat visiting the U.N. to move on!

Our Warren Supreme Court this week ruled that Communist leaders would now be allowed freer movement from country to country and back into the U.S.A. without former travel restrictions! Yes folks, it is unbelievable I know. Loyalty, security, patriotism and God's admonitions all seem to be forgotten.

Let us all salute rookie patrolman Raymond Wood for his good work. Aren't you anxious to learn what punishment is meted to the offenders?

Criticizes Rhodes' Booklet

To the Editor:

Gov. James Rhodes has spent $740,000 of the taxpayers' money, without legislative authority, to print a book which is to be given to everyone who buys a 1965 auto license plate.

In taking this money from three state departments, he dipped into the Natural Resources Department for $150,000. Part of this money comes from the sportsmen who purchased hunting and fishing licenses. By law this money is to be used for conservation purposes, not for printing a book to glamorize and boost James Rhodes' campaign for re-election.

I am asking my sportsmen friends and thousands of other friends to send their book back to Gov. Rhodes. This will let him know in no uncertain terms that they resent and condemn him for using the hunting and fishing license fees to print a book to satisfy his personal ambition.

Give It Back To The Kids!

To the Editor:

Well now I've seen just about everything. Incorporation has come to Little League football locally. I also understand that the new enterprise has joined a conference which will send the youngsters scrambling all around the state.

I suspect businesses will be expected to extend the glad hand and drop a share into the kitty again.

Sports provide a wonderful opportunity for a youngster to develop physically, mentally and emotionally.

But when you dress a nine-year-old like a pro, train him like a pro and tell him he's a pro, he thinks he must be a pro.

What's so terrible about giving the game (that's what it's supposed to be) back to the kids. Believe it or not, they might manage to have some fun!

Group Opposes Bus Bill

To the Editor:

At a meeting of the Executive Committee on Sunday, Jan. 31, 1965, the following resolution was unanimously adopted: "Whereas statements have been made by a group called "Citizens for Educational Freedom," saying the Lutherans favor the proposed "parochial school bus bill," therefore, be it resolved that we, as men of the Brotherhood of the American Lutheran Church, oppose tax funds for support of parochial schools or services, such as text books and bus transportation."

Wit 'N' Wisdom

By JACK WITTENMEIER

Whoa! . . .

Like most people, we're not in business to make enemies.

We don't enjoy stepping on toes but when someone sticks them squarely under our feet, sometimes our agility isn't the best.

WE'RE REFERRING to a letter from "Irate Parent" on today's Editorial Page. "Irate" is making some noises about incorporation and "big league" little league sports.

We know who "Irate" is pointing the finger at and we're glad he (or she) didn't single them out. That would be like blaming World War II on motherhood.

Wittenmeier

But frankly, after observing some of the little league shennanigans for the past three years, we can't wave many banners.

THE GOOD organizations are really excellent; the bad ones stink.

The good ones are excellent because they haven't forgotten that (1) it's a game, (2) it's a kids game and (3) the physical and emotional benefits are for the kids.

Taking a nine-year-old; outfitting and instructing him like a professional and promoting winning as objective number one isn't much of physical or emotional benefit in our book.

WHAT WE are doing is developing our youngsters into hardened gridiron pros before they're old enough to try out a Gillette adjustable.

One youngster we know of was "snowed" to the point he was convinced he was "the best" by his little league coaches.

A couple of high school practice sessions quickly convinced the lad he wasn't quite "the best." The psychological setback he took wiped out all the gains he made on the football field.

FRANKLY, we don't give a hoot what Cleveland or Chicago or LA has or does. The Everglades have a lot of crocodiles but we don't see any major influx of population headed there.

We wonder how much fun a nine-year-old can get from a bus trip to Cleveland or wearing a jersey designed just like the NFL clubs if he knows its "hail Columbia" when he fumbles and blows the "big one."

Two boys from a visiting team who competed here in a little league bowl game last year confided to their "overnight" parents that their team "was sure to catch it" upon return home.

IT SEEMED their coach never had learned the art of the graceful loss.

Competition is what made America what it is today. But sometimes competition between the goal posts or foul lines is shoved behind competition to provide more jackets, more watches, more goodies to the victors.

Sure, the spoils still belong to the victor but at one awards night we attended the item most needed by the kids was an oversized shopping bag to cart home their loot.

AND BETTER throw out that bargain about "our program provides for 250 boys" when making your next contribution.

Of a $4 thousand kitty one little league club amassed awhile back, $3 thousand went towards providing football for exactly 60 boys! (Our math isn't what it used to be but we believe that still comes to about 50 bucks a boy.)

Incidentally, $800 of that amount was drained off for awards!

Maybe it's something like an armanents race. When do you have enough bombs or enough frills?

OUR LITTLE leagues have become too much like the father who buys his kid a new electric train. It's OK to watch, son — but keep your mitts off the controls.

Under Buckeye Skies

By KEN MACK McCREARY

Ken McCreary

Over recent years "how-to" articles have become about as common as fishermen on the first warm, springtime weekend. And, with March making its lamb-like arrival and Spring officially less than three weeks away, I think a column on "How-To Utilize the Few Days Left" is well in order.

Whatever your favorite outdoor pursuit — fishing, boating, camping or just relaxing, you're undoubtedly among the thousands of us in Spectatorland who are anxiously champing at the proverbial bit, eager to get out into the pulse-quickening freshness of spring and throw of the symptoms of "cabin-fever." Well, a few hours spent right now in preparation can make that first trip (and every one this season) much more pleasant.

If you're an angler, and haven't already, this is the time to drag out your gear and condition it, realizing that smooth-working tackle will bring you more fun, plus more fish on the stringer. It's a good idea to completely disassemble your reels, carefully cleaning and lubricating all parts before reassembly. Check your lines of frayed or weak spots; examine each rod carefully for worn ferrules or guides.

Perhaps the most pleasant part of preparation for the fishing season is the cleaning and reorganization of the tackle box. As you check each lure to make certain every hook point is needle-sharp, you'll probably find pleasant memories in remembering the fish that particular lure has accounted for.

Be positive that the finish on plugs and spoons is bright; touch up the plugs with a little paint, polish spoons and spinners with some fine steel wool. And when it comes time to put the gear back in the tackle box, remember to so organize it so you won't be wasting valuable fishing time looking when you could be casting.

IF BOATING is your favorite outdoor recreation, now's the time to get your craft ready to go "out to launch." Examine the entire boat very carefully—the hull, the decks, the interior and the electrical system. You'll probably find that some painting, polishing or even replacement is in order.

Check out your motor, being certain that it's in top operating condition for another enjoyable season afloat. The importance of giving the safety equipment on your boat a thorough pre-season checkout cannot be over-emphasized — it could well save your life.

Here in Ohio certain equipment is required by law, including approved life cushions or jackets (youngsters under 10 years must wear an approved jacket at all times); proper running lights; an anchor and line; and, approved fire extinguisher. Depending on the type of your boat, other valuable equipment will include a boat hook, first aid kit, toll kit, paddle, compass and spare gas tank.

INCIDENTALLY, don't forget your new boat and motor licenses—if you get them now you'll avoid the spring rush. When you go to buy them, be sure to take your last registration papers; without them, it's "no sale."

Along with the boating and fishing seasons, camping time is (like spring) just around yon corner. It will well pay you to get your gear out soon and give it an eagle-eye inspection—the tent or trailer, cooking equipment, lanterns and all the rest. Then, when the urge hits you'll be ready to hit the road.

• • •

Perhaps you're among the well-organized few who have already accomplished these pre-season chores — well if that's the case, this "how-to" article hasn't forgotten you. How about spending the time from now 'til spring making 20-thousand dollars? No, I haven't succumbed to acute "cabin-fever"! — YOU can make 20-thousand dollars! How? . . . simply by making a better trap.

• • •

THE AMERICAN Humane Association in Washington will pay you $5,000 for inventing a humane small animal trap which will do away with the slow, often agonizing deaths to animals, caused by the leg-hold traps now in use.

Another $5,000 will be paid to the inventor of such a trap for larger animals. And, topping the thought-provoking offer, Professor John Ise of the American Humane Association will toss in an additional $10,000 if the humane trap is invented during his lifetime.

So—if you're that ingenious inventor, there's $20,000 waiting for you — but watch your fingers.
